Bitter Words

By John B. Oakes

Abolition of the C. I. O. and confinement of some of its leaders in concentration camps was suggested to the House yesterday by one member, while another warned against "wild statements" and urged American conservatives "to have no traffic" with would-be Fascists.

In one of the most bitter attacks recently delivered in the House, Representative Leland M. Ford (Republican), of California, asserted that "many" C. I. O. leaders are "racketeers, highjackers, Communists and dangerous alien criminals such as Harry Bridges."

Asserting that they intend to "make the most" of their "golden opportunity" to destroy the Government and the national defense program, he declared that "if there is no place else to put them, every one of them who is spreading this dissension should be placed in a concentration camp, where they will be safe."

Calls C. I. O. "Loud-Mouthed"

"The time has come when the C. I. O. movement, with their sit-down strikes, their communistic European tactics, will have to go," he declared, "and I hope before this program goes much farther that legislation will be enacted which will throw these C. I. O.'s out of their now dominating position."

"I would like to see this Congress snap these people back to the position in which they belong," Ford said. "They are the loud-mouthed, noisy minority, but one would think they were a majority."

Listing recent strikes in national defense industries in which the C. I. O. was involved, Ford said: "I understand the substance of a remark made by Mr. Sidney Hillman (labor member of the Defense Advisory Commission and head of the C. I. O.'s Amalgamated Clothing Workers) was that 'industry had better get aboard or take the consequences.'"

GROUNDED—Wendell Willkie collects a refund from E. A. L. after his plane to New York was grounded at Washington Airport

Grounding of an air transport at Washington-Hoover Airport and a dinner of trustees of the Carnegie Institution last night brought Wendell L. Willkie, the 1940 G. O. P. Presidential candidate, and Herbert Hoover, the last Republican President, to the same hotel in Washington—but they failed to meet.

Neither, in fact, knew the other was under the same roof until advised of the coincidence by reporters.

Hoover was in town for an informal gathering of members of the Carnegie board of trustees. Willkie was in the city because weather grounded an Eastern Airliner he caught from his train at Charlotte, N. C., to save time in a journey

Police Muscle In on Bookies And Do Bang-up Business

CHIEF HEPBURN

Competition from an unexpected source was supplied handbook operators in Prince Georges County yesterday afternoon when Desk Clerk Harry Gosman, of the county police force, started accepting horse racing bets at Hyattsville 0120, the Hyattsville substation phone number.

Chief Arthur W. Hepburn, Corporal John F. Dent, and Special Officer Charles N. Thomsen raided an office at 3219 Rhode Island Avenue, Mount Rainier, about noon, placing a clerk under arrest, and taking over the task of answering the phones. When the calls became too heavy for the three officers to handle, bettors were told that the office was too busy to take the bets, and to call the Hyattsville number, where Gosman made a record of the bets.

Morris Ansel, 58, of 1837 Nineteenth Street Northwest, was charged with setting up a lottery and later released under $500 bond for appearance in the Hyattsville Police Court December 16.

Several numbers bets were received by the police and the slips confiscated.

British Bid $3,010,800 For 15 Ships

Believed Sure to Get Laid-Up Vessels; Loan Up to Congress, Morgenthau Says

By George Bookman
Post Staff Writer

Great Britain yesterday moved to buy 15 ships from the Maritime Commission's laid up fleet as officials made plain that the Administration wants Congress to decide what, if any financial aid shall be granted to the British.

Moreover, Treasury Secretary Morgenthau, coordinator of aid to Britain, declared that the death of Lord Lothian, the British Ambassador, would not delay plans for further Anglo-American cooperation.

J. H. Winchester & Co., of New York, bidding on behalf of British shipping interests, offered to purchase for $3,010,800 15 cargo vessels, remnants of the World War "bridge of ships."

The bid was one of a number submitted to the commission and, since it included a premium if accepted for all 15 ships, was regarded by commission officials as the most favorable.

The ships are tied up in the James River in Virginia, at Bremerton, Wash., and at New Orleans.

Sale of the 15 ships would leave 48 others still available for British purchase at another sale, which may be held early next year.

These ships, British officials say, would help satisfy short-term needs to combat the German submarine menace. It is expected that Britain will build a number of large assembly yards in this country for mass production shipbuilding, to handle long-term demands.

Secretary Morgenthau said he did not "want to be any party" to a loan to Great Britain that would violate either the letter or the spirit of the Johnson Act or the Neutrality Act.

He told reporters at a press conference that "positive" Congressional action would "definitely" be needed before Britain could be granted financial help.

The Treasury Secretary refused to say whether he would go before Congress next session with a request for authority to help Britain financially.

Secretary of Interior Ickes meanwhile added his voice to those asking more aid "short of war" to Britain.

"I favor every possible assistance to England short of sending men abroad," Ickes said. "That includes money and credits, as far as I am concerned."

As these Cabinet members made known their views, sentiment grew in Congress for making an outright grant of funds to Great Britain, perhaps in exchange for territorial concessions, instead of extending a loan.

British, Swamped by Prisoners, Drive On for Libya; Greeks Shatter Crack Fascist Division

Hellenes Dislodge Foe From Heights, Struggle to Take Strategic Tepelini

By International News Service

Athens (Friday), Dec. 13.—Devastating defeat of a crack Italian Alpine division by Greek troops on the south central Albanian front was claimed officially in Athens early today, along with announcement that violent Fascist counterattacks in all sectors Thursday were completely shattered.

A Greek column pushed through the Drinos Valley to the outskirts of the vital highway junction town of Tepeleni, on the road to the port of Valona, where it met and broke the Italian Alpine force in a protracted battle in which a Fascist colonel was killed and many of his men captured, an Athens government spokesman said.

He added that "keen fighting" for possession of Tepeleni was now going on. Despite three feet of snow, the Greeks captured the strategic Kamia Mountain heights and one of the last big Italian mountain strongholds, guarding access to the Albanian coastal plain, was surrounded by three Greek columns.

Italians Tell of Confusion

Newly-captured Italian prisoners, the spokesman said, told their Greek captors that an increasing number of Fascist units have become completely isolated from their headquarters, adding to their confusion.

The high command simultaneously announced 150 Italians, including officers, were taken prisoner Thursday by a Greek reconnoitering patrol. The Greeks, according to the latest Athens communique, carried out "local operations in various parts of the front."

Despite daylong counterattacks by reinforced Italians—especially in the mountainous northern region west of Pogradetz, where fighting raged in a blizzard, and Greek troops were clad in white capes to hide their movements in 5 feet of snow—the Hellenic forces were declared to have kept the initiative.

Along the whole 80-mile front from the Adriatic to the Yugoslav border, the Italians counterattacked savagely, but the fiercest of all these blows was made by picked troops in an 8-mile sector of the frigid northern zone, where a triple-pronged Greek drive threatens the central Fascist base of Elbasan, key to the Albanian capital of Tirana.

All these attacks were thrown back with heavy losses to the Italians and the Greeks resumed their advance, dislodging the Fascists from strong positions after Greek artillery inflicted heavy casualties upon them, the spokesman said.

On the left wing, meanwhile, the

The Union Jack and the flags of other nations drooped at half-staff along Washington's embassy row yesterday, a sign of official mourning after the death of the Marquess of Lothian, perhaps the ablest British Ambassador to the United States since the famous Lord Bryce.

There was talk at the State Department of sending Lord Lothian's body through the war zone to England on an American cruiser or an American plane, but no decision had been reached last night. There also was a suggestion that the body might be kept in a vault here until after the war.

American officials and British Embassy officials awaited word from the 58-year-old bachelor Ambassador's three sisters in England—Lady Minna Butler-Thwing, Lady Cecil Kerr and Lady Margaret Kerr.

President Roosevelt, from the U. S. S. Tuscaloosa in the Caribbean, sent a message to King George VI saying he was "shocked beyond measure" to hear of Lord Lothian's death. The President, who always addressed the Ambassador by his first name, Philip, said that had Lord Lothian been allowed by Providence to leave a last message, it would have been that "the greatest of all efforts to retain democracy in the world must and will succeed."

In the speculation over a possible successor to Lord Lothian, members of the British colony here mentioned the name of Harold Nicolson, brilliant author and Liberal member of Parliament. He was host to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh when the American flier was in England, and later defended his right to make the radio speeches that kicked up such a storm of controversy.

Nicolson's wife also is an author, Victoria Mary Sackville-West. She is related to the Sackville-West who

British Call Envoy's Death Major Disaster

Lloyd George Stunned; Loss Worse Than 2 Corps, Officials Say

By Robert P. Post
Copyright by New York Times

London, Dec. 12.—The Marquess of Lothian's death struck this country as a whole in the same way as it struck David Lloyd George. "When the news was brought to me I felt as stunned as if a bomb had exploded at my feet," said the elderly former prime minister whom Lord Lothian, as Philip Kerr, had served as private secretary.

It is not an exaggeration to say that all the people who knew of Lord Lothian's service felt the same. The news was even played over the British triumphs in Egypt. "It is a worse loss to us than that of two army corps would have been," was a frequent comment in official circles today. One keen observer said that only the deaths of Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Sir Archibald P. Wavell, commanding British forces in the Middle Eeast, would have been a bigger blow to the British cause.

This feeling is, of course, partly a tribute to Lord Lothian's success

Much Booty Seized

By the Associated Press

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 12.—Italian prisoners of war were declared tonight by a British spokesman to be falling so rapidly by thousands into British hands that the problem of feeding and eventually moving them out of the desert is becoming troublesome.

The day's operations were two-fold:

Around Sidi Barrani, the Italian base that fell yesterday, the British were occupied with clearing up a battlefield which had extended over 200 square miles.

Those Fascists who had escaped the British encirclement—and their number was said here to be small—were being pushed westward toward Italian Libya, harassed by the Royal Air Force and the navy, as well as the land forces.

A spokesman at British headquarters said the official estimate of at least 20,000 Italians already captured could not yet be extended because of the difficulty of keeping in touch with the continuing successes of British troops.

Among the great quantities of tanks, lorries and arms of all sorts captured from the fleeing Italians, he said, the lorries would be especially helpful in the transport of British troops.

There was no confirmation of rumors that Salum, the Italian posi-

Sound Illusion—Scores Hear 'Lost' Plane Over D. C.

Washington-Hoover Airport and the city's newspapers received scores of telephone calls last night that sent airport officials and reporters in search of a "lost" airplane whose motors could be heard in virtually every section of the Capital.

After 20 minutes of sending landing directions for the "plane," the ship was found by Charles Stevens, of Lyon Park, Va., air-traffic control operator at the airport. Stevens discovered that the sound of roaring motors was coming from an Eastern Airlines plane whose engines were being run at high speeds in tests alongside the airline hangar not more than 200 yards from the control tower.

Stevens reasoned that sound waves from the running motors were reflected from an unusually heavy and low-lying ceiling of clouds and were bounding back to the city, giving the impression of a lost plane.

Rome Radio Admits Loss Of Sidi Barrani

Fascists Accuse British of Lying To Wreck Morale

By the Associated Press

Rome, Dec. 12.—The Rome radio conceded tonight the loss of the Italian Egyptian base of Sidi Barrani to the British, the speaker remarking:

"For the moment Gen. Wavell (the British commander) has captured Sidi Barrani. What of it?"

The high command, however, did not concede the fall of Sidi Barrani, reporting instead that fierce fighting was proceeding about Buqbuq, 35 miles to the west.

Meanwhile Fascist newspapers warned the Italian people against "false news of imaginary catastrophes" for Italian arms, which, it was charged, British agents inside Italy are spreading in an attempt to destroy morale.

Widespread publication was given to news that Adelchi Serena, secretary of the Fascist Party, had talked with the former leaders of Fascist "action squads." These were the party's street fighting forces in the early days of Fascism.

Gayda Promises Firmness

Virginio Gayda, the frequent press voice of Premier Mussolini, used three columns in Il Giornale d'Italia to accuse British propaganda agents inside this country of combining with the foreign radio to retail "insidious" reports of Fascist reverses.

These agents are "more or less identified," he said, and are backing up an "unusual" concentration of armed forces with which the British hope to break Italy.

Gayda declared this underground action was motivated by the British "need for good news," British desire to increase American faith in a British victory and a British design to impose "a war of nerves" on Italy.

He said the propaganda was cracking up on the rock of Italian firmness.

As for the Greek campaign, the press reported that the new chief of general staff, Gen. Ugo Cavallero, and the commander in chief in Albania, Gen. Ubaldo Soddu, were reestablishing a more favorable situation for the Italians.

Regime Fascista asserted "new enemy attacks have been smashed by our heroic resistance and everything lets us hope for our imminent recovery."

The high command added that "sporadic" Greek attacks had been repelled and that prisoners and arms had been captured.

Badoglio Attacked

Roberto Farinacci, the outspoken editor of Regime Fascista, harked back to the recent resignation of Marshal Pietro Badoglio as chief of the general staff and indicated that Badoglio was telling friends he had opposed the Greek campaign from the start and that more divisions were needed to launch it than he possessed.

"It is well, then," said Farinacci, "that it be known that 'someone' (presumably meaning Badoglio) assumed the undertaking without resolution to carry out the action to the finish with the forces already existing in Albania. Everything else is contrary to the truth."

It was Farinacci who, even before Badoglio resigned, accused him of "untimeliness and improvidence."

Today he stressed that no one must blame the "political command," in the hands of Il Duce, for the reverses in Greece and Albania, since "it was the duty of the technical military organization to carry out the war."

Badoglio's resignation, on December 6, was followed the next day by the replacement of Gen. Count Cesare Maria de Vecchi di Val Cismon, as commander of the strategic Italian-fortified Dodecanese Islands, which lie between Greece and Turkey.

In the same swift sequence, Italy decreed imprisonment and crop confiscation for recalcitrant farmers, threatened laggard mine owners with loss of their concessions and ordered a speed-up in the production of war materials.

Just previously Italy had effected an agreement under which she will increase her food exports to her German ally.

It is just over half a year since Italy went to war with Britain and her then-tottering ally, France. Now fascism is engaged in critical combat not only in the Battle of Britain itself but in Africa and Albania.

Shading locates Italian Libya and Italian troops in Egypt

By Edward Kennedy

By the Associated Press

With the British Desert Forces in Egypt, Dec. 10 (Delayed).—The advance British troops who opened the great Egyptian offensive against Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's forces took the Italians entirely by surprise after skilfully executed preparatory moves had carried them undetected across 75 miles of desert wasteland.

The fighting started at dawn Monday and has been going forward ever since. The British have been routing the Fascists at numerous points in the great sun-drenched arid stretches, inflicting heavy casualties and taking prisoners by the thousands.

We left Cairo at dawn and by midafternoon we were settled in a camp established for newspaper correspondents some 300 miles out in the desert, but still considerably behind the advancing British columns.

So far I have seen no combat in this big drive, nor has any other correspondent, but I have heard accounts from those back from the combat area, and from airmen who have flown over it and as far as I can find out here is what has happened:

Swift Wheeling Drive Carried to Sea

On Monday morning the British attacked outposts of the 70-mile long "beach" of desert which the Italians occupied just three months ago—Maktilla on the coast, 15 miles east of Sidi Barrani, and Nibeiwa, 15 miles south of Sidi Barrani, taking both in a few hours fighting.

Four hundred prisoners were taken Monday morning and, as the British pressed forward, the number ran well over a thousand.

Through all that night the fighting went on, the British rounding up Italian units cut off from the main force.

On Tuesday the British shot forward again, principally in a big wheeling movement south of Sidi Barrani, then in a swift dash to the Mediterranean. This was highly successful.

Gen. Pietro Melletti of the Italian forces was killed in the first hour of the drive.

Many Italians Captured at Breakfast

So great was the surprise of the British operations that ordinary movements of provisions were intercepted in some of the Italian camps, and the men were surrounded while they still eating breakfast.

Over 200 cars were captured or destroyed. The British are using heavy tanks, armored cars and artillery forces.

The land forces have had extensive support from sea and from the Royal Air Force.

Our camp is adjacent to an R. A. F. air field and since the British drive started no Italian plane has appeared overhead.

The heaviest R. A. F. raid in the Near East since the war began was on the Benina Airfield Sunday night, when bombs were dropped for 12 hours straight.

Twenty-two Italian planes were reported brought down since the advance started.

Many of these raids were carried out in desert sandstorms which made it difficult for the raiders both to see their targets and find their home bases.

House, said he favored making a gift of funds to Great Britain when they need financial help, in exchange for naval bases, notably at Singapore.

Pepper Eyes Singapore

Pepper, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, outlined a policy as follows:

Make sure first the British exhaust their cash in the United States; then, that they exhaust their liquid assets in Latin America; finally give them help in exchange for bases throughout the world.

Pepper said he would not exclude the strategic British base at Singapore from this suggestion.

Asked if he would advocate going ahead with plans to lease Singapore even if the Japanese made it plain they would oppose the move forcibly, Pepper said:

"If Japan objects it will be just too bad."

Seconded by Landon

Alf M. Landon, the Republican Presidential candidate in 1936, seconded Pepper's idea by proposing that the United States give outright subsidies to Great Britain and charge the cost to national defense.

Here for the Gridiron Club dinner tomorrow night, the Republican leader stated his policy in these words:

"As to the question of credits to Great Britain, no matter how the war turns out she will never be able to pay us. If it is to America's interest to help Great Britain, as I believe it is, let us subsidize her outright and charge it up as part of the cost of national defense."

Landon called on labor, in the interests of national defense, to abandon the 40-hour week, to agree to outlawing of strikes in essential armament industries and to curtailment of ordinary Government expenditures and relief checks.

Landon, who helped frame the Republican Party's 1940 "short of war" platform plank on aid to Britain, went further in his advocacy of financial measures than Secretary Morgenthau or President Roosevelt.

Senator Austin (Republican), of Vermont, and Senator King (Democrat), of Utah, both praised the English as defenders of democracy and a bulwark against totalitarian encroachment in this hemisphere.

Austin asked that the Neutrality Act be revised to permit American ships and citizens to return to the seas in war areas, and to facilitate financial assistance to Britain.

Morgenthu Cautious

Secretary Morgenthau, who has been holding conversations for the past week with Sir Frederick Phillips, Undersecretary of the British Treasury about Great Britain's financial "balance sheet," exhibited a cautious attitude.

A reporter asked if the Secretary thought the Neutrality Act and Johnson Act were legal barriers to loans to Great Britain.

He replied:

"Irrespective of any interpretation that any lawyer might give, in view of the spirit of the law, which is very clear in the Johnson Act, I certainly would not be any party to a loan to Great Britain or to any other country which comes under the Johnson Act without being directed by Congress."

He refused to be drawn out on the question of use of the $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund to aid Great Britain.

'Victory of First Order' in Africa, Churchill Says

Italians Pursued Westward, Cheering Commons Is Told

By Raymond Daniell

Copyright by New York Times

London, Dec. 12.—Constantly interrupted by cheering, Prime Minister Churchill told Commons today that a victory of "the first order" had been won in Africa and that the anxieties entertained here three months ago regarding the defense of Egypt had been removed.

Even as he spoke the wires from Cairo were bringing later and even more encouraging news than Churchill communicated.

Official information reaching here from headquarters of the Middle East command indicated that the desert raid which became a battle may develop into a full-fledged campaign designed to drive the Italians out of Libya.

Pursuit Continuing

Churchill himself warned again that it was "too soon to measure the scale of these operations," but said that the pursuit of the enemy westward was continuing "with the greatest vigor." He estimated that 7,000 prisoners had already arrived at the British base of Matrum and said it would not be surprising if at least "the best part of three Italian divisions, including Blackshirt formations, have been either destroyed or captured."

As Sidi Barrani, which was captured by British troops yesterday, was an advance base for the invading Italians, the prime minister said it was reasonable to expect that the stores of war material already captured from the Italians might be greatly increased.

With that part of the invading force which escaped destruction and capture retreating to Libya, Churchill said the Royal Navy and Air Force were shelling and bombing the principal road open to the Italians. With the exception of one or two points still holding out, the whole coastal region east of Sidi Barrani is in the hands of British troops.

General Retreat Reported

Official communiques issued in Cairo said the number of prisoners taken would "exceed" 20,000 men, with tanks, guns and equipment of all types. Three generals, one a corps commander and the other two commanding divisions, it was said, were among the hundreds of Italian officers taken.

Royal Air Force reconnaissance planes reported a general Italian retreat from Egypt. The R. A. F. continued harassing the enemy and supporting Lieut. Gen. Henry Maitland Wilson's advancing columns by bombing Italian airports and cooperating with the mobile striking force. Tons of bombs were dropped on Solum and raids were carried out against the landing fields of Gambut, Aziez, Menastir, El Adem, El Gubbi, Derna and El Galala and nine enemy planes on the ground and in the air were destroyed.

At the same time the admiralty issued a communique describing the part the navy is playing in disrupting enemy communications and supplies. Both heavy and light units of the navy, it was said, were plying off the coast and shelling the coastal road. A heavy bombardment was carried out from sea by warships on focal points of the Italian retreat at Solum, near the Egyptian-Libyan frontier, and Bardia on the Libyan coast. No damage was inflicted on British ships during the operations, it was said.

Close cooperation between the navy and air force has been one of the marked features of Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell's desert thrust. There is no doubt that this factor contributed heavily toward the success of the strategy, which consisted of a frontal attack on the enemy's left wing near the coast and at Maktila, east of Sidi Barrani, and a thrust which went through the Italian right flank to reach the coast between Sidi Barrani and Buqbuq.

London, Dec. 12.—The text of Prime Minister Churchill's remarks in Commons today:

By the Associated Press

The House last Tuesday evidently appreciated the full significance of the fact which I announced, without commenting upon it, that a British column had reached the coast between Buqbuq and Sidi Barrani. That, of course, cut through the prinicipal road by which the main body of the Italian army, which had invaded Egypt, could effect a retreat.

The question then was whether the encircling positions, which Gen. Wilson's forces had captured after their brilliantly executed desert march, could be effectively maintained and whether the net so drawn could be forced at all points to the seashore.

The strong position of Sidi Barrani and various fortified posts in this neighborhood appeared to be a considerable obstacle.

However, Sidi Barrani has been captured and the whole coastal region, with the exception of one or two points still holding out, is in the hands of British and Imperial troops.

Many Prisoners

Seven thousand prisoners have already reached Matruh so far. We do not know yet how many Italians were caught in the encirclement, but it would not be surprising if at least the best part of three Italian divisions, including numerous blackshirt formations, had been either destroyed or captured.

As Sidi Barrani was the advanced base of all the Italian forces which had invaded Egypt and were preparing for further inroads, it seems probable that considerable masses of material may be found there.

I may be able next week to make a fuller statement. In the meanwhile, the pursuit to the westward continues with the greatest vigor. The air force are bombing and the navy are shelling the principal road open to the retreating enemy and considerable additional captures have already been reported, besides those which fell in the original encirclement.

Victory of First Order

While it is too soon to measure the scale of these operations it is clear they constitute a victory which, in this African theater of war is of the first order and which reflects the highest credit upon Sir Archibald Wavell, Sir Maitland Wilson, staff officers who planned this exceedingly complicated operation, and upon troops who performed the remarkable feat of endurance and daring which accompanied it.

The whole episode must be judged upon the background of fact that it is only three or four months ago that our anxieties for the defense of Egypt were acute.

These anxieties are now removed and the British guarantee and pledge that Egypt would effectively be defended against all comers has been in every way made good.

British Capture Italians in Hordes

tion just within Egypt at the Libyan frontier, had fallen to the British.

It was understood that a number of Blackshirts (Fascist militiamen) were among the British prisoners, as well as some Libyan natives. Hundreds of officers have been taken.

In addition to attacking the retreating Italians, the Royal Air Force was declared to have kept up a constant series of raids upon all Fascist advanced airdromes in Libya, preventing aircraft from taking off in many instances and destroying planes on the ground.

The Italians appeared to be using their fighter craft mainly in defense against the British pilots who were supporting the British advance. Total Fascist plane losses in three days of fighting were put by the British at more than 40 "for certain." In the same period, the British acknowledged the loss of only four planes.

Five Fascist Generals Lost

Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, the British middle eastern commander and Air Chief Arthur Murray Longmore visited advanced headquarters in the desert today for a long conference with Gen. Sir Maitland Wilson and Air Commodore Raymond Collishaw.

The Italian campaign in the East and the present British offensive is declared to have cost Italy five generals.

One, Gen. Lustracci, was captured in Libya within a few days after Italy's declaration of war. Three others were taken prisoner in the region of Sidi Barrini yesterday. A fifth, Gen. Pietro Maletti, was killed on the first day of the British action. He was considered second only to Marshal Rodolfo Graziani as an expert in desert warfare.

Nazis Report Sheffield Is Heavily Raided

Northeast Industrial Districts Bombed For the First Time

By the Associated Press

London (Friday), Dec. 13.—German bombers, guided to their targets by incendiaries, inflicted damage and a number of casualties last night and early today in raids on East Midlands and northeastern industrial areas which hitherto had escaped bombings.

(The Germans reported that Sheffield, world's largest steel producing center, was singled out for the night's heaviest raid.)

British fighter planes went up to challenge the waves of Nazi craft which poured across the east coast and spread out to raid scattered areas. Additional waves came over the southeast coast.

Fierce antiaircraft barrages followed the path of high-flying raiders.

Midlands Hard Hit

London's night time alert was followed by hours of intermittent gunfire.

The all clear sounded before dawn in the London area after guns had been silent for some time and a heavy mist had developed.

A church and a furniture factory were destroyed in one Midlands town; incendiary bombs were dropped on a northeastern locality, but the result, authorities said, was not serious.

London's antiaircraft spoke out at intervals, but there were no reports of bomb damage in the first four hours of the night raid.

The East Midlands was bombed both today and tonight, the raiders spreading after dark to other sections of the center of the kingdom.

They cruised across the island to Liverpool and were over the northeast, as well. It was the familiar followup to Wednesday night's concentrated attack on Birmingham, which destroyed or damaged 6 churches, 11 schools, 2 theaters and many private homes and public shelters.

Raiders Kept High

Again tonight the Midlands' antiaircraft defenses thundered with potent rage, keeping the raiders high.

Small squadrons of German fighters and fighter-bombers stabbed across the Kentish coast at London during the day. Air ministry said that they were largely intercepted and that three were shot down, but some bombs were dropped in outer London and elsewhere in southeast England. A fourth raider, this one a bomber, was downed in the southwest. Two fighters machine-gunned the shopping section of a coastal town in the southeast.

During the day, it was disclosed that parts of famous Eton School had been damaged in recent air-raids; also the Bristol Guild Hall and Assize Court and Wembley Stadium, in outer London.

Likened to Coventry

Berlin (Friday), Dec. 13 (AP).—Large German bombing units picked Sheffield, the great steel center in the east English Midlands, as the center of their night attacks on Britain, informed sources reported early today.

Since the fall of darkness, it was stated, German planes had been leaving bases in France and Belgium in uninterrupted succession for the assault. The weather was reported bad in the Channel region, but more favorable over the Midlands.

Bombs of the heaviest caliber were dropped on steel mills and other industrial plants—returning pilots reported several large fires were seen within a few hours after the raid started.

The raid was described as comparable to the fierce ones against Coventry, Birmingham and London recently.

Thomas Murray, 14, Dies in Hospital

Thomas Connolly Murray, 14, son of the dean of Georgetown University Dental School, died yesterday at Providence Hospital. He was operated on last Monday for appendicitis.

The boy's father, Dr. J. L. B. Murray, lives at 1305 Lawrence Street Northeast.

Young Murray was president of his first year class at St. John's High School, an honor student, and a corporal in the cadet guard.

Besides his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Murray, he leaves two brothers, Francis, 15, and Joseph, 17.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 9 a. m. from St. Anthony's Church. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Sidelights of the War

Cannon-Firing British Plane Rends Opponent; Optimistic Nazis Study Colonial Rule

Copyright by New York Times

London, Dec. 12.—Air ministry officials made public today for the first time the fact that a cannon-firing British fighter plane, piloted by a youngster of 21, recently destroyed a Messerschmitt 103.

Some time ago it was announced that British fighters were being equipped with cannon, but up to yesterday nothing more had been heard about the results. Describing his encounter, the young pilot said:

"What happened was like nothing I had ever seen before, not even on the screen. I gave the German two short bursts. One cannon shell must have struck his fuel tank. The Messerschmitt exploded in front of me like a bursting shell. There was a quick flash, a cloud of black smoke and bits of the plane flew through the air. It was simply dripping out of the sky."

German Officers Study Colonial Police Work

Copyright by New York Times

Berlin, Dec. 12.—Upon order of Heinrich Himler, chief of all German police, a number of German guardians of order, it was learned today, for some time have been studying special problems which confront enforcers of law in colonial service.

Anticipating the return of German colonies after this war, a number of German policemen are being specially schooled here in Berlin for their future duties far from home. Following their training here they are sent to Rome for a four-week course in the Colonial Police School there.

Liddell Hart Tells How to Win War

Aldershot, England, Dec. 12 (AP). A powerful mechanized army "operating under the wings of a supreme air force" is the only means of producing a military decision in the war with the Axis, Capt. B. H. Liddell Hart, noted British military commentator, declares in his latest book.

The 64-page volume called "Dynamic Defence" has attracted wide attention in British military circles, and the Times termed it "an event."

Denouncing military conservatism which he said blocked for 20 years attempts to mechanize the British army, Liddell Hart wrote:

"Happily, this belongs to the past. Its errors have been made manifest by events."

Canadian Bomber Crew 'Bombs' Selves

Halifax, Nova Scotia, Dec. 12 (AP).—The three-man crew of a Royal Canadian Air Force bomber "bombed" themselves in a freak accident today, but all escaped injury.

The plane was taxiing down the runway of a nearby air base when it caught fire and, in some unexplained manner, a bomb fell from its rack, going off as it hit the ground.

King, Commoner 'Glad to Be Alive'

London, Dec. 12 (AP).—King George picked his way around bomb craters in the streets of Birmingham today, less than 12 hours after the third big German attack on that important Midlands industrial center.

A crowd pressed around the monarch as he surveyed damaged buildings and flattened homes.

"We're not downhearted, Your Majesty; it's nice to be alive," said a Mrs. Ashford, who had just dug herself from the ruins of her home."

Marines Accept 77 Reserve Fliers

The Navy announced yesterday that 77 reserve aviators had been accepted for appointment into the regular Marine Corps.

Capt. John G. Adams, 1901 Columbia Road, an American Airlines pilot, was one of the group. Two fliers now on active duty at the Anacostia Naval Air Station, Capt. Jack R. Cram and Capt. Daniel W. Torrey, jr., and Capt. Harold A. Johnson, of the Quantico (Va.) Marine base, and Capt. Ben Z. Redfield, of the CAA, also received regular commissions.

R.A.F. Smashes At Rhine Port Of Mannheim

Fliers Cross Through Thick Mist to Batter Nazi River Town

By David Anderson

Copyright by New York Times

London, Dec. 12.—Mannheim, on the Rhine, was bombed by squadrons of the Royal Air Force Wednesday night.

British aviators also attacked the channel ports, and air fields in occupied lands, as well as targets scattered on the rim of the western Reich. One plane was lost in these operations, according to the air ministry.

No tourist arriving at Mannheim in peacetime, following a particularly aggravating trip, ever welcomed the sight of old Schloss Palace more than did the young British pilots. They had flown through thick cloud banks and cold mist with scant hope of completing their mission successfully.

But when they reached the juncture of the Rhine and Neckar Rivers, there outlined far below in the pale moonlight were the huge mass of standstone of the Schloss, said to be the largest palace in Germany, the curious rectangular streets within the Ringstrasse—more akin to New York than to Europe—and the waterways of the inland harbor.

Swinging clear of the city proper, the British bombers drew beads on the power station and docks. First incendiary bombs were showered down, then explosive bombs.

Fires were said to have been burning brightly when the navigators laid their courses homeward. They flew for hours through mist with no sight of land or sea.

Applying themselves to the same formula for the night's raids—power stations, docks and railway yards—additional bombers attacked other key points in the Reich.

Calais and Boulogne were likewise raided the same night. Pounding these invasion ports is logical as long as a threat of invasion is present, and it is argued it will remain present so as to tie up a large army in this country.

The official bulletin says the ports were "badly knocked about" by the raiders.

Nazis Suggest U. S. Cooperate 'Before It Is Too Late'

By the United Press

Berlin, Dec. 12.—A Nazi warning, presumably inspired by Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop, today advised the United States to cooperate with Germany "before it is too late" because, it said, Great Britain already is on the verge of collapse.

The statement, which said that "Germany has nothing against the American people," appeared in the magazine Berlin-Rome-Tokyo and was signed with three stars, generally understood to mean that it was written under the auspices of Ribbentrop.

The article appeared two days after Hitler's speech to German workers in which he linked the United States and Britain together in accusations of capitlistic slavery and said that, with Nazi work substituted for gold, Germany under his leadership "can beat any other power in the world."

"Staggering Great Britain"

"Staggering Great Britain takes blows, looking fixedly toward America whence Churchill not only expects the delivery of war materials but participation in the war that already is decided," said the magazine.

"It is absolutely astonishing with what degree of stupidity, forgetfulness and irresponsibility the British leaders believe they can count on the American people.

"America, they think, should enter the war for England against the new world order from which the United States can have more advantages than even a victorious England could offer them."

The article blamed the demands for greater American aid to Britain on "England's Wall Street friends" and to "Jewish bankers."

"Germany has nothing against the American people, who, we know, have nothing against Germany," it was stated.

Accepts Monroe Doctrine

"Germany always has recognized the wisdom of the Monroe Doctrine and therefore demands the same for itself and its friends as a basis for continental relations tomorrow.

"The fanfares of reconsrtuction already are mingling with the death throes of the Britain of yesterday. Europe is creating itself anew.

"Clearly audible from afar, young peoples and their friends have sent out a call to cooperate.

"Their march is the law of the coming century, the idea of tomorrow, which must be recognized or denied."

Anderson Hints Need for Curb On Nazi Consuls

Representative Seeks Means of Preventing 'Subversive Activities'

The advisability of preventing "subversive activities" of German consuls in the United States, even at the risk of having to withdraw American consuls from Germany, was suggested yesterday by Representative Anderson (Republican), of California.

Anderson's proposal was made to reporters after he had announced receipt of a letter from Secretary Hull advising him on the legal status of German consular agents in this country.

In his letter—a reply to one from the Representative—Secretary Hull noted that "although there has been an increase in the staffs of the German consulates in the United States, these have not been out of proportion to increases in the staffs of other foreign government establishments in this country."

Representative Anderson declared that the House Foreign Affairs Committee should consider whether or not it should "hem in" the activities of German consular agents in this country, although such action might lead to retaliation by Germany and the necessity of closing American consulates there.

Windsor Calls On Fred Snite, 'Boiler Kid'

Duke Finds Time For Relaxation, Quiet in Florida

By the Associated Press

Miami Beach, Fla., Dec. 12.—The Duke of Windsor is taking advantage of a week's visit to the United States for the sort of rest and privacy rarely permitted to one in his position.

Now that the duchess is well on the way to recovery from a serious dental operation, he is occupying his time with reading, short motor trips, and a bit of unostentatious shopping in stores away from the principal business districts.

Because of his wife's hospitalization, the duke has the perfect excuse for a polite "no" to the scores of invitations he received for one sort of function or another.

Visits "Boiler Kid"

He acknowledged personally a request of Fred B. Snite, jr., paralytic inmate of an iron lung, for permission to call upon him at the hospital, going to Snite's Miami Beach home for a private chat with "the boiler kid."

On this and similar trips the duke was driven about town by a Miami Beach policeman in a large sedan. On each occasion, he was accompanied by his Scotland Yard bodyguard and an aide, Capt. Vyvyan Drury. Associates said he was recognized only rarely.

The duke spends much of his time with the duchess, when she feels well enough to talk. At other times he reads in a nearby room of their hospital suite.

Aides said he is catching up on books that have been piling up ever since he became Governor of the Bahamas almost four months ago. Although his duties in administering the small British colony have not been arduous, he has been fully occupied with learning details of the government, with conferences and with the job of having his official residence, Government House, renovated.

Favorable Recovery Expected

A formal bulletin on the duchess' condition, the last to be issued, said:

"No complications have developed and a favorable recovery is expected."

French-Siamese Border Warfare Spreads Inland

Hanoi, French Indo-China, Dec. 12 (AP).—Undeclared border warfare between French Indo-China and Thailand was reported to have spread to the interior of both territories with raids and counterraids by rival air forces.

Officials here said that aircraft raided Saravani, in the center of this French colony, yesterday and that a retaliatory attack was made immediately on Undorn and Sakolakon airports, some 35 miles inside Thailand. Huge fires were started at both places.

It was announced here meanwhile that communications had been reestablished with Bangkok, Thailand capital, but officials said there was little prospect of a break in a diplomatic deadlock precipitated by Thai territorial claims.

District Youth Killed In Fall From Train

A youth identified as John Norris Humphrey, 18, of this city, was killed yesterday in a fall from a freight train at Strauss, N. Mex., local police were informed.

Informed of the tragedy were the victim's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Scheerer, of 1220 Eleventh Street Northwest, where the youth, who is an orphan, occasionally visited. He formerly was in the Civilian Conservation Corps, they said.

Sen. Overton Loses Secretary As Daughter, Katherine, Is Wed

KAY OVERTON

Senator John H. Overton (Democrat), of Louisiana, lost a private secretary yesterday when his daughter, Katherine, was married to Dr. Edward G. Cailleteau.

The marriage took place in Alexandria, La., in the home of the bride's parents, according to word received here from the Senator by Miss Mary M. Conlin, his congressional secretary.

The wedding, which came as a surprise to friends here, was performed on Senator and Mrs. Overton's wedding anniversary.

Miss Overton attended Sweet Briar College in Virginia, and Louisiana State University, where the Senator and Mrs. Overton studied. She was active in dramatics and public speaking. Dr. Cailleteau is of Alexandria, La.

Miss Overton studied at business school in Washington before joining her father's staff as confidential secretary. She is regarded as an authority on river and harbor legislation.

Mount Vernon Church Passes $34,295 Goal

Three hundred workers cheered last night as the annual $34,295 budget drive of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church went "over the top."

Gathered for the canvasser's dinner which climaxed the campaign begun November 24, the members of the church visitation council saw reports chalked upon the huge blackboard indicating that 20 out of 25 zones exceeded their quotas. The total was $34,474.20.

Workers' efforts and the generosity of the subscribers were warmly praised by Judge Eugene Black, of the Court of Tax Appeals, and council general chairman; Dr. John W. Rustin, pastor of the congregation, and other leaders. While the actual church budget is $42,000, about $8,000 is available through loose plate collections and other sources.

The dinner, first major social event held in the new church educational building on K Street, near Ninth Street Northwest, drew many distinguished guests, several of whom made brief remarks at the informal prayer meeting which followed.

They included Bishop Adna Wright Leonard, new Methodist resident prelate, and Mrs. Leonard; former Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Daniel C. Roper; Justice and Mrs. Bolitha J. Laws; Representative John J. Sparkman (Democrat), of Alabama; the Rev. Wilber H. Wilson, new assistant pastor and director of religious education of Mount Vernon Church, and Mrs. Wilson; Dr. C. C. Hung, pastor of the Chinese Community Church, and Mrs. Hung; Mrs. John W. Rustin, and others.

Division chairmen of the campaign were John Brayshaw, Paul McMurray, A. E. Martin and Earl Carson. Dr. Purcell Storey, of the Mount Vernon Place Church staff, council secretary, tabulated reports.

3 Uruguayan Ministers Quit, Protest Bases

By the Associated Press

Montevideo, Dec. 12.—The rift between President Alfredo Baldomir and opponents of collaboration with the United States in construction of naval bases for hemispheric use widened today with the resignation of three more cabinet ministers.

The three who quit in a body—Ministers of Public Works Juan Jose Arteaga, Minister of Industries Gervasio Posadas Belgrano and Minister of Public Education Abalcazar Garcia—are all members of the Nationalistic Herrerista party which has opposed the conversations with the United States.

They brought to six the number of cabinet ministers to quit within the last three weeks. Four have resigned in opposition to the policy on bases and the other two, Vice President Cesar Charlone, Finance Minister, and Minister of Agriculture Esteban Elena, quit yesterday in a dispute over agricultural policy.

Despite the growing opposition, Baldomir, who yesterday defended the proposed bases, is confident of putting the final plan through Congress.

He could do this by the simple expedient of calling a joint session of Congress, in which his coalition would have a majority.

The resignations today came after Baldomir's pointed reference to Herrerista cabinet members following the appearance of criticism of the United States conversations in pro-Herrerista newspapers.

Earth Tremors Shake Wales Amid Nazi Raid

London (Friday), Dec. 13 (INS).—Earth tremors lasting 43 seconds struck the Carnarvonshire and Anglesey areas in northwestern Wales last night.

The temblors occurred while German night raiders were bombing various parts of Britain, including southern Wales.

The tremors, first to strike in Welsh territory in a decade, wrought no serious casualties or damage, according to reports reaching London early today.

The most heavily affected towns were Pwllheli, Conway, Carnarvon and Bangor.

At the same time, reports from Switzerland said a few houses were damaged in tremors felt in the Clarens area of that country.

U. S. May Help Mexico Equip And Train Army

By the United Press

Mexico City, Dec. 12.—The United States may send a military mission to Mexico early in 1941 to cooperate in the training and equipping of the Mexican army, if plans under discussion at present are carried out, reliable sources reported tonight.

The mission, which may be composed of three officers representing the Air Corps, Field Artillery and Infantry, will have as its specific objective "synchronization" of the Mexican and United States armed forces so they may become one of the major factors in intercontinental defense, it was learned.

The plan, it was learned, also may provide for sending a Mexican military mission to the United States, but it was not clear whether the exchange of missions would be simultaneous.

Red Cross Volunteer Service Unit Opens Sessions Here

Forty-six women from all over the Nation, representing more than 600,000 women volunteers, met yesterday at the annual meeting of the National Committee on Volunteer Service of the American Red Cross. Sessions were held in the District chapter house, 1700 block E Street Northwest, and will continue through today.

Mrs. Roosevelt, honorary president of the committee, will attend the meeting today. Present at the sessions yesterday were two of the honorary vice presidents, Mrs. William Howard Taft and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson.

Mrs. Dwight F. Davis, national director of the volunteer services, in a report made prior to the opening meeting called attention to the fact that a year ago there were only 53,000 women volunteers working in Red Cross chapters. Today the women volunteers have to their credit in 452 chapters the making of 17,000,000 surgical dressings, and in 3,042 chapters, the production of more than 2,000,000 garments which have been shipped to the war victims abroad, she said.

"Knitting, sewing and making surgical dressing" Mrs. Davis said, "can become monotonous, but the spirit of these women has been shown by the results which have been obtained. Perhaps I can best illustrate what this task means by pointed out that it would have taken one woman, on the basis of a 40 hour week, 569 years to turn out this amount of work. Another example of the spirit of the women volunteers is that of the 8,000 persons who have given their blood, so that blood plasma may be sent to England for the war victims, more than 50 per cent were women.

"To prepare the morale of our country, our volunteers know that we need not the words and promises of fine deeds, but hard work; we need to work together on small, unheralded jobs, the sum of which will prove the measure of our strength."

The members of the committee were entertained at luncheon yesterday by Mrs. Davis at her home. Miss Mabel T. Boardman, chairman of the committee, was the honor guest.

Holcomb Asks Marine Corps Of 50,000 Men

Equipment to Guard Against Magnetic Mines Announced

By the Associated Press

A Marine Corps force of at least 50,000 men was urged yesterday by Maj. Gen. Thomas Holcomb, Marine commandant, in his annual report.

HOLCOMB

Holcomb said he considered this figure to be a minimum "in view of the existing situation and the projected expansion of the naval establishment as a whole." The current strength of the Marine Corps is about 38,600.

His report, covering the fiscal year ended last July 1, said there had been satisfactory improvement during this period "in numbers and efficiency of the Marine Corps Resreve."

Device Neutralizes Magnetic Mines

Los Angeles, Dec. 12 (AP).—A United States Navy destroyer and a number of foreign freighters have been equipped with an apparatus to neutralize magnetic mines, says Harrold English, director of a shipbuilding firm.

English reported in an address that the equipment includes two sets of cables rigged about the hull of the vessel. He did not go into details, but disclosed it was developed after the captain of an ore vessel noted that a magnetic mine, rushing toward his ship, halted some distance away.

"The inherent electricity in the ore had apparently demagnetized the bomb, which passed away from the vessel," he explained.

Opposing Draft Costs Student Legion Award

Shenandoah, Pa., Dec. 12 (AP).—A scholarship won by a Temple University student in an American Legion Americanism contest has been canceled, a district legion official here announced today, "because of his refusal to register for the draft."

The student, Sturge Steinert, 21, graduate of Tamaqua High School and now a junior at the Philadelphia school, was one of five youths indicted by a Federal grand jury in Philadelphia on charges of failing to register for selective service military training.

Steinert won the scholarship in 1937 with an essay, "Rights and Duties of Citizens Under the Constitution of the United States."

Army Opens Bids On Huge Paint Order

One of the largest paint orders on record is planned by the Army to carry out its color scheme of cream and warm gray for the temporary building of 41 cantonment camps.

The War Department said yesterday the office of the quartermaster general had opened bids for 732,322 gallons of cream paint and 106,480 gallons of gray.

Shy on Materials, Plane Factory Drops 50 Men

Farmingdale, N. Y., Dec. 12 (AP). The Republic Aircraft Corp., manufacturer of pursuit and fighter-bomber planes for the Army and Great Britain, has dropped 50 workmen because of a "temporary shortage of materials," a spokesman said.

What materials were involved he declined to state.

A $9,000,000 plant addition which has been planned for several months has not yet been started. The company holds about $60,000,000 worth of Government contracts.

3.2% Drinks Allowed At Training Camps

The War Department yesterday advised Representative Hinshaw (Republican), California, that the sale of beverages containing not more than 3.2 per cent of alcohol by weight was permitted at Army training camps when not in conflict with State laws.

The statement came from Maj. Gen. E. S. Adams in the Judge Advocate General's Office of the Army after Hinshaw sent him an inquiry from two women in California.

"Experience has proven that permitting the sale of beverages, as indicated above has accomplished excellent results," Gen. Adams added. "It has encouraged military personnel to remain on the reservation (their home) and enjoy refreshments under conditions far better than exist and are available to them off the reservation."

Vichy Reporters Hope Henri-Haye Has Seen Light

By G. H. Archambault.

Copyright by New York Times

Vichy, Dec. 12.—There is no exaggerating the importance attached in many quarters here to the continuance of good relations between France and the United States, and consequently to the removal of misunderstandings which may have arisen. Judging by reports reaching Vichy of Ambassador Gaston Henri-Haye's recent tour in New England, he has discovered one fundamental cause of misunderstanding, namely insufficient information.

This discovery has provoked more than one smile here, seeing that before they left for Washington both the Ambassador and his press attache were assured that America today knows how to differentiate between information and mere propaganda, and they were advised in the friendliest spirit always to bear that fact in mind. It is hoped, now that M. Henri-Haye has confirmed this truth to his own satisfaction, he will aid in removing certain vexatious hindrances to the work of American correspondents here, some of which there is good reason to believe have been applied at the suggestion of his own embassy.

Officials Lead Nation in Mourning Lord Lothian

Roosevelt 'Shocked Beyond Measure;' Capital's Flags at Half Staff; Envoy's Body May Be Sent Home in U. S. Cruiser or Plane served as the British envoy here in the Cleveland Administration.

In London the man most prominently mentioned as a successor to Lord Lothian was War Minister Anthony Eden, who received an extremely favorable reception when he visited the United States in December, 1938. Sir Ronald Campbell, former Ambassador to France, also was mentioned.

Friends of Lord Lothian said yesterday that, in a sense, he was a casualty of the war. He arrived in Washington four days before the war broke out in Europe, and no British diplomat ever carried a heavier burden than did he in the days that followed. He worked 16 hours a day, and it was customary for him to carry work with him to his bedroom. Not once after his arrival in Washington did he take a vacation.

A formal announcement of his death by the British Embassy said:

"The British Embassy deeply regret to have to announce that the Marquess of Lothian died early this (Thursday) morning.

"Lord Lothian was taken ill on Sunday night and although his condition improved on Monday and Tuesday he suffered a relapse last night. The cause of death was uremic infection."

A member of the Christian Science Church, Lord Lothian was attended by Dr. Luther T. Cudworth, C. S. B. (Bachelor of Christian Science), who arrived here from Boston on Monday. After Lord Lothian passed away, Dr. Cudworth called in Dr. Benjamin F. Weems, M. D., of this city, who pronounced him dead.

Later in the morning, Dr. Weems notified Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald, who called at the British Embassy and issued a certificate saying that death resulted "from natural causes which were uremia and a heart and kidney condition."

All day yesterday limousines rolled into the grounds of the big Georgian embassy as Government and diplomatic officials called to express their sorrow and to leave cards.

Among the callers were Secretary of State Hull, Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles, Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, and the dean of the Diplomatic Corps, Ambassador Don Manuel de Freyre Y Santander, of Peru.

Secretary Hull, in his call at the embassy, offered "all the facilities at our disposal" in connection with the funeral and arrangements thereafter.

Officials minimized the possibility of attack if an American cruiser took Lord Lothian's body through the war zone. They recalled that this courtesy was customary with the United States Government. When Ambassador Paul May, of Belgium, died in 1936, his body was sent home on the U. S. S. Pensacola. Hirosi Saito had retired as Japanese Ambassador here when he died in the winter of 1939. Nevertheless his ashes were sent to Japan on the U. S. S. Astoria.

From London last night came reports that the British government, shocked over Lord Lothian's untimely death, had been placed in a real dilemma in finding a successor.

Truly, Lord Lothian seemed the one man in the British Empire who was best fitted for the Ambassador's role here at the time he arrived. No British diplomat ever sent to the United States knew the country better; he had made 14 trips over here and had traveled through 44 States. An affable and astute observer, he had made an earnest effort to understand Americans.

Appointed by Chamberlain

That was why Neville Chamberlain, then prime minister, went outside of the foreign office to pick Lord Lothian as successor to Sir Ronald Lindsay, who was retiring about the time war clouds were thickening over Europe.

Lord Lothian had not been in Washington two days before it became clear that he was something new in the way of a British Ambassador. He arrived at Union Station on August 29, 1939, carrying both a raincoat and an umbrella. In his dark pin-stripe suit and somewhat battered tan fedora, he looked neither like the popular conception of a diplomat nor the popular conception of a titled Englishman.

In truth he wasn't like these popular conceptions. He said of himself that he was a "free lance" in diplomacy, and he predicted that he would certainly talk himself into trouble. The record would indicate that he was wrong on this, although he usually said what was on his mind, never bothering to submit his remarks to the foreign office in advance.

Born to the purple, possessing a title that went back more than 300 years, he could afford to be natural. There was not an ounce of pomposity in him.

The day he went to the White House to present his credentials—he was still dressed in the pin-stripe suit and wearing the tan fedora—a photographer asked him to pose with a black alley cat.

Lord Lothian took the cat and held it against his chest. Then, grinning broadly, he placed it on his shoulder. The astonished photographers, accustomed to what is known in diplomatic circles as "rigid correctness," had a field day, the most thrilling since J. P. Morgan bounced a midget on his lap at the Capitol.

This was two days before Hitler sent his Nazi legions marching into Poland.

"How about black cats being bad luck?" somebody yelled at Lord Lothian as he fondled the stray.

"Oh, no, they're good luck," said the Ambassador, smiling.

Four days later Britain and France were at war with Germany, and Lord Lothian was embarked on the killing job of getting planes and other military supplies for his country, a job that reached its most brilliant peak when the United States swapped 50 destroyers for British island bases in September.

The Marquess of Lothian was born Philip Henry Kerr, only son of Maj. Gen. Lord Ralph Kerr, third son of the seventh Marquess of Lothian, and Lady Anne Fitzalan-Howard, daughter of the fourth Duke of Norfolk.

He was born on April 18, 1882, and his Roman Catholic father sent him to the Catholic Oratory School at Birmingham. Thereafter he went to New College at Oxford, emerging a Liberal with an interest in socialism and a tendency toward Christian Science, which he later embraced.

He was a member of that group of young men known as "Milner's Kindergarten," a brilliant coterie that went to South Africa after the Boer War to help Lord Milner in the task of conciliation and reconstruction. He was 23 then.

On his return to England, Lord Lothian became editor of the famous Round Table. He was thus occupied when, in 1916, he became secretary of Prime Minister Lloyd George. He was with Lloyd George at Versailles and was credited with writing many of the provisions in the Versailles Treaty.

Acquired Comfortable Fortune

Philip Henry Kerr acquired his title, together with 28,000 acres and a comfortable fortune, on the death of a cousin, the tenth Marquess of Lothian. At the same time he became Lord Newbattle, Baron Long-Newton and Dolphinston, Viscount of Brien, Baron Jedburgh, Earl of Ancrum, and Baron Kerr of Kersheugh.

In 1931, Lord Lothian joined the MacDonald Government as chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster. Subsequently he served as Parliamentary Undersecretary for India and also as governor of the Bank of Scotland.

From 1925 to 1939, Lord Lothian was secretary of the Rhodes Trust for Oxford Scholarships, and it was in this capacity that he made his annual visits to the United States and acquired such a wide circle of friends.

In 1935, Lord Lothian visited Chancellor Hitler and returned to England convinced that peace could be assured by Anglo-German friendship, especially since the Fuehrer told him that he would not take Austria.

"I believe he is sincere," Lord Lothian said at the time.

He was not alone in believing that then. Simon, Chamberlain, Hoare, Halifax, Astor, Beaverbrook and many others also had confidence in the spectacular German chancellor.

In explaining his later change of view, Lord Lothian said:

"There was no possibility of permanent peace on the basis of denying Germany elementary rights like the right to arm and defend her frontiers, including the Rhineland, and the right of Austria to join the Reich.

"Now, however, I am convinced that the first condition for dealing with Hitler is the possession of superior power.

"The change in my outlook dates from the Chamberlain-Hitler conference at Godesberg last September when Germany's determination to wipe out Czecho-Slovakia's independence became clear. I drew the line when Germany claimed the right to extinguish individual and national liberty outside her own boundaries."

Frequented Astor Estate

Lord Lothian was a frequent guest of Lady Astor at her Cliveden estate and was listed by the anti-Fascists of that time as a member of the so-called "Cliveden set," credited with guiding British foreign policy along Nazi-Fascist lines.

He finally answered these charges with a statement charging that the Communists had inventer the Cliveden set."

"The whole thing is a complete mare's nest," he said. "There has, to the best of my knowledge, never been a meeting of the supposed principals for discussion of foreign policy."

Always a strong advocate of Anglo-American cooperation, Lord Lothian startled the House of Lords in 1937 by saying that "Britain could not have emerged a victor from the World War except for assistance from the United States before and after her entrance."

In July, 1938, he again caused a furore by demanding that Britain reopen the question of war debts in the interest of Anglo-American friendship, suggesting the immediate resumption of at least token payments.

In one of his speeches in England, Lord Lothian said that his No. 1 political saint was an American—Abraham Lincoln.

As Ambassador charged with the task of getting the maximum of help from the United States, Lord Lothian told friends that he would never indulge in propaganda. His aim would be at all times, he said, to lay the facts before the American people and let them draw their own conclusions.

His speeches in the United States often infuriated the Nazi press, which denounced him and pointed out how far he had drifted since he said that Hitler was "sincere."

Lord Lothian, the record indicates, foresaw many things that were to happen long before they did happen. When, last winter, Americans were sneering at the "phony" war, he predicted a smashing German drive in the spring. It came.

When others were talking about German planes and German tanks, Lord Lothian continued to talk about seapower. Today it is generally recognized that Britain has much more to fear from Germany's assaults on her shipping than from the air raids on England.

"The British Empire," he said, even before the war started, "is America's outer ring of security. If it disappears under Fascist attack, the United States and its Monroe Doctrine, freedom of the seas and so on would be threatened."

His last speech to the American people was delivered for him while he lay dying in the British embassy. It was delivered in Baltimore Wednesday night by Neville Butler, counselor of the British embassy, who now is acting Ambassador.

Lord Lothian said in the speech that the issue of the European war now depends largely on what America does.

"If you back us," he said, "you will not be backing a quitter. With your help in airplanes, munitions, in ships and on the sea, and in the field of finance now being discussed between your Treasury and ours, we are sure of victory."

British Stunned By Envoy's Death

as ambassador to the United States, but even more it is an indication of the extent to which the British feel the United States is the key to the world situation. Before the United States election the British had convinced themselves that a third term for President Roosevelt was essential to insure continuity of aid of Britain.

Although the British are quite willing to agree that had Wendell L. Willkie been elected the United States aid would still have been forthcoming, it was said in reports here that the interim between Mr. Roosevelt's and Mr. Willkie's adminstraitons would amount to nothing less than disaster to the British cause.

That was because of all the changes which would be required in administration and all the new relationships which would have to be set up, but they had not reckoned on their own link with Washington being suddenly severed by death. It was severed at a time when Anglo-American relationships were most crucial, and when speed in aid to Britain was regarded here as of the utmost importance.

Called Major Disaster

For months all the talks between the United States and England have been carried on through Lord Lothian, or direct between the White House and Downing Street. Lord Lothian had only one or two visits with Mr. Roosevelt after the election, in which he could not possibly have had time to discuss all the things he had to discuss with the President.

Now he has been suddenly stricken down and the British do not know which way to turn. Under the circumstances it can be understood that it is not an exaggeration to say Lord Lothian's death struck Government circles here first as a major disaster and secondly as a personal deprivation. An anonymous commentator on the radio tonight said it was as though Britain had lost a battleship. He is right.

Here a conscientious reporter writing from London is in some difficulties. He does not want to write wildly. Nevertheless, in the absence of any authentic news, the following facts should perhaps be recorded: the news of Lord Lothian's death reached London in peculiar form. It was first announced according to news agencies here, by a coroner. If you mention a coroner to the average Englishman he at once suspects murder.

Therefore all sorts of rumors and speculation arose at once, which could be boiled down to the blunt question, "Was the Ambassador poisoned by an Axis agent?"

Full Details Sought

It is not being sensational to record the fact that the question is being asked in many informed circles today. It is not sensational to say that the foreign office has sent the most urgent cables to Washington asking for the fullest medical details.

The foreign office news department, usually the most helpful to correspondents, dug in its heels tonight and insisted that the foreign office had heard nothing almost 12 hours after the Ambassador's death beyond the bare fact that he is dead.

It may be that there is a perfectly reasonable explanation. But despite the strongest efforts to obtain clarification, miasma and mystery hung over the death tonight. It is plain duty to record this fact, although it is also plain duty to record the fact that the miasma may be pure moonshine.

A measure of the stature Lord Lothian achieved—and it should be remembered that many people were most skeptical when he went to Washington—can perhaps be indicated by the problem of his successor. People here are simply at a complete loss to find anybody to fill the Ambassador's shoes.

Again, it is perhaps more of an indication of the importance of the United States to the British cause than a tribute to Lord Lothian. At any rate, the British do not know where to look to find a man with Lord Lothian's influence here and his knowledge of the United States.

Eden Mentioned

His successor, in the British view, will have one of the biggest jobs in the gift of the government. It is no wonder that speculation has dismissed most of the unemployed ambassadors now frequently London, and has lodged freely on cabinet ministers. Anthony Eden, war secretary, is being mentioned, but people seem to think it is hardly possible he will be taken from the war office, especially at a time when the Egyptian campaign is proceeding so well.

Clement R. Attlee, lord privy seal, is being mentioned, as are Sir Archibald Sinclair, air minister, and Alfred Duff Cooper, minister of information. Attlee and Sir Archibald are leaders of parties in Commons, which seems to indicate they should stay here.

The suggestion of Duff Cooper, friend of Churchill, has against it the belief of many people here that Duff Cooper did the British cause no good by his lecture tour in North America last year.

Other possible suggestions are Gen. Jan Christian Smuts, premier of South Africa, or Lloyd George. Here age and indispensability in their present jobs are obstacles, though perhaps not so much in the case of Lloyd George as in that of Gen. Smuts.

Another suggestion is Viscount Halifax, foreign secretary. This would mean removing from the cabinet a man who many people think should be removed because of his part in the Chamberlain government; but that argument would apply equally against him in the United States.

Of professionals available, Sir Ronald Campbell, formerly Ambassador to Paris, is outstanding. But he has got the collapse of France on his record, and anyhow he has been appointed to Portugal. Others suggested are Sir Edward Cadogan, deputy chairman of the national fitness committee, and Sir Robert Vansittart, political adviser to the foreign office. Lord Beaverbrook, minister for aircraft production, is another possibility. There is also a suggestion of Sir Gerald Campbell, one of the most successful consuls general the British ever had in New York, and now commissioner to Canada.

All this is pure speculation because the cabinet has not had time to consider the matter. You can weigh the pros and cons for each of these named, and put up a good case for any of them. But whoever is selected, it will be a man thought to be of big caliber, perhaps a cabinet minister, and whoever he proves to be, it will be a long time before he reaches the stature Lord Lothian reached in the British view.

America Has Lost a Real Friend and England A Great Servant, Leaders Agree in Tributes

British Ambassador Praised for His Kindliness, Simplicity

Underwood & Underwood

CHIEF JUSTICE Charles Evans Hughes and Mrs. Hughes called at the embassy to pay their respects after death of Lord Lothian, British Ambassador

President Roosevelt, from his cabin aboard the U. S. S. Tuscaloosa in the Caribbean Sea, led the Nation in mourning yesterday the death of the eleventh Marquess of Lothian, British Ambassador to the United States.

As soon as he was informed of the envoy's death, the President radioed a message of condolence to King George VI of Britain.

"I am shocked beyond measure to hear of the sudden passing of my old friend and your Ambassador, the Marquess of Lothian," the President's message said. "Through nearly a quarter of a century we had come to understand and trust each other."

In his message to the British ruler the President reaffirmed his faith in a victory for British arms, saying:

"I am very certain that if he had been allowed by Providence to leave us a last message he would have told us that the greatest of all efforts to retain democracy in the world must and will succeed."

Hull Expresses Sorrow

A host of high officials joined the President in mourning the Ambassador's death.

Secretary of State Hull cabled to the British Prime Minister, Winston Churchill, that the news was received here "with deep sorrow."

"My country mourns with Great Britain the loss of this distinguished statesman who with patriotic courage, wise counsel and unfailing devotion rendered outstanding service to his nation and to humanity," the Secretary of State telegraphed.

In a separate statement Hull declared "the United States has lost a real friend, a true interpreter to us of his country at a time when it was exceptionally important that both nations should have a knowledge and understanding of their mutual problems and interests."

At a Crucial Time

President Roosevelt also authorized a special statement on the event, in which he drew attention to the fact that Lord Lothian died at an especially crucial moment in Anglo-American cooperation. He said:

"I am deeply shocked and grieved at the news of the death of Lord Lothian, the British Ambassador. It was my good fortune to count him as a personal friend over a period of many years. As Philip Kerr and the private secretary of the wartime British prime minister he displayed an understanding of and friendship for the United States that continued throughout his long and distinguished career. As the Marquess of Lothian he continued his many contacts and friendships with this country and made a real contribution toward understanding between our peoples.

"His appointment as British Ambassador last year was a fitting and natural recognition by his government of the lifelong efforts of a great figure toward good relations between our two countries.

"Lord Lothian's tragic death deprives his country of a tried and true public servant at the peak of his usefulness. All of the people of this country who were privileged to know him will join with me in mourning his untimely passing."

Secretary Hull cabled special instructions to the American charge d'affaires in London to convey "my sorrow and sense of great personal loss" to Lord Halifax, Minister of Foreign Affairs.

"A Great Loss" to U. S.

Terming the envoy's death "a great loss to his country and ours," Secretary of War Stimson, who knew Lord Lothian during the World War, said:

"During the past critical months it has been to me a great satisfaction to have a man of his character, ability and patriotism representing the British government in its many important negotiations with the War Department."

Lord Lothian and Secretary Stimson were closely associated in the American effort to supply Britain with war planes.

Navy Secretary Knox also expressed his regret at the news of the diplomat's death.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau said that England has lost a "very able and sincere Ambassador."

Members of Congress, Cabinet members and other high public figures were one in expressing deep sadness at the envoy's passing.

First Lady Distressed

Other comment:

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt: "I am very much distressed over the sudden tragic death of Lord Lothian. I want very much to express my deepest sympathy to his family."

Secretary of Interior Ickes: "He knew America as few Europeans do. He was thoroughly democratic, knew our American habits and psychology and was very popular here. His death is a very severe loss."

James V. Forrestal, Acting Secretary of the Navy: "The death of Lord Lothian deprives us of a friend, one whose broad knowledge of world affairs will be greatly missed, and whose energetic personality brought closer the ties of the empire he represented and the United States."

Representative McCormack, of Masssachussets, Speaker pro tem of the House: "His straightforwardness, together with his ability, made a profound impression in America."

Praises His Simplicity

Chairman Bloom of the House Foreign Affairs Committee: "His simplicity, his kindliness and his unselfish devotion to the cause of the Anglo-American understanding have won him a high place among England's envoys to this country."

Senator Austin (Republican), of Vermont, the acting minority leader: "I hope his death will not disturb the equanimity of the relations between this country and the United Kingdom."

Senator Davis (Republican), of Pennsylvania, who lives next door to the British Embassy: "He was a fine man and a good neighbor."

Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, who was in Washington on refugee matters, also expressed deep regret.

Dr. Edmund I. Kaufman, president of the Zionist Organization of America, recalled "the sympathetic understanding which the Marquess of Lothian has manifested for Jewish aspirations for the reestablishment of a Jewish home in Palestine." Dr. Kaufman said that American Zionists were "deeply grieved."

Clarence Streit's Tribute

Clarence Streit, author of a plan of federal union for democracies: "Lord Lothian stood out as a British champion of the most American of political principles—federal union. As a young man he helped heal the wounds of the Boer War by organizing the Union of South Africa along the model of the United States.

"At his death he was seeking to heal the wounds of the War of Independence by urging the British democracies to organize with us Americans a nucleus world government on the basic principles of the Declaration and Constitution which united our 13 States."

Windsor "Profoundly Shocked"

Miami Beach, Fla., Dec. 12 (AP).—The Duke of Windsor, governor of the British colony of the Bahamas, was "profoundly shocked" today at the death of Lord Lothian.

"The duchess and I are profoundly shocked to hear of the sudden death of Lord Lothian," he said. "His passing at this time will be a great loss to both our countries and for whom he labored so unceasingly in the cementing of friendly relations."

N.A.M. Pledges Full Backing For Defense

Association Elects Fuller, Curtis Co. Head, as President

By the Associated Press

New York, Dec. 12.—The National Association of Manufacturers, representing 7,600 firms throughout the Nation, pledged itself today to cooperate fully with the Government in the national defense program.

Walter D. Fuller, president of Curtiss Publishing Co., Philadelphia, was elected president of the association.

Some 4,000 delegates to its annual convention, the forty-fifth "congress of American industry," unanimously adopted this pledge:

"1. To continue to defend against attack from any source the American concept of freedom—constitutional representative democracy; private enterprise, and civil and religious liberty, including freedom of speech and freedom of the press;

"2. To exert its utmost effort in cooperation with the Government to carry out the program of national defense with all possible speed and efficiency;

"3. To maintain at the same time, as far as possible, production of goods and services to meet normal needs;

"4. To do its full part to prevent or cushion a threatened postwar economic depression by supporting and following practices which will contribute to the maintenance of a healthy economic life; and

"5. To continue to promote, within industry, recognition and fulfillment of the economic and social responsibilities which industrial management shares with other groups for the improvement and advancement of the general welfare."

Preparedness Stand

Concerning military preparedness, the association membership stated:

"Three major problems are involved:

"1. To determine the vital interests to be defended, and how far beyond our continental borders these interests extend. This is the responsibility of government.

"2. To determine the nature and size of the military establishment, and the equipment and supplies required. This also is the responsibility of government.

"3. To produce the required equipment and supplies. This is the task of industry—of America at work."

Prior to adopting this platform the delegates heard Dr. Carl Snyder, economist, warn that each totalitarian nation has come into being as a result of breakdowns of industrial systems.

"In 1931," he said, "Germany went through a banking and industrial crisis closely paralleling that of our own. I have always thought it was this crash which paved the way for Hitler, just as our depression paved the way for the New Deal and all its fantastic concomitants.

"In chasing will-'o-the-wisps of 'social improvement,' we have literally thrown away in 11 years a sum equal to our entire industrial capital."

Reed Tells of Progress

Philip D. Reed, chairman of the board of General Electric Co., described the present rise in industrial activity and said:

"The great bulge in the purchasing power of 50,000,000 workers will not reach its peak for some time to come.

"It is important that as these billions of additional dolars begin to be spent, they be absorbed not by higher prices for a limited supply of useful goods, but by a greater volume of these goods.

"There will be specific products and industries that, under the pressure of defense requirements, will not be able to respond in full. For this reason, and also with an eye to the day when we will be riding the other side of the curve, steps should be taken to conserve a considerable part of this purchasing power for a rainy day."

Urging promotion of the sale of "baby bonds," he suggested such savings would relieve "some part of the impending pressure on the producers of useful goods."

Col. Philip B. Fleming, wage and hour administrator, warned the industrialists that "enforcement of this act is as certain as death and taxes."

Warning that "our inspector will soon be around," he advised them: "When you go home, be sure to put your house in order."

John R. Steelman, director of conciliation of the Department of Labor, expressed opposition to compulsory arbitration of labor disputes and told the meeting defense industries were receiving priority in the settlement of labor troubles.

Edward A. Tamm, assistant director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said that the FBI has the question of sabotage and espionage well in hand.

"Blockades," he said, "are ready to be sprung into position should the time come when fifth columnists openly embark upon a campaign of destruction."

Drowned Youth Found in Bay

Ocean City, Dec. 12 (AP).—The body of Edward Jackson, 21, one of two men drowned when their boat was swamped in Isle of Wight Bay, was found today by Coast Guardsmen after a 20-hour search.

Samuel Quillen, acting commander of the Coast Guard station, said Jackson's body was found about 1½ miles south of the point where the boat was discovered filled with water early yesterday.

Guardsmen continued to search for the body of Frank Lewis, 22, Jackson's companion.

Life Insurance Report of SEC Is Assailed

'Incomplete,' Says Institute Head of Forthcoming Statement

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, Dec. 12.—Holgar J. Johnson, president of the Institute of Life Insurance, described today as "hopelessly incomplete" the Securities and Exchange Commission's forthcoming report on life insurance.

"Great gaps were left in the fundamental information (and) the insurance men were allowed only a very limited opportunity to fill in these gaps," he said in a prepared address to the Pittsburgh Association of Life Underwriters.

He said that when the SEC's hearings on the life insurance field were completed "it was apparent that many facts had been omitted, many were glossed over lightly, many were totally ignored and many were actually interpreted to a meaning precisely opposite to their true meaning."

Explaining that he based his comments on published summaries of the report, he declared it had misinterpreted the "real facts" in its "implication" that the insurance companies sterilize the funds they receive and prevent them from flowing into new enterprises where the element of venture or risk is present.

He cited figures to show that this year the life insurance companies had put more than $3,500,000,000 into such investments as local and Federal Government bonds, railroad, industrial and public utility securities and real estate mortgages.

Transfer of Forest Service To Interior Department Is Out

Tugwell Reported to Have Declined Headship Till Status in Agriculture Branch Is Clearly Defined

By Robert C. Albright

Post Staff Writer

The President has assured a high-ranking Administration Senator that he has no plans to transfer the United States Forest Service from the Agriculture to the Interior Department.

Inquiries were made on behalf of an interested senatorial group following revival of reports that the shift would highlight a forthcoming reorganization order.

A continuing tug-of-war for the agency between Agriculture and Interior departments, meanwhile, complicated Mr. Roosevelt's search for a permanent chief of the coveted agency.

It was learned that Rexford Guy Tugwell, former Resettlement Administration head and a prominent figure in Mr. Roosevelt's old "brain trust," was offered the post but that he declined.

Might Change Decision

Tugwell was reported unwilling to take over Forest Service direction so long as there was any controversy over where it was headed or in what Government department it will wind up.

It was indicated his decision might be otherwise if the offer is renewed after the controversy is ended and the agency is permanently established in one department or the other.

Tugwell resigned both as head of the old Resettlement Administration and as Undersecretary of Agriculture in November, 1936, to become executive vice president of the American Molasses Co. Subsequently he left that concern to go with the New York City planning commission. He has made frequent visits to Washington both during the campaign and since the election and his friends confidently expect him to appear here again in an official role.

The vacancy has not been filled since the death of the former chief, F. A. Silcox, a year ago. In the interim, Earle H. Clapp has been acting chief and has strong support for permanent appointment to the post if it is kept under Agriculture. Forest Service employes favor an appointment within the service.

Order Was Drawn

Struggle between Secretary of Interior Ickes, who believes as a conservation agency the Forest Service should come under Interior, and former Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, who considers it an Agricultural function, has continued for years. It became a highly personal matter of dispute between Wallace and Ickes. Since Wallace's election as Vice President, Secretary of Agriculture Wickard has continued his efforts to hold the agency where it is.

A showdown was threatened last year, when an order was actually drawn and on the President's desk to transfer the unit. The order was never issued but the behind-the-scenes contest kept up.

Recent reports that the transfer would figure in another order before the reorganization act expires January 20 brought the Senate's so-called Forest Service bloc, opposing the transfer again into action. Assurances were sought that the service will be kept where it is. An Administration Senator undertook the mission to the White House to find out, and was informed that no such order is contemplated.

No proposals as yet have been made to extend the reorganization act beyond the Inaugration day expiration date. Senator James F. Byrnes of South Carolina, chairman of the Senate Reorganization Committee, was out of town yesterday but Chairman John J. Cochran, of the House Reorganization group said extension plans have not been discussed.

Fire in Senate Mail Room Put Out Posthaste

Fire broke out in the postoffice sorting room of the Senate Office Building at 7:25 o'clock last night, filling the building corridors with smoke.

Eight pieces of fire apparatus and the fire rescue squad answered the alarm and the blaze was extinguished with damage to two empty mail sacks. All senatorial mail is handled in the room, but officials said all letters had been cleared an hour before the alarm was turned in by Sylvester Lee, 41, of 504 G street Northeast, a porter.

Firemen said they believed a cigarette started the blaze.

53 Bank Officials Accepted As Volunteer Draft Advisers

Assigned to Area Boards in Capital, They Will Help Selectees to Reply To Questionnaires, in Other Ways

Fifty-three Washington bank officials, who volunteered for duty in the District's selective service setup, have been appointed associate members of the Advisory Board for Registrants, it was announced last night.

The new members will serve with each local board and assist registrants to answer classification questionnaires and otherwise comply with selection requirements. There will be two to a board except in populous areas 8, 13 and 14, where three will serve.

The associate members were named after the District of Columbia Bankers Association notified Chairman Spencer Gordon of the organization's desire to help operate the Washington military training machinery.

Besides Gordon members of the board are Charles F. Wilson, vice chairman; Howard S. LeRoy, secretary; Stanley D. Willis, and Charles H. Houston.

1—William R. Hagan, 2208 Fortieth Place Northwest, and Thomas H. Reynolds, 1407 Foxhall Road Northwest, both of the National Metropolitan Bank.

2—Luis F. Corea, 4800 Dalton Road, Riggs National Bank, and Walter A. Crist, 504 Kennedy-Warren, Washington Loan & Trust Co.

3 Children Found Slain, Mother Held For Mental Tests

Fresno, Calif., Dec. 12 (AP).—Three small children were found slain in their beds today. Their mother, Mrs. Lillian Edwards, her arm slashed with a butcher knife, was placed under observation in county hospital.

Police Chief Raymond T. Wallace said Mrs. Edwards attempted suicide.

The children were Susan, 11; Donald, 6, and Veryl Ann, 9. Dan Lung, captain of detectives, said a medical examination was necessary to determine whether they were poisoned or strangled. A policeman found three bottles of poison spray on their bedroom floor. Lung said sheets were wrapped around the children's necks.

Neighbors said Mrs. Edwards had returned to her home about two weeks ago after treatment in a private hospital in San Francisco. The husband and father, Kenneth Edwards, an electrical supply salesman, was away from home.

Woman Accused In Fatal Shooting Of Oyster Tonger

Gloucester Courthouse, Va., Dec. 12 (AP).—Commonwealth's Attorney George P. Dehardit said today Mrs. Bessie Thomas, wife of a waterman, had been charged with murder in the fatal shooting of Jinius Stubblefield, 30, at his home Tuesday night.

Preliminary hearing has been set for Wednesday, December 18.

Stubblefield, oyster tonger and crabber, died in a Newport News hospital last night of wounds inflicted by bullets from a .32-caliber revolver.

Dehardit said Stubblefield was shot three times, through the chest, abdomen and hand. Dehardit said Mrs. Thomas stated before him and Sheriff E. P. Rhodes, of Gloucester, that she fired the shots.

Maximum of 82 To Answer 2d Draft Call Here

Original Estimate Was 300; New Quota Would Make Total 133

A maximum of 82 Capital selectives, far less than the number anticipated, will answer the Nation's second quota call in early January, Gen. Albert L. Cox, District Selective Service executive, announced yesterday after unofficial advices from Third Corps Area headquarters.

The second induction will, if the peak estimate of 82 is followed, boost the District's contribution to the citizen armies to 133.

This compares with 450 men scheduled for swearing-in in the first two calls before unforeseen delays in housing construction at the Fort George G. Meade, Md., reception center slowed down the program.

Originally, Selective Service mobilization experts had planned to induct 150 in the first call and 300 in the second. Only 51 District men went into service in the November 28-29 call.

Regulars Make Way for Selects

While the branch of the Quartermaster General's Office supervising construction at the nearby Maryland reception center refused to comment when asked if cantonments for the new selectees would be ready, Third Corps Area officials indicated some makeshift arrangement might be required to house them.

Eleven hundred regular soldiers vacated brick barracks two weeks ago, moving into tent encampments, to make way for the selectees from the District, Maryland, Virginia and Pennsylvania.

All local boards have sent out and had returned to them ample questionnaire forms to cover their expected quotas for the second call.

Many of the units have already been classified in Class 1-A and put through physical examinations sufficient registrants for the January induction.

However, while many of these registrants were volunteers, with Board No. 3, smallest in the city, reporting six, other units will have to draft men to fill their quotas, it is expected.

Meanwhile, more than 100 State Selective Service directors began a three-day conference on all phases of military training at national headquarters, Twenty-first and C Streets Northwest.

Maj. Snow's Views

The selection heads heard officials reiterate the fact that deferments for dependency and occupational reasons must be decided on the merits of each case.

In effect suggesting a liberal interpretation of regulations for dependency deferments, Maj. Gordon Snow, of the manpower division, of national headquarters, asserted there is more involved than mere dependency upon earned income of registrants as expressed in terms of dollars and cents.

"There is," he said, "the question of the dependency of a wife or children on husband or father for other than his pocketbook." Moral leadership and the protection of the family are involved, he declared.

At the same time, unconfirmed reports said 300 officers and men of Washington's Fifth Marine Reserve Battalion, now in training at Quantico, Va., will soon receive duty assignments for Caribbean posts. They will sail for Cuba January 2, it was said.

In one of its first two cases, the Appeals Board here affirmed a decision of local Board No. 20, calling up a man claiming dependency deferment. A Government employe, the registrant has an income of $2,000 a year, while his wife earns $1,440, it was said.

U. S. Taxable Note Issue Is Sold Out

By the Associated Press

Secretary Morgenthau said yesterday that investors bought all the $500,000,000 of the Treasury's first wholly taxable note issue—and asked for more.

He was referring to a new issue of five-year national defense notes bearing ¾ of 1 per cent interest. Although subscription books for the issue closed Wednesday midnight, accurate figures on the total subscriptions were unavailable late yesterday.

Morgenthau said, however, that he was "so delighted" with the volume of subscriptions shown in preliminary reports that he had sent a radiogram to President Roosevelt some place in the Caribbean Sea telling him of the success.

At the Capitol opinion was divided on the new Treasury policy, under which officials have said fully taxable securities will be issued to the full extent of existing laws, and Congress will be asked to remove tax exemptions from all future securities. The officials have said that the present law, enacted in 1917 but never used before, authorizes full taxation only in the case of Treasury notes, usually securities maturing in from one to five years.

Senator Clark (Democrat), of Missouri, praised Morgenthau's handling of the new issue, and said the Secretary "had placed squarely in the lap of the Congress" the question of taxing future Federal securities issues.

Senator Austin (Republican), of Vermont, acting minority leader of the Senate, said Morgenthau had used a "doubtful power" and saddled taxpayers with an "additional cost of $2,500,000 a year" because of higher interest rates.

Rep. Ford Wants C.I.O. Chiefs Jailed described the alleged quotation as "fantastically untrue."

To Hillman's defense came Representative Jerry Voorhis, liberal Democrat from California, who took exception to some of Ford's statements and pointed out that:

"Hillman told the C. I. O. (at its recent Atlantic City convention) that the first business in America was the business of national defense. That was one of the most important steps ever taken by an American labor leader."

Denouncing "exorbitant" union fees being charged workmen seeking employment in some building trades, Representative Taber (Republican), of New York, asserted that a shortage of skilled labor was retarding the construction of barracks and aviation and munitions factories.

Leveling his fire particularly against the "walking delegates," Taber shouted that "it is about time that the Secretary of Labor was instructed by the President that those regulations were intended for the benefit of the working man and not for the benefit of the walking delegate."

Citing the case of David W. Thomas, itinerant electrician who allegedly could not get a defense job because he was unable to pay a $300 initiation fee, Taber said there were "many other cases where people were unable to secure employment because they were required to pay exorbitant fees to join the union."

Taber also suggested that Defense Advisory Commissioners William S. Knudsen and Edward Stettinius should be given "positions of authority so they can accomplish something for national defense."

It was indicated yesterday that the House Judiciary Committee will consider the controversy over union fees in connection with its study of possible new legislation to prevent strikes in defense industries.

Army Industrial School Will Graduate 75

Seventy-five Regular and Reserve officers of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps will be graduated from the Army Industrial College here tomorrow.

The four-and-one-half-month course covered all economic phases of warfare and the national defense program and the graduates will be assigned to posts in connection with procurement here and at arsenals.

OUR OWN LITTLE REFUGEE—Typical of youngsters in families aided through The Post's Neediest Families Fund is this child. Let's save them from an unhappy Christmas

tunity to remain together—the best Christmas gift they could hope for—and would rescue other neediest families from their emergencies. Contributions should be sent as soon as possible. Help must be prompt before the families' burdens become too heavy to bear.

The plight of 5-year-old Alice—she and her mother are homeless and are among the neediest families—prompted a $10 check yesterday "in memory of another litle girl named Alice."

A group of young people yesterday gave a new chance to a young couple, 22 and 19 years old, with a check for $50. The Y. M.-Y. W. Recreation Committee chose Family No. 18 to aid with its contribution, which will assure rent and food until the husband gets the steady job which is in prospect.

Ann M. Schiel, chairman of the committee, wrote: "We have always made a charitable donation at Christmas, and have used various methods of giving. This year we are giving to The Post Fund . . . We feel that our giving will be in a very constructive form, especially if we have word through the year of how 'our family' is faring."

Joseph Cherner, who sent a $50 check, wrote that The Post's appeal for the neediest families "has awakened a desire in our organization to join with you in your effort to bring happiness and increased faith to those who, without assistance of this kind, would probably lose hope in their future.

The next two families on the neediest list are presented today:

Family No. 21

An automobile accident, which crippled him temporarily, and the death of his wife brought Mr. B to the family agency for the first time to ask for help. Before these misfortunes he had been able to care for his wife and two children on his earnings as a carpenter. Now, unless help comes quickly, the home will have to be broken up and the children scattered.

After he was struck by an automobile and his pelvis was fractured, he had to be in the hospital for a year and a half. Medical bills were met from the Community Chest hospitalization fund. Unemployment compensation, plus $25 a month accident compensation, took care of his wife and children, but now the maximum unemployment compensation has been paid, so he has only the $25 a month income left.

This fall the second misfortune happened. Mrs. B. Contracted pneumonia and died, leaving him alone to care for the two small children. A cousin of Mrs. B., a middle-aged woman, has agreed to make her home with the family and care for the house and children for her board and $5 a week.

Mr. B. feels that he can continue to support his family as soon as he is able to return to work, which should be in three or four months. One more operation is necessary before he will be restored to health. health.

Fifty dollars a month for the next four months is needed to help him keep his family together.

Family No. 22

Ten children and a wife to support on $57.20 a month! An almost impossible task, but Mr. W., a World War veteran, has nearly worked out a solution. All he needs is a little help at this time, and he can carry his responsibility until Frank, 17, and Randy, 16, the two oldest boys, have finished their high school courses and can get jobs to help out.

Here is the situation: Mr. W., now past middle age, is without any real skill, having worked all his life as a laborer and carpenter's helper. His age is against him, and he must be content with his WPA job, since his efforts to find work in private industry have failed.

Back in 1936 when he received his soldier's bonus, he resolved to invest it in a home for his family. It was not enough to buy a whole house, of course, but it was enough to make the down payment on a lot. Lumber and nails and paint he was able to buy on time.

After working all day on his laborer's job, he would come home in the evening, get the two eldest boys and out to the lot they would go, to build their home. As soon as three rooms were finished, the family moved in, so the rent money could be used to meet the installments on the lumber. Now there are five rooms, and the whole family is proud of it. Little by little, Mr. W. has reduced his indebtedness. The money for the payments was put aside out of every pay check before the family gave any thought to food or clothes.

This fall, however, Mr. W. was ill for five weeks with influenza. The payments fell behind and a bill at the grocery piled up. He is back at work now, but there is no chance of his catching up without help.

Meanwhile, the children are cutting down on their food, because money is so scarce. Undernourishment in a family of ten children will become a complicated problem unless it can be headed off with immediate help.

Just $148 would clear it all up, would enable the family to hold on to their little home, would pay the overdue lumber bill and help them to catch up with the grocery account. Then the whole family could face the future with confidence.

Case certified and help administered by American Legion welfare department. Amount needed: $148.

E. T. Stuart Dies; Battlefield Donator

Philadelphia, Dec. 12 (AP).—Edward Tobey Stuart, 64, retired Girard Trust Co. executive, died in University Hospital last night. He was operated on last October and suffered a relapse two weeks ago.

In 1930, Stuart bought the Landram farm at Spottsylvania, Va., including the famous "Bloody Angle" Civil War battlefield. He ceded the four-acre "Bloody Angle" tract to the Federal Government two years later as a memorial park. Stuart was considered an authority on Civil War battlefields.

four of these resumed the march before their organizations were settled in camp.

The 400 tanks were the largest concentration of this type of combat vehicles ever undertaken in the United States.

Gen. Patton, obviously highly pleased by the performance of the division, asserted "there is nothing in the world equal to it."

He said the division was modeled somewhat along the lines of the German panzer divisions but with "improvements." The two American armored divisions are more powerful "than anything in Europe," he said, with equipment superior both in performance and fire power.

Scout cars and combat cars are sturdied, with a mechanical device for ditch and embankment climbing "that nobody in Europe has," he added.

The second armored division moved ready to fight in any direction, on the ground or in the air. Combining training with the trip, the division sent observation cars ahead, aided by aviation.

Radio kept the officers in constant communication with all units. One tank column alone stretched over 8 miles of highway. Troops were alert for "enemy" on the flanks as well as ahead.

Overcast skies apparently kept "enemy" aviation grounded, but, as military police proceeding the division marked off highways and blocked cross streets, crowds gathered.

Schools turned out when the first column roared by and the children lined the roads cheering and waving wildly. Negro field hands abandoned their plows and hurried for a closer look. Two or three staring croppers crowded the doorway of nearly every cotton patch shanty. Grinning tank drivers opened their sirens, made their machines fairly hop through the little towns.

More officers and men than first announced, 10,520, made the trip which tomorrow will take them to Panama City, Fla.

terest, generally, in fire prevention.

Membership will be kept to a minimum, inducting only men with an active interest in firefighting, Dr. Gookin said. Only responsible members are wanted. In other words, "the association wants no pyromaniacs, arsonists or fifth columnists. Each person whose name is put up for membership will be investigated thoroughly," it was said.

Dr. Gookin calls the attraction for fire apparatus and chasing blazes his hobby, one dating back to his residence in Massachusetts when he headed the "Box 52 Association," an organization similar to the one being formed here.

Officers of the Friendship Association are Dr. Gookin, chief; Lester H. Steinem, attorney, deputy chief; James W. Hurlbut, chief treasurer, and Robertson Page, chief secretary.

Members to date include Milton D. Korman, District assistant corporation counsel; William K. Hutchinson, chief, Washington Bureau, International News Service; John Riseling, city editor, The Washington Post; J. J. Chisholm, 3511 Davenport Street Northwest; Bennett Busch, 1275 New Hampshire Avenue Northwest; Albert E. Steinem, 3821 Kanawha Street Northwest; Robert M. from Miami to New York. Both left at midnight.

Willkie declined to comment for publication on his plans for the future, but did not deny authoritative reports that he "will not go back as president of Commonwealth & Southern," a post he resigned to run against President Roosevelt, but would return to private law practice.

Tanned and apparently well rested by his Florida vacation, Willkie said he would return South for the holidays after making two speeches in the next few days, one an off-the-record appearance before the semi-annual dinner of the Gridiron Club here Saturday. He will speak next week, he said at a dinner celebrating the seventy-fifth anniversary of the University Club in New York.

Asked if he wanted to comment on Administration moves since the election he said:

"I'll have no public statement to make until I have something definite to say."

Former President Hoover, head of the American Committee on Food for the Five Small Democracies, reported progress in the campaign to induce Great Britain to lift the embargo on food imports by Nazi-occupied nations of Europe.

"It's a slow, hard job," he said, "but eventually we will get them something to eat."

like Roosevelt and Willkie workers, told the opposition:

"You fellows might just as well fold up and quit. It's in the bag for me."

Here's why:

Bigelow's wife, Mrs. Norma Bigelow, an employe of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, was born July 13, 1900. Furthermore, his daughter, Norma, reached this earth just 14 years and 13 months ago today—November 13, 1925.

Neither Norma nor her mother takes any stock in Friday the Thirteenth—"just another day," they say—but Bigelow, happily domesticated, is certain Fortune's smile is broadest when the thirteenth falls on Friday.

Bigelow, a streetcar and bus man for 22 years and now a driver on the Chillum Heights line, lives at 249 Farragut Street Northwest, a combination of street numbers that couldn't possibly do him any good in a crisis like this. So the writer moved over to 1313 Thirteenth Street.

He found the owner, Mrs. Edna Brown, and her son, Wilbur L. Brown, moving out of the house. But Mrs. Brown swore the address had nothing to do with her evacuation of the premises she has occupied for four years. The doctor, she said, told her she had to stop caring for the furnace. Brown said, "Thirteen means nothing to me, I have bad luck all the time."

This writer, however, is bound to believe there's something to be said for Bigelow's attitude on numbers, because the writer's father was born on this date, though a superstitious parent prevailed upon the physician to record the birth as of Saturday, December 14. Furthermore, the writer's birthday—Friday, October 13—can be found in vital statistics records in the Lucas County, Ohio, courthouse.

"And if that isn't enough, Mr. Bigelow, my brother was born on a Sunday, but it was September 13, and my son was born on a Tuesday, but it was August 13," this expert explained.

"You'd better write a piece about yourself," said Bigelow.

Greeks Shatter Fascist Division

Greeks neared the coastal town of Chimara, gateway to Valona, after beating back a series of counterattacks that wound up with further Italian retreats.

From dawn until after dusk Thursday, powerful Italian contingents charged savagely at the advanced Greek lines southwest of Pogradetz and north of Moscopolis. Each wave of attack was flung back with machine gun fire and hand grenades. The deep snow was staned with the blood of Italian dead.

The wintry weather forced some curtailment of air activity. It was reported that Royal Air Force raids on Valona, Albania's second port, had rendered its facilities useless for the landing of troops or supplies.

The harbor jetties were said to have been broken in various places by bomb hits and an Italian army transport ship, sunk in the harbor under bombardment, was reported to be a serious obstruction to sea traffic in and out of Valona.

Defense And The N. A. M.

The National Association of Manufacturers has been holding its forty-fifth annual convention this week in New York. As usual, the convention discussions and speeches have been followed by adoption of resolutions expressing the views of the membership on public issues that concern industry. The N. A. M. has sometimes made the mistake of passing judgment upon governmental policies that belong in the political rather than the economic sphere of interest. In dealing with the relation of industry to problems of national defense, however, it has wisely concluded that the scope of the defense program, its ultimate objectives, and the nature and size of the military establishment are the responsibility of the Government. The special task of industry is "to produce the required equipment and supplies."

The resolutions are outstanding not only because they stress the obligations of industry to serve the community but also because they conceive of industry as embracing the entire working force of the Nation, including labor in factories, mines, shops and offices. In the past there has been an unfortunate tendency at times to talk as if the problems of industry were the concern of only owners and entrepreneurs. While the N. A. M. resolutions do not offer any concrete suggestions as to how employer and employe groups can cooperate more effectively to serve the Nation, they are a reflection of a more liberal attitude that augurs well for the future.

A call for moral and spiritual strength, for "a willingness to sacrifice immediate self-interest for the common welfare," introduced into the convention's deliberations a note of unusual solemnity that is appropriate, befitting the gravity of the times and the onerousness of the tasks that lie ahead of us. The N. A. M. conceives the duty of industry to be not only to put forth a maximum defense effort with a minimum impairment of living standards, but also to give thought to the problems of the future. Hence, a warning is issued against certain unwise practices which might make the transition from the period of rearmament to more normal peacetime pursuits unnecessarily difficult. And it is significant that the admonitions addressed to the public authorities against rash financial practices are paralleled by warnings to businessmen against overmortgaging the future and excessively building up inventories.

All the N. A. M. resolutions are highly generalized, as must be expected in view of the diverse and often conflicting interests of the membership. But there is unmistakable evidence of a desire to subordinate internal differences and to forget political animosities in order to fulfill the concluding solemn pledge to "work for the preservation of American institutions and the protection of America's future."

Celebrity

The new (1941) edition of Who's Who (British) contains exactly two and a half inches of small type under this heading: "Hitler, Adolf."

From a careful perusal of the items one learns that the gentleman's occupation is that of "head of the German state" and that his sidelines include the chancellorship and the command of all the German armed forces. The place and date of his birth are given as Braunau, Austria, April 20, 1889. His education is said to have included attendance at secondary schools in Linz and Graz and studies in "painting and architecture" at Vienna. It appears that he served in the German army during the first World War and that he was subsequently engaged in revolutionary activities, as a result of which he served a relatively brief term of imprisonment in a fortress. It also appears that he is the author of a work called Mein Kampf.

For the benefit of those who might be interested in making further inquiries, the subject's address is listed as Wilhelmstrasse 77, Berlin, W. 8, and also as Ober-Salzberg, Berchtesgaden, Bavaria.

In other words, the article is substantially identical with the one that has appeared under the same heading in all recent editions of Who's Who. Doubtless the editors acted with great wisdom in permitting it to remain. More and more Englishmen must be asking themselves these days: "Just who is this fellow Hitler that I hear everybody talking about?"

Lord Lothian

It was Great Britain's good fortune to have been represented in this country during the past 15 months by a man with the superb gifts of mind, heart and personality that characterized Lord Lothian.

His was no easy task. Even in piping days of peace the role of British Ambassador to the United States is no sinecure. It became a back-breaking assignment when the war broke out in September, 1939, a few days after Lord Lothian presented his credentials to President Roosevelt, and the burdens of the office have grown materially with each passing month. For, as the shadows of war broadened and deepened, as Hitler's conquest spread over the European continent, as Great Britain found herself isolated and fiercely attacked in her island fortress, the question of American aid became increasingly vital to the British. And the corollary which impressed itself on the American mind was that if Great Britain went under the security of the United States and the Western Hemisphere would be in imminent peril.

This natural affinity between American self-interest and British self-interest made Lord Lothian's task easier than it might otherwise have been. Nevertheless, a man less well informed about the complexities of American public opinion might easily have bungled his assignment. Lord Lothian knew the limits beyond which he could not transgress without imperiling his nation's cause in this country. But he also knew when to make a frank presentation of facts. For he had long ago given proof to the American people that he was a true friend and therefore justified in being candid. He knew when to flout the inhibitions of diplomacy and when to cut red tape.

Lord Lothian was not a professional diplomat. Nor was he an amateur in world affairs. In his youth he had served in the Colonial Office and was one of that exceedingly able group of young men (the late Lord Tweedsmuir was another) whom Lord Milner had summoned to South Africa to help in the reconstruction of that war-torn land. How effectively they did their work may be judged from the fact that 12 years after the Boer War the Union of South Africa was solidly lined up on the side of Great Britain. Later, Lord Lothian edited the Round Table, whose function it has been to foster imperial unity. During the World War and after he served as private secretary to Lloyd George and in that capacity watched the making of the Versailles Treaty. Between 1925 and 1939 he served as secretary of the Rhodes Trust and as such made frequent trips to the United States. Indeed, few British envoys have had a better training for the post of Ambassador to the United States than this tall and affable aristocrat.

Lord Lothian was to the manner born. The marquisate which he inherited a few years ago had its origin in the early eighteenth century. An earldom which he held dated from 1622. Yet Lothian was the most democratic of individuals. He loved people. And he found his greatest enjoyment in surrounding himself by individuals of all types and all points of view. At a time when Great Britain is rapidly throwing off the inhibitions of caste and class, Lord Lothian was almost the embodiment of the social revolution taking place in his homeland. He was a nobleman with a passion for democracy, an earnest believer in peace who wanted the war fought to a decision, a patriot who favored the abandonment of national sovereignty in favor of a world democratic union.

In a very real sense Lord Lothian was a casualty of the war. Since his return from England, where he went to get a first-hand view of what has been happening to his homeland, he had been working day and night. The British people have not been sparing themselves. Lord Lothian did not spare himself. Whatever the cause of his sudden death, the fatigue occasioned by overwork undoubtedly played its part.

History is certain to rank Lord Lothian with Lord Bryce as one of the greatest of British envoys to the United States. His untimely death is a severe blow to both countries. His place will be exceedingly difficult to fill.

Airport Planning

Announcement that the Civil Aeronautics Authority is preparing to spend $40,000,000 for an airport improvement program will allay fears that this important work is not being "tied into" the defense program as it should be. The WPA has spent considerable sums in developing airport facilities and is planning to spend a good deal more. While WPA airport developments have assisted our defense efforts, they were not originally planned with defense needs chiefly in mind. Like other work-relief projects, they had to be adapted to the type of labor available and in need of employment. And the location of sites as well as their development has inevitably been influenced by considerations not related to defense needs.

While the Civil Aeronautics Authority is careful to state that it will not permit its funds to be used in lieu of local contributions to WPA projects, it proposes to coordinate its activities with those of the WPA and other Federal agencies. That should assure better planning for development of airports with a view to their strategic importance and hasten the completion of work on desirable projects already started. Equally important, the projects to be undertaken have been pronounced essential to defense by a priorities board consisting of the Secretaries of War, Navy and Commerce.

The Balance Of Power

Fears that constitutional restraints have been unduly relaxed again came to the fore this week with the address of Jacob M. Lashly, president of the American Bar Association. It is unquestionably true that "there has been an important shift in constitutional doctrine" in recent years. The pendulum has swung from rigid interpretation of the organic law to a new conception of it that may well be expressed in the words of Justice Felix Frankfurter long before he ascended the bench.

"The courts," Mr. Frankfurter wrote, "should be a restraining, but not a hampering, force. Doubtless, grave mistakes in legislation will thus go unchallenged through the courts, but legislation is essentially empirical, experimental, and the Constitution was not intended to limit this field of experimentation." That view is patently predominant in the Supreme Court today. Our high tribunal probably imposes fewer restrictions upon Federal legislation than it has done in any previous period, except when the United States has been at war.

Unquestionably this fact tended to strengthen the demand in Congress for enactment of the Walter-Logan bill. As Mr. Lashly suggests, many legislators are eager to have the courts play a more active role in testing the constitutionality of legislative acts as well as the decisions of administrative agencies. Congress is now attempting to restrain numerous agencies which it previously created and endowed with power to operate with few restraints.

The Walter-Logan bill, now awaiting the President's signature or veto, thus represents sober second thinking on the part of legislators who acted hastily on many bills a few years ago. They now want to make it easier for the courts to uphold the basic elements of fair play in the relations of the citizen to the Government. Some see in the bill a means of holding in check the enormous powers that have been granted to executive agencies, and those checks seem the more important because of the wide latitude now open to Congress in passing economic and social legislation.

Insofar as the Walter-Logan bill would achieve a more reasonable balance between executive and judicial power it is desirable legislation. But there is a grave fallacy in the assumption that Congress may take any action which appears expedient at the moment and then rely upon the courts to preserve the balance of power which is the heart of our constitutional system. Many acts of Congress are never tested in the courts. Others may reach the Supreme Court only after unconstitutional powers have been exercised over a period of years. It is then impossible for the court to set aside an act of Congress without producing grave and far-reaching dislocations in the economic life of the country.

The late James M. Beck was fond of pointing out that the Supreme Court has "neither purse nor sword." By its own efforts it cannot possibly maintain a constitutional system in this country if Congress disregards the limitations on its powers and public opinion no longer demands rigid adherence to the Bill of Rights. So if our Federal system is disintegrating, the primary responsibility rests upon Congress and the Administration. The function of the court as a balance wheel in this system is of the utmost importance, but it must not be supposed that it is the sole agency on which the country must rely for the orderly development of constitutional government.

Fruits Of Arbitration

Pay increases for 3,200 employes of the Capital Transit Co. will be particularly welcome at this time of the year. From the public viewpoint, however, the method by which these increases were attained is of greater significance than the small additions to many workmen's salaries.

Differences between the company and the local branch of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway and Motor Coach Workers were settled by an arbitration board which conducted hearings for more than a month. The result is typical of what can be accomplished when management and labor lay their cards on the table and seek a reasonable adjustment of differences with the aid of experts.

BURIAL OF A DOG

Here by this turning of the barbed-wire fence,
In stony ground where men sow not nor reap,
I'll dig a little grave without pretense,
Nor wept with tears. I have no tears to weep.

Him gently in this hollow I'll lay down;
Cool earth upon his little grave I'll spread;
And I'll set here a tombstone, bare and brown,
A broken shingle from the chicken shed.

"Restraining Mr. Dies"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have just read your editorial, published in The Post of December 12, on the subject of the Committee on Un-American Activities. It seems to me to be so wide of the mark that I cannot refrain from comment on it.

In the first place it is self-evident, and always has been, that the task of enforcing the law and conducting any criminal prosecutions that may be indicated in connection with disloyal acts, sabotage or similar matters belongs to the Department of Justice and the FBI. It is equally obvious that the committee should do all in its power to assist in this work, and nothing to interfere with it.

But in drawing the conclusion that this renders the Dies Committee of no use or prevents it from giving the country a complete picture of subversive activities going forward in the country, it seems to me your editorial has entirely missed the whole point, both of the committee's existence and of the basis of its cooperation. The committee was created to investigate un-American activities including propaganda and activities of foreign agencies and foreign-controlled organizations in the United States. These activities are by no means confined to such things as constitute technical violations of law or acts of violence.

Indeed, one of our most serious problems is that of the purely propaganda field, the formation of "front" organizations for the promotion of "sweetness and light," or what not, and the attempt of totalitarian agents to confuse and interfere with American national unity. In most cases such activities do not constitute violations of our law. It is in this field that the committee has its place—a place which the Department of Justice cannot by its very nature fill.

It therefore seems to me that your editorial is completely wrong in saying that for the committee to work in this field, rather than in the field of law enforcement, would deprive the committee of its reason for existence. Such a statement is equivalent to saying that the entire job of exposure of technically legal activities of agencies of totalitarianism is not worth doing.

Beggars And Princes

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Under communism a prince may say to a beggar, "I am as good as you," but who in the devil would believe the prince? In fact, if reports be true, the prince might stand in danger of having his earthly days ended for saying such a thing.

J. J. SPERRY.

Mr. Matsuoka's 'Pure Old Japanism'

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: With one interesting exception Mr. Yosuke Matsuoka made a clear and intelligible statement of his policy as foreign minister, in his first conference with the foreign newspaper correspondents, at Tokyo, on December 9.

"We have many Japanese," he said (in that exception) "who were educated in your Western way of greed and oppression; but we are trying to get away from that, to get back to pure old Japanism."

Every educated Japanese knows that while "pure old Japanism" is real, it needs defining, just as "pure old Europeanism" would need to be defined.

I suppose that "old" Japanese history parallels "old" French history as closely as any. That is one of the resemblances which so fascinated the late elder statesman Prince Saionji that he made himself as nearly a Frenchman as anyone can who is not French.

Japan from the seventh century to the ninth very much resembled France of the troubadours, of courtly love and beauty, of poetry, music and religion, in the imperial court at Kyoto, with innumerable independent warrior nobles everywhere else.

Paralleling France's Louis XI who, by shrewdness and perfidy, broke the great barons and laid the foundations of absolute monarchy, various Japanese generalissimos successively concentrated all military and civil power in their own hands. In a rough parallel, Japan and France follow the same trends over the same historical periods. In France, Christianity has been a brake, to some extent, upon war, even when Christian princes provoked and promoted war.

There has been no such brake in Japan. Japan's exquisite culture has never gone beyond the home and into national affairs, beyond certain ancient rules of personal combat, again, parallel to the same rules of Christian chivalry. Japanese public war, however, domestic or foregin, during all Japan's evolution, has been ruthless and uncompromising. Every educated Japanese remembers the "mound of ears"—proof of the Japanese general's successful invasion of Korea, which he established by sending home casks of salted ears cut from the dead enemy.

"Pure old Japanism" in the sense of preservation of Japan's own fine culture, a beautiful thing, a thing of peace, is well, and more than well, worth preserving. "Pure old Japanism," in the sense of perfidious and ruthless war, is not worth preserving. Since Mr. Matsuoka's statement is aimed at us, it is a pity that there was no American newspaper correspondent present at his conference to ask him which type he meant.

Unfortunately there is considerable justification for the assumption of Japan's statesmen that American newspapermen and American Secretaries of State understand Japanese psychology as little as they understand Japanese history, and that Japanese statesmen can, therefore, get away with murder in their public statements.

Still, it is unworthy of the intelligence of a Japanese foreign secretary, condemning "Western greed and oppression" for his "new order in Asia," to link his country's fortunes with those of the Axis powers as being free from those qualities. None of us are or have ever been free of them, not the United States any more than Japan.

It is not too much to say that we are becoming faintly aware of it, but that even the keen minds of Japan still lag behind in the direction of the true "new order," and—according to Mr. Matsuoka—are returning, deliberately, to that old order of which Nazi Germany is the exponent and bearer, in direct antithesis to Japan's own old order which, if that is what he means by "pure old Japanism," is a very desirable thing and a true foundation stone for a valid "new order" in the world.

WILLIAM FRANKLIN SANDS.
Washington, Dec. 11.

Democracy's Duty

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The major question of today is the same as it was in 1915—world democracy is again attacked and by the same enemy. We have had ample proof now, as then, that the only reason we are not attacked first is the necessity of overcoming the countries standing between us, and not leaving enemies in the rear. Now, as then, they have worked overtime to lull us with soft words and have succeeded in preventing a coalition of democracies, so that what could not have then been done, might be done piecemeal.

With these designs in view, the enemy has carefully fostered any and all differences between the democracies, magnifying past petty quarrels so that real present dangers should be lost sight of. The pity of it is that so many individuals who would indignantly deny their actions are un-American, have, because of personal prejudices, been only too glad to seize upon this propaganda and spread it themselves, playing the enemy's game unconsciously perhaps, but nevertheless effectively, and so have become his unwitting tools.

The vital question is whether we really have the courage of our convictions, or whether we are satisfied to drown in a sea of appeasement for which we so readily condemn others? Can we continue to believe and loudly proclaim that we are the world's leading democracy and yet always be the last to take up its defense?

We know the only way to prevent these recurring attacks is to work together in unity and not, as after the last war, by proceeding to make the peace of the world a political football; that had we supported the world's efforts to organize peace instead of being the first to withdraw, and not encouraged others by our example to weaken the prestige of the peace effort, peace could have been preserved. We cannot wash our hands of the responsibility for the terrible fact that the smallest democracies are always the chief victims of democracy's enemy, because we cannot be depended upon to defend them from attack. The question, "Am I my brother's keeper?" cannot be answered by moral man in any other way than in the affirmative, and he also knows well the answer to the question, "Who, then, is my neighbor?"

Ability To Pay

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Coming right down to the point of Britain's ability to pay for goods without having to borrow the money we must make a distinction between Britain as a government and Britons, i. e., as the citizens of Britain. Individually and in concerted action as in companies, corporations, etc., the Britons or English as citizens are the wealthiest of all nations. But this is their private property and can only be taken over by Britain by way of taxation, and confiscation which would not only bankrupt its citizens but the government also. It seems to be the policy of Britain as a government to borrow the amount needed, leaving the wealth to the citizens for a continuation of their prosperity from which, by taxation they could repay the loan. This is one protection a citizen enjoys in a democracy only and it is worth fighting for.

Old Angler's Hostelry

"Lord, suffer me to catch a fish,
So large that even I,
When talking of it afterwards,
May have no need to lie."
—The Angler's Prayer.

I wonder if it was because I knew one of the world's most famous anglers, Dr. Henry Van Dyke, that I enjoyed my trip to the Old Anglers' Clubhouse so much?

Anything pertaining to angling conjures up the beautiful lithographs in the sporting goods catalogues and marinescapes of bass fighting the plug. Visions of rods, lines, nets, creels full of trout, fish leaping to the fly, the tide high or low, skiffs, wharfs and fishermen's shacks, float before one's eyes. But more than these are brought to me by Dr. Van Dyke himself, his lectures and his books, our family's fishing trips on Frenchmans Bay with a physician and his family. And I find myself quoting the philosophical sophistry of Van Dyke in his "Fishermen's Luck:" "There is nothing that attracts human nature more powerfully than the sport of tempting the unknown with a fishing line."

Those to whom the old inn and its environs have endeared themselves can appreciate the literal application of the above quotation.

At midnight, when burglars creep and fishermen hunt for night crawlers, a friend and I set out in her car for the old hostelry. En route we saw the yellow fisherman's moon hanging low over the Virginian hills. A few wisps of cloud scudded across its face, probably ghosts of great fishermen of a forgotten era, speeding to cast their bait before the break of dawn. We skimmed along Conduit Road past the David W. Taylor Naval Model Basin near Great Falls, Md., where Anglers' Hostelry is located. As soon as we arrived I literally stumbled upstairs to bed—ascending, descending and ascending again flights of stairs at different angles.

Next morning, after breakfast on one of the porches with which the house is surrounded, I started a tour of the inside, beginning with the front hall. This large, rambling structure was at first a clubhouse, then a rendezvous famous among local sportsmen for more than 50 years. In the hall is a framed oblong bearing the date of the club's incorporation and organization. It reads: "Anglers' Association of Washington, D. C. Organized November 17, 1870. Incorporated October 24, 1895." The rules follow and the names of the former directors and life members—14 of whom still survive. Many leaders in business and official life were included in the membership from time to time. A former President, an ardent bass fisherman, came here often with the president of the Fisherman's Club. Once they landed a handsome 7-pound small-mouthed bass. Under the roster one reads:

"Behold the fisherman. He riseth up early in the morning and disturbeth the whole household. Mighty are his preparations. He goeth forth full of hope. When the day is far spent, he returneth ... and the truth is not in him."

Opposite these are pictures of a large black bass, "Caught on the Fly," and a "Small-Mouthed Mendota Black Bass." I'm sure that if Martin Luther had seen these pictures he would have added bass to his pike reasoning: "God would never have created excellent pike so good to the taste if he had not intended them to be eaten."

Tradition and historical significance are said to mark the old clubhouse site as acquired from the Conestoga Tribe of Indians which roamed the nearby banks of the Potomac prior to their meeting with Capt. John Smith in 1608. In the dining room is a picture typical of the Chief of the Conestogas.

The oldest part of the building, the Log Room, originally constituted a simple, one-room cabin round which the other rooms are built. The ceiling is of hand-hewn beams taken by an early settler from the keels of abandoned canal barges in the adjoining Chesapeake & Ohio Canal, now a part of the new national park within a stone's throw of the old house. This canal was one of George Washington's achievements and linked Cumberland, Md., to the sea.

The Carrara marble mantle and fireplace in this Log Room were added, it is claimed, in 1812 when they were taken from the White House after the fire of the British occupation of Washington.

Passing from the old dining room I walked down the Potomac River along the old towpath beside the canal. Over this towpath, mules in single file once pulled the old canal barges. After such explorings, water from the old historical well near the walnut and persimmon trees in the side yard of the hostelry is refreshing. A number of United States Presidents have drunk from this old wooden-pipe well. The surviving members of the Anglers' Club refer with pride to Woodrow Wilson's regular visits and his praise of the water's health-giving qualities.

I wonder if George Washington did not often turn aside from this same well to enjoy things piscatorial. He may even have been a member of a previous Anglers' Club. Anyway, I hope he caught and Martha cooked for him a medium-sized bass or rockfish!

Chest Still Open

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Today on the street I overtook and passed a man who walked with the aid of two crutches. One foot touched the ground sufficiently to support his weight while he moved the crutches forward. The other, useless, dangled as though attached with a string.

At first inclined to pity, I noticed, in passing around this man, that he wore a red feather in his hat, and I remembered that physical condition is not the measure of a man; that many a physical cripple is a moral Colossus, towering above many a Goliath as Washington Monument above a molehill.

Incidentally, while the Community Chest campaign is closed, the Chest is not, and is not filled. It still is open for anyone who still has no feather—if he has a heart.

Hitler's Last Speech

THE ESSENCE of the whole Hitler propaganda is to create in the world the idea that nazism is inevitable and that there is no good trying to swim upstream. Hitler, we are encouraged to believe, is in league with secret forces—mysterious forces—emerging from the earth, from the Zeitgeist, from the machine age, from the spirit of the century, from the constellations of the stars, from immutable laws of nature, from biological urges, from the elemental and eternal. He is at once the servant of the rising masses, their master and their Messiah; he is the incorporation of a race whose day has come in history; he is the champion of the have-nots against the haves. He is the spirit of the folk. The universe cannot defeat him, for he is the universe.

THERE IS NOT the slightest good in trying to reconcile one speech of Hitler's with another speech of Hitler's because, since he is that remarkable and occasional apparition, a completely obsessed person, he is, by definition paradox.

"Far or forgot to me is near:
Shadow and sunlight are the same;
The vanished gods to me appear;
And one to me are shame and fame.
They reckon ill who leave me out;
When me they fly, I am the wings."

As Emerson put in the little poem entitled Brahma. Hitler is, in his own mind, Kismet; he is destiny. Destiny for you, and me, and the world.

Therefore, there is not the slightest reason why he should not be, at once, the champion of the strong against the weak, and the weak against the strong: the voice crying the coming of the superman, and the gentle shepherd of the exploited workers. For Hitler—in his own mind—includes all. He is the allness. In other words, he is the challenger of God. He is he who is chosen to fulfill destiny. Once it was merely the destiny of the German race; now it is the destiny of the peoples of the world.

TO UNDERSTAND the power of Hitler's propaganda, I am sure we have got to look away from Hitler and at our own minds. Hitler is nothing whatsoever except what other people have made him. He is the creation of masses of self-hypnotized people living in a world that has become profoundly intricate and complicated by reason of an unprecedented release of new forces through science and invention. We live in a world that we do not comprehend, since it was created by relatively few geniuses. We operate machines that we do not understand. We listen to radios, but cannot explain them to ourselves or our children. We drive motor cars 60 miles an hour but cannot repair them if they break down. We read learned articles about atomic energies, and we might as well be bushmen—most of us—trying to understand Shakespeare.

At the same time, we have been brought up, in this democratic world to believe that we know it all, or ought to. We don't. We are, therefore, not in control of our universe while thinking we ought to be.

Somehow the God of our childhood seems also very remote from this universe. He was benign, anthropomorphic and humane, concerned with justice and truth and other human attributes. But the universe we live in seems directed by demonic forces. Of course, it's not. They aren't demonic to the engineer. But to the layman what has happened in science in the last generation is impossible; ergo, nothing is impossible; strange creatures may, one day, invade us from Mars. Maybe Lucifer is really God; maybe the angels are all going to come tumbling out of heaven—maybe they will come in parachutes.

THE GREAT AGE of science and discovery is heading into a period of incredible superstition, I sometimes fear into an age of demon worship. The concepts of free will and intellectual control vanish. We are hypnotized into believing that there is no possible reason that can govern, since no one of us is intellectually capable of understanding all of it. Therefore, we instinctively feel it is not a creation of man but the result of "forces." Even our own conduct is determined for us, we are told, by chromosomes, glands, reflexes and traumas. If I am a liar and a thief, it is the result of too much thyroid or too little pituitary, or because my mother went to a party one night when I was three months old, and I was given a bottle instead of being nursed.

IF NO ONE BEARS any responsibility for his own actions, he has a longing to be dominated, particularly in a complicated world that he knows he cannot dominate himself. Without sanctions in our consciences, or in our reason—since there is so much of life that our reason cannot encompass—we look for the sanction of the "forces" that have taken the place of both conscience and reason. And up has risen an individual who claims a mysterious connection with them.

True that it is completely impossible to disentangle out of all his speeches and all his actions a single thread of logic. True that it is quite futile to try to understand the theory of his new order, which is at one moment an order for the liberation of the broad masses, and their merging into an all-European potpourri, and, at another, the creation of a strictly hierarchical structure of masters and slaves, with the various races all unscrambled and moved around by hundreds of thousands to various parts of the continent: Whatever the new order may be will depend upon demonic inspiration in communion with the mysterious forces, and will be destiny; therefore unescapable, and therefore desirable. That is what it is hoped we will feel.

IN OTHER WORDS, Hitler is riding the wave of the future, and Mrs. Lindbergh writes a little book, a National best seller, which calls itself a "confession of faith," and the faith is that destiny is going to get us, and there is really nothing we can do about it, except to lie down on the wave when it comes along.

MY OWN HIGHLY skeptical eyes regard the wave of the future as 80-ton tanks and a formidable fleet of Heinckels and Messerschmidts, which were not built out of biological urges or waves of the broad masses, but by millions of very competent German workers and a lot of engineers and technicians who had been sold on a successful war. Whether the wave of the future engulfs the world will depend on who has airplanes and who has tanks. Of course, if nobody makes them because they think they cannot buck a Zeitgeist, why the wave of the future will certainly go rolling along.

HITLER'S ENGINEERS and strategists evidently don't believe in the inevitability of the wave of the future, because if they did they'd just ride on it, instead of propelling it with a quite incredible amount of metal which they have been busily accumulating for years and years. The mysterious forces are very tangible over London. And an amazing refreshment comes from England, for the simple reason that the British still laugh at Hitler. His bombs are no jokes, but his mysterious forces are nuts.

Hitch Develops In Refugee Plan

By the Associated Press

An apparent hitch developed yesterday over a proposal by the Virgin Islands to offer shelter there to European political refugees.

Secretary of the Interior Ickes told his press conference that he favored the plan, but that the State Department could not persuade itself to support it.

Secretary Hull, in turn, told his press conference, "I don't know anything about it."

Both referred to a resolution adopted by the islands' civic councils, and forwarded to the White House and to the Interior Department offering a home on the islands to self-supporting refugees from Europe's wars.

"I think it is regrettable to create the impression that the right of asylum for political refugees, of which this country used to be so proud, should die of inanition," Ickes said.

A Cautious Program

THE EXPORT-IMPORT BANK has granted a $60,000,000 credit to Argentina. With the $50,000,000 just allocated from the dollar stabilization fund, this will give Argentina $110,000,000 with which to buy goods from this country.

This is not enough, however, to balance Argentina's trade with us. At present levels, our exports to Argentina exceed our imports from there by about $150,000,000 of $160,000,000 annually. Even with the credit we are now advancing, the books will not balance unless we buy more Argentine goods or unless they buy less of ours or ship gold to us.

These are the largest credits granted under our program of giving emergency financial aid to Latin America. Their ratio to the full need indicates that, contrary to accusations from various sources, this program is on the conservative side.

The need of most of the Latin-American nations for emergency financial aid arises, in the first instance, from the loss of about 40 per cent of their normal export markets in Europe. If British purchases are cut down, as they may well be during the coming year to save pounds and shipping space, the loss of normal markets will be even heavier.

ALSO AS A RESULT of the war, Latin America must now buy here many manufactured products which it formerly obtained from the other side of the Atlantic. The old trade triangles have been broken or flattened. At the same time that their need for our products increases, most of the Latin-American nations must also find ways of paying us directly for imports which we were formerly paid for in triangular clearances involving Europe. As we can't or won't—mostly the former—suddenly increase our imports enough to balance this trade, the need for credits becomes obvious.

It is estimated that credits of from $300,000,000 to $500,000,000 annually would be needed to enable Latin America as a whole to flourish during the war emergency period. If the Export-Import Bank acceded to the rising pressure of American exporters, the figure might go even higher. But the question of capacity to repay is being kept in mind. As a result the total amount disbursed during the coming year probably will be nearer $200,000,000 than $300,000,000.

Individual projects are carefully examined by the Export-Import Bank, especially in the smaller and financially weaker countries. Especially favorable attention is given to projects which will either help the Latin-American nations to become less dependent industrially, or will increase production of items which we want to buy. Industrialization will decrease the dependence of Latin-American nations on the sales of raw materials to Europe. Latin-American industries are now booming, in fact, due to the curtailment of imports from Europe by the blockades.

THIS LENDING program is being criticized by some people who had a hand in, or have reason to remember, the big Latin-American lending spree of American private finance during the 1920s. The question is asked: Why lend more to nations which cannot meet payments on what they already have borrowed?

The quickest answer on the purely business side perhaps is that temporary inability or failure to pay, due to the depression and the war, does not mean eventual incapacity to pay. By and large, Latin America can look forward to immense economic development. Brazil alone has vast resources which have hardly been scratched.

In some way the economic resources of Latin America will be developed. The less aid we give, the more receptive the Latin-American nations are likely to be to aid from the other side of the Atlantic.

IN ADVANCING credits, the Export-Import Bank has not been indifferent to the interests of holders of outstanding private loans. It has been cool to the nations which have seemed unwilling to go as far as they can toward meeting these earlier obligations. It has also been cool to those nations which have gone in for expropriating foreign properties without making prompt or adequate arrangements to pay for them. There has been no loan to Bolivia, and there is only one small credit of $500,000 for Mexico on the active list.

Even if this Latin-American lending program were not sound banking, it would be worth in military and diplomatic ways all that it costs us. However, Warren Pierson, president of the Export-Import Bank, and Jesse Jones, seemed to be intent on making it good banking also. On the record so far, they seem to be far better practitioners of banking than were most of the private financial houses which floated Latin-American loans during the '20s.

Life And Death Of The Federal Theater

"WE'VE GOT A LOT of actors on our hands," Harry Hopkins, who was handling relief for the Federal Government, told Hallie Flanagan, who was directing the Vassar Experimental Theater, in February, 1934. "I still hang on to the idea that unemployed actors get just as hungry as anyone else," he told her again, in May, 1935, when she returned from studying the modern theater in Italy and the ancient theater of Greece . . . So she went to Washington to direct the Federal Theater Project, whose drama she tells so breezily and bitterly and wittily in "Arena" (Duell, Sloan & Pearce, $3).

She is breezy because she is Hallie Flanagan. She is bitter because she saw what was to her an American cathedral of folk art blasted by a combination of shoddy politics and blind ignorance. She is witty because to her the Federal Theater was the biggest and funniest show on earth. And always she writes out of a passionate faith that the work the Federal Theater—murdered in June, 1939—did was a chapter in a great American renaissance.

To provincials from New York City, the continental scope of the story is a revelation. We think of the theater in terms of Broadway; Broadway, to Hallie Flanagan and her associates, is just one of the streets that runs into Main Street, U. S. A. (Miss Flanagan herself was born in South Dakota, grew up in Iowa, did post-graduate work in Massachusetts, has lived in Illinois, Missouri and Michigan and has directed theaters at Grinnell College, Iowa; Vassar College, Poughkeepsie, and at Dartington Hall, in England.) We remember "The Hot Mikado," and vaguely know that it was born in Chicago; we remember the Federal Theater's "Living Newspaper," its T. S. Eliot, and a few other productions; perhaps, we recall that the Dies Committee once "investigated" the Federal Theater, and that Congressman Starnes hotly asked Miss Flanagan, apropos of "Dr. Faustus," whether its author, Christopher Marlowe, the greatest English dramatist before Shakespeare, wasn't a Communist. About the theater projects in a hundred other American towns we know nothing. Miss Flanagan tells something of them all, and makes the long record exciting.

The job was to give unemployed actors work in their own profession; that, both critics and, sometimes, fanatic advocates of the project forgot. It did its job; it also brought back the theater—and something of the drama that is America—to the American people. To read of its productions in Seattle of "Paul Bunyan and the Blue Ox," of "Power" and of "The Flotilla of Faith," a pageant of the coming of the Jesuits to the Northwest, inevitably recalls the memorable epic of Katharine Cornell's coming to Seattle, which had not seen a play for a decade. Her train was delayed; the actors reached Seattle after 11; the play began at 1; the stage-starved audience applauded the curtain at 4 in the morning!

Things like that happened in the Federal Theater all over the country. It turned on the lights in dark theaters old and new. Valley, Nebr., had never seen a play. Valley has a population of 1,000, and 800 of them tried to get into the schoolhouse to see Richard Harding Davis's "The Dictator." Through three summers a thousand people a week made the long pilgrimage to Roanoke Island, N. C., to see Paul Green's play about Raleigh's "Lost Colony." Los Angeles, home of the movie colony with a Western variety-show tradition, developed some of the best shows in the national repertory.

New York City heard something of the simultaneous opening of 21 productions of Sinclair Lewis's "It Can't Happen Here," in October, 1936. It did not realize how the Tampa, Fla., production, in Spanish, reached audiences that had never had a chance at theater. Nor did it hear at the time quite such authentically fantastic details of the difficulties of collaboration with genius—and with incompetence—as bubble up in Miss Flanagan's pages. Sinclair Lewis, Eddie Goodman, Elmer Rice and dozens of less known figures might well sue her for libel, except that truth is a defense, and besides, they all know and love the hysteria that is a part of the background of all good theater.

Not all the hysteria was purely theatrical, however. A selectman in Plymouth, Mass., objected vigorously to two lines in Maxwell Anderson's "Valley Forge:"

This liberty will look easy bye and bye
When nobody dies to get it.

It was peculiarly unfortunate because that particular selectman owned the two movie theaters in the town.

Chicago's first production was to have been Meyer Levin's "Model Tenement." The local office was informed from Washington that it would have to cancel that play; the Mayor of Chicago forbade it, and they couldn't fight the mayor. A year later Miss Flanagan met the mayor, who complimented her on the work of the theater project. She asked why he had objected to "Model Tenement." He said he had never heard of it. Neither had his assistant. Hallie Flanagan never did find out how the news got to Washington that the mayor was agin' it.

THERE WERE TROUBLES with unions, troubles with temperamental actors, authors and directors, troubles with local politicians and with worried officialdom in Washington. Bernard Shaw and Eugene O'Neill, the world's greatest living playwrights, delightedly released all their plays to the project at a nominal royalty; critics who were at first lukewarm became passionate partisans; community councils arose to defend it. But the whole relief program was in danger, and something had to be thrown to the wolves. The theater project became the scapegoat; it was killed. Hallie Flanagan's Irish wit burns when she tells of the attacks upon her project by Representatives Dies, Woodrum and Taber, and Senators Reynolds and Holt. But they won.

It had presented Aristophanes and Shakespeare, the classics of a dozen languages and dozens of living dramatists who else would never have seen their plays on the stage. It had invented new art forms, such as the "Living Newspaper." It had roused scores of communities to the life and fire of contemporary drama. In some cities it failed miserably; in others it succeeded so well that local groups are still carrying on. It kept, for thousands of hungry actors, the sense of the dignity of their profession.

"Arena" is no dull, objective report, though it has a few barrels of statistics and data in its appendix. It is a fighting book and a glowing book; it makes you proud and it makes you mad. When you talk of the creative life that you believe is the essence of democracy, this is the kind of crazy, vital thing you are talking about. And they killed it.

Rude Awakening

THE GERMANS took full advantage of the quadrennial madness of the stupid Americans, but, though we lost precious time and our resolution wobbled, Hitler has now said the words which should snap the spell. From the German point of view they were much better left unsaid. To us they should be a kick in the pants.

It has often been observed that the reason why the patriotic German is so brutal, treacherous and selfish is to be found in his inability to imagine that any other nation has any right which conflicts with any interest of Germany. That has been demonstrated in the attacks on the little nations whose military menace was so puny that when Hitler struck they were obliterated in, so to speak, a day. The moral rottenness of the German national spirit gained much in these actions, but the expression of that vice unwittingly given in Hitler's speech to his robots will show a loss.

IN THAT ADDRESS Hitler was unable to imagine that the people of the United States might be capable of patriotic effort or that their lethargy could be due to anything but that which he would call civic degeneracy and fear of Hitler. He certainly must have been advised that, from a state of alarm last spring, the Americans had spun off into a domestic spat over the Presidency which monopolized their interest to the almost total neglect of the menace of Adolf Hitler. The election over, the Americans still dawdled in the throes of an awful political hangover.

A comparative few young men went off to military camps, some of which were unprepared to house them decently; the two big labor organizations met in rival conventions to exchange sneers, the rearmament program bogged down and the President of the United States now found conditions so relaxed that he could crank up a warship and go off on a cruise.

A MORE FAVORABLE condition, from Hitler's standpoint, it would be impossible to imagine, for it is not denied that this Nation must be Britain's arsenal, shipyard and farm, not sometime but now. Hitler realized this better than the Americans, who had begun to mumble again about Britain's old sins against Ireland and the Boers, forgetting that Hitler was the enemy of the United States. It was nice to forget, to excuse neglect, laziness and greed on the ground that Britain had called this country Uncle Shylock—on the ground that, anyway, European wars were an old story and the Atlantic was 3,000 miles wide.

Charles Lindbergh had said that we could live on friendly terms with Hitler victorious, and there were those who clutched at that hope, too. So, altogether, but for the innate evil of a predatory breed whose historic brutality is so wholly packaged in the character of one bad man this Nation might have snoozed on. The time surely was ripe to let the Americans drowse, but Hitler, fortunately, took this hour to declare that, contrary to his past preaching, this was a war against capitalism, a war between two worlds, two philosophies, his and ours, naming the United States.

SO THE STRUGGLE against Jewish bolshevism, that shrieking fraud, becomes openly at last a war of German bolshevism against the only system under which freedom exists. And from Hitler comes the admission that any means, even that bolshevism which he reviled for years, is legitimate to serve the brutal aspirations of a killer nation.

The right to live, of which he spoke, is a right of Germans only, not of Czechs or Belgians, Danes, Norwegians or Poles, and any wrong done in the name of Germany is right, because the superrace of chosen people alone of all the world have rights.

Every foul and stealthy attribute formerly imputed to that useful old goblin, world Jewry, is discovered now at work in the interests of world Germandom. Americans are put on notice that the American world, the American philosophy, must go, because they interfere with the German right. This warning has been sounded before, but never so openly by Hitler, who obviously must feel that by now the American Nation is too far gone in sloth, corruption and internal rancor to be capable of resistance.

This wasn't mere recklessness on Hitler's part. It was the spirit of the German nation expressing again its determination to rule a world of sub-human slaves.

Sidi Barrani

By Barnet Nover

Britain's First Land Victory

UNTIL THIS WEEK Britain's military record in the present war consisted of an all but unbroken succession of defeats.

What happened in Norway in April was repeated in Flanders and France in May and June, in Somaliland later in the summer and in western Egypt early in September. The British could and did find encouragement in such remarkable exploits as the evacuation from Namsos and the retreat to Dunkerque. But evacuations, as Winston Churchill has pointed out, are not victories. It was not until the recapture of Sidi Barrani from the Italians last Tuesday that this tide of disaster was as last reversed. Now, for the first time in the 15 months since the war began, the British can lay claim to a clear-cut military triumph.

JUDGED from whatever point of view this triumph is impressive. The Italian lines east of the Libyan border appear to have been cut to pieces. Some 20,000 Italians troops including three generals have been taken prisoner. An additional 22,000 are believed to be trapped and face the dismal choice of either trying to fight their way through or surrendering.

Thus in half a week three months of elaborate and painstaking preparations by Marshal Graziani, the Italian commander-in-chief, to make possible a thrust in the direction of Alexandria and the Suez Canal have been smashed up. And the Italians may never be given another chance to attempt such a venture. They will be lucky if the Italian forces in Libya are not demoralized by the impact of the defeat in western Egypt.

A FEW DAYS after the Italian capture of Sidi Barrani last September, Mario Appelius wrote in the Popolo d'Italia that "Britain must be expelled from the (African) continent." Italian hopes were then riding high. So were the hopes of the Germans even though the first phase of the Battle of Britain, beginning with the mass raids of August 8, had resulted in a Nazi setback.

It was recognized at the time that the failure of Hitler to invade Great Britain was behind the Axis efforts to organize an attack on Britain's lifeline in the Mediterranean. If Great Britain could not be brought to her knees by a frontal attack on the British citadel, perhaps the same end could be achieved through an assault on British Empire communications.

That, at least, appeared to be the reasoning behind the Italian invasion of Egypt. That was also the motivation behind Hitler's frantic diplomatic moves of September, October and November.

IT IS NOW clear that the substitute for the expected Nazi invasion of England has missed fire just as completely as did the original plan. The results of Hitler's diplomatic maneuvers have been pitifully out of line with the energy expended.

Hungary, Rumania and Slovakia have been tied to the Axis. But Russia has not been brought in line; Bulgaria has refused the role of doormat for Hitler's legions; Yugoslavia shows less of a disposition than ever to play the Axis game; and Greece, far from capitulating to Mussolini's ultimatum, has turned the tables on the invaders.

Taken together with the weakening of Italian sea power as a result of the British aerial assault on Taranto and the naval battle off Sardinia, the situation has become one of utmost seriousness for the Axis and particularly for the junior partner of that combination. For while Mussolini now finds himself in a position where outside aid is needed and needed quickly, the failure of Hitler's diplomatic offensive makes it difficult for Germany to provide that aid without multiplying the number of enemies of the Axis.

DEFEAT toughened the fiber of the British, increased their determination, spurred them to undreamed efforts. Defeat is hardly likely to have similarly favorable consequences in Italy. For while the British regarded the war as their war, the Italians have from the outset looked upon it as Mussolini's war. They went into it only out of compulsion and in the hope that victory would be achieved speedily and at little cost. The defeats suffered by their forces in Greece, Albania and Egypt are likely to justify their worst fears and weaken rather than strengthen their readiness to fight on blindly at the behest of the dictator.

With Mussolini's prestige badly tarnished the temptation now exists for various elements of the Italian population, the throne among them, to save themselves by throwing Mussolini overboard. The moment for such an internal revolution, a coup d'etat from above, may not yet be at hand. But it would not take many more such defeats as those in Albania and Egypt to hasten such a development.

The importance of a rapid acceleration of American aid to Britain is thus emphasized. The British need that aid not only because they continue to be hard pressed at home, subject to a campaign of attrition whose cumulative effect may be disastrous, but because they now have before them the possibility of knocking Italy out of the war and in so doing releasing the force which they have had to maintain in the Mediterranean. Were that to happen, the entire balance in the war with Germany would radically be altered. But without increased American aid it is still far from certain that they will be able to make the present victory the stepping stone to the greater triumph which now looms so temptingly ahead.

CCC Held Failing to Prepare Boys for Self-Government

Although the Civilian Conservation Corps is teaching discipline to the boys enrolled in its program, "it is not adequately preparing enrollees to participate in self-government," according to conclusions in a report released yesterday by the American Youth Commission.

The commission found that steady progress had been made in making men of immature, undisciplined boys.

But, the report added, obedience and orderliness were not enough to make competent citizens out of the boys. One of the major weaknesses of the CCC consists of the limited extent to which it prepares the enrollee for active participation in democratic organization.

The report stated that "recreational activities in most CCC camps are at present very poorly conducted," since there is a "limited conception" of recreation, with emphasis on athletics, movies, pool, ping-pong, and cards.

'I Am' Warning On Insurance Related at Trial

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, Dec. 12.—Testimony that leaders of the "I Am" movement advised their followers to cash in their insurance policies in view of predicted "cataclysms" was introduced by the Government today in the trial of Mrs. Edna W. Ballard and nine others on mail fraud charges.

"In 1934, Mrs. Ballard got to talking about these horrible cataclysms that were due and told us that the big cataclysm would pop in September, 1936," Mrs. Jane Ferguson, who said she formerly was a teacher of "I Am" classes, testified.

"Mrs. Ballard told of the necessity of cashing insurance policies, and in one case told me to inform one of my students to cash only one of his policies and to keep on paying on another. It didn't have much longer to run."

Carl Pierce, a Hollywood businessman who testified he first met the late Guy W. Ballard, founder of the "I Am" movement, in Chicago in 1923, said both of them came to Los Angeles in 1928.

"He talked a lot about this St. Germain, and one day he told me that he had met him personally several times," Pierce asserted. "He ran across him in Pershing Square once, and then up in the Hollywood hills a couple of times."

Ralph Lazarus, assistant U. S. attorney, read to the jury what he said was purported to be Ballard's account of a "supernatural" encounter with St. Germain at Mount Shasta in California in 1931. The passage was from the "I Am" book, "Unveiled Mystery."

When Pierce mentioned "a lake of gold proposition" in which he said the Ballards were interested, Defense Attorney Charles H. Carr interposed a quick objection and was supported by Judge Leon R. Yankwich.

The Gallup Poll

Growing Majority Approve Exchange Of British War Debts for Islands

By Dr. George Gallup.

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Princeton, N. J., Dec. 12.—The American public would be satisfied to write off the British World War debt in exchange for islands or territory in the area of the Panama Canal. This fact emerges from a Nation-wide study of public opinion just completed by the Institute.

The majority take the attitude that the debt will probably never be paid and hence "we might as well get something for our money." In fact, the idea of exchanging debts for islands has gained greatly in public favor in the last year.

When a bill was introduced in Congress a little over a year ago to provide for such an exchange, a sizable majority of voters favored the idea. Today the number is overwhelming.

88 Per Cent in Favor

In all the different areas of the country people of voting age were asked to give their views on the following question:

"If England offers to pay its World War debt to the United States by giving us islands or land near the Panama Canal, would you approve our accepting this offer?"

Those expressing an opinion voted as follows:

Yes	88%
No	12

One voter in every 10 (10 per cent) was undecided or without an opinion.

In November, 1939, the Institute conducted a survey on the same issue, with the following result:

"Would you be willing to see the United States trade the war debts which the English owe us for some islands near the Panama Canal?"

	Nov. 1939
Yes	66%
No	34

One person in seven (15 per cent) had no opinion at that time.

Practical Reasons Given

The question whether British possessions in the Caribbean area—Jamaica, Trinidad, British Honduras, the Bahamas and other places—would be actually worth the more than $4,000,000,000 of British World War debt is one which only experts could decide. What today's study indicates is simply that the public would accept the principle of settling the British war debt in this manner.

Besides believing that "we might as well get something for our money," the majority who favor the exchange declare the British possessions around the Panama Canal would be "valuable for American defense."

Curiously enough, virtually no one in the survey brought up the objection to the proposal which some Britishers have advanced—that it would be undemocratic and bad policy to "sell" like pawns the populations of the British possessions.

Objections Cited

The chief objections raised by American voters are that the war debts should be paid in cash alone, and second, that the United States has enough territory now to defend.

McKeesport, Pa., bus driver—"Anything to get the debt paid."

Grey Bull, Wyo., bookkeeper—"We may get no other pay on the debt and we need those bases around the Canal."

Schenectady, N. Y., charwoman—"If we don't take them now, Hitler may get them later on. Who knows?"

Indianapolis investment banker—"This is a good way to get the debt question settled technically. Then we could go ahead and give Britain financial help if they need it."

Mountain Home, Idaho, farmer's wife—"We could colonize those places and then strengthen our defenses."

Forest Hills, N. Y., law student—"We should give England any money she wants but not accept burdens in return."

Housing Lack Delays Call ForGuardsmen

February 3 New Date for Mobilizing 29th Division

By John G. Norris

Post Staff Writer

Secretary of War Stimson disclosed yesterday that the mobilization of 96,000 National Guardsmen originally scheduled for early in 1941, will have to be delayed because of inadequate housing facilities.

Units will enter active military training from two weeks to two and a half months later than indicated in earlier tentative schedules published by the War Department. Construction delays of various types were responsible for the change.

The new tentative induction schedule postpones the call of part of the District of Columbia as well as most of the Maryland and Virginia Guard unit until February, as has been exclusively forecast in The Post. Originally slated to go to Fort Meade, Md., between January 3 and 19, the Twenty-ninth Division was tentatively set down for mobilization February 3.

Officials pointed out that the delay in mobilizing the Guard means a postponement in the induction of many thousands of selectees, as a large portion of the men called for service will enter National Guard units. The policy has been to send none of the selectees to Guard units until the latter have been in Federal service at least a month.

Refers Question to Dykstra

Secretary Stimson, however, when asked whether the induction of any of the selectees would be delayed, said he would "have to refer that question to Mr. Dykstra (Clarence A. Dykstra, Selective Service director.)"

The War Secretary declared the dlay in construction of housing at Fort Meade amounted to about two weeks and was due to "'a shortage of labor and a strike." Giving specific reasons for delays at various camps, he added:

"'In short, they are delays which are bound to happen in projects of this size and in general, it seems to me, it has been a very creditable performance. The fault, if any, was in not making clear at the outset that the induction schedules were estimates. Anyone who has ever built a house knows what an estimate is."

Lists Specific Delays

Stimson declared that the Army was building 40 posts or camps for the Guardsmen, "many of them as big as fair-sized cities," and that 15 of them will be completed on time.

Of the others, he said, ten will be delayed one week; five, two weeks; one, three weeks; two, four weeks; four, five weeks; one, two months, and two, 2½ months.

Stimson said he had been informed that labor troubles were responsible for only 1 per cent of the delays.

He emphasized that induction dates subsequent to February 1 in the new schedule are still tentative "and may be subject to delays which cannot be foreseen at this time." There is also a possibility that a few of the units slated to report in January may be delayed, he added.

The new schedule fixed March 10 as the tentative reporting date for the District Guardsmen of 372nd Infantry. Members of this colored unit were to report at Fort Dix early in January under the original plan.

260th to Report Jan. 6

The 260th Coast Artillery, which makes up more than half of the District of Columbia Guard, will report at the new antiaircraft training center at Fort Bliss, Tex., on January 6, as originally ordered.

Reporting date for 104th Air Corps Observation Squadron, Maryland National Guard, was advanced to February 3. The unit will train at Frederick, Md. The 191st Tank Battalion, made up of tank companies from Virginia, New York, Massachusetts and Connecticut, and the 105th Antitank Battalion from Pennsylvania, had their mobilization dates at Fort Meade tentatively advanced to February 3.

Delay in passing the bill forced a revision of this schedule, which staggered the call of the guard from September 15 to February 3 and the 800,000 selectees from November 18 to June 15. Yesterday's announcement postponed complete mobilization of the guard until April 1, and gave no information regarding the selectees.

About 20,000 of the latter have ben inducted to date, while on November 21 there were 106,833 guardsmen in service and about 387,811 officers and men of the Regular Army.

Business Girls Need Good Lunch

That Afternoon Slump Laid to Lack of Adequate Nourishment

By Martha Ellyn
The Post Food Editor

A business girl dropped into a rest room chair at 3 o'clock one afternoon. Her eyes told that she was tired and her listless shoulders told that she had little energy.

Martha Ellyn

"I'm completely exhausted, and this work is getting me down, Madeline." Madeline was the cheery, alert looking girl to whom she was speaking. And Madeline answered, "As long as you eat the kind of lunches you do, of course, you will be weary before the close of business. And your disposition is not nearly as pleasant as when you ate your lunch—and liked it."

Overhearing this conversation, I decided to ask the opinion of a dietician who has had wide experience with the business girl's lunch. So I sought the advice of Miss Ethel Jean Lamond, dietician of People's Drug Store. Miss Lamond plans the food served at the 54 stores of her organization. That means that a large number of meals must be cooked and served each day.

In answer to my query as to her advice for the business girl's lunch, Miss Lamond answered, "For the girl who works, a good nourishing lunch is an answer to that tired feeling complaint. Her attractiveness and her energy for doing a good job depend in no small degree on getting plenty of nourishment. The girl who wants to have an attractive personality doesn't skimp on food. She is the one who is hungry and eats when lunch time comes; but that doesn't mean that she will take on weight. She is the one who is ready to go places, and is always ready to snap into a piece of work, and can get through her day at business without an afternoon slump.

Smart Girls Watch Vitamins

"I think that the smart business girl watches her nutritional needs. She needs her proteins to get fuel for her body to perform work. Proteins are necessary to both growth and maintenance. She can find proteins in meat, which is not only a major source of proteins but a natural source of important vitamins. And lean meat is not fattening, so the girl who is afraid of taking on pounds will not need to be concerned.

One nutritious sandwich for lunch is the open-faced Swiss steak sandwich, and a tomato salad or cold slaw makes a nice vegetable choice for this meat sandwich. Of course, the choice of a beverage is a personal matter, but I think that milk rounds out this meal very well. With the serving of the vegetables and milk the meal is well balanced, and there is an assurance of the vitamins so necessary in the diet."

Other suggestions from Miss Lamond for the lunch of the business girl were as follows:

Vegetable soup, pineapple-cottage cheese salad, beverage.

Corned beef hash with egg, a green salad, glass of milk.

Creamed ham, baked potato, cole slaw, roll and butter, tea, coffee, or milk.

Beef stew with vegetables, roll and butter, fresh fruit, coffee, tea or milk.

Grilled chopped steak sandwich, succotash, roll and butter, fruit cup, coffee, tea, or milk.

Cultivate Pleasant Frame Of Mind

It is important too that the business girl does not eat too hurriedly. Digestion is also aided if one is in a pleasant frame of mind. Good conversation will contribute zest to even the plainest of stew, and is a fine habit to establish for mealtime. The well-trained girl who possesses a cosmopolitan appetite eats without unfavorable comment on the wholesome foods that are available. This country is blessed with a variety of interesting foods so it is not necessary to go into a monotonous luncheon diet such as a sandwich, a cup of coffee and ice cream.

When the noted nutritionist Dr. E. V. McCollum, of Johns Hopkins University, made a study of a group of farmers in rural Finland, he found that the farmers were in good physical condition on a diet of bread, fish and sour milk. We Americans would no doubt find such a diet distasteful, yet it was satisfactory for the physiological needs of those Finnish agriculturists. Our food habits and especially our preferences are based on habit, and it is just as easy to get into a good habit as a bad one when it comes to a luncheon selection.

Business Girl Goes to Lunch With Dietician

Miss Ethel-Jean Lamond (left), dietician for Peoples Drug Stores, is talking over the business girl's luncheon problems with Mary Dolores Keating. At the suggestion of Miss Lamond they have decided on the open-faced Swiss sandwich with tomato salad, and milk as the beverage. Miss Lamond advised Miss Keating, the business girl, that a nourishing lunch of this type will provide sufficient energy to see her through a busy afternoon

Dissect the Christmas Turkey In Surgeon-Like Manner

Correct Carving of Bird Means Knowledge of Its Anatomy and Swordsman's Skill With Knife

By Elizabeth McRae Boykin

THE TURKEY reigns supreme over the American Christmas but in other countries other feasts are considered as "official" holiday fare. In England, a fine roast beef has been heralded in song and story, while Germany regards a roast suckling pig as the most festive delicacy. But whatever the piece de resistance of the holiday table may be there's bound to be a session of carving before it can be enjoyed. Since carving is something of an art in itself, we went in state to interview an expert on the subject, Maurice Gonneau, chef des cuisines at the Park Lane Hotel in New York. Here are his directions for carving a turkey:

First See That Knife Is Sharp

Sharpen carving knife with the steel (you'll need a good carving set to begin with). The correct and only way to sharpen the knife is to hold the steel securely in the left hand passing the far side of the blade along the near side of the steel and the near side of the blade against the far side of the steel with a quick stroke toward the left hand. Now then remove the second joints by putting fork between second joint and drumstick. Insert knife between carcass and second joint and cut, then with the fork pull the joint free from the carcass. If turkey is properly cooked this will be easy. Next remove the wings by cutting very carefully, inserting knife toward the joints and pull out as with the second joint. Take care not to cut into the breast. Next with the breast of the turkey facing you, slice the white meat with a downward stroke away from the bone. Next cut the drumstick free from the second joint and slice the latter. Then cut the tail with lower back meat and cut out the "oyster" which is a small amount of dark meat on the back which is always in demand because of its delicate flavor. Now serve with the stuffing, giblet gravy and cranberry sauce. Spoon out the stuffing which is placed first on the plate. Cover with one piece of dark and one piece of light meat, unless there are special preferences, cover with giblet gravy. Place helping of cranberry sauce on the side.

Now, for Carving Roast Beef

As for roast beef, here's what he has to say:

Arrange the roast on the platter with the bones on the far side and the tip of the ribs to your left. Arrange at a slight angle with the rib end nearer you. Hold the meat securely with the fork well embedded between the ribs. Carve with a long blade starting at the widest point at the right and working toward the bone and finally as close to it as possible. Try not to use little saw-like movements. Before cutting it is well to ask whether a well done, medium, rare, thick or thin slice is desired. Cut the carved slice free at the bone and place on the dinner plate. Some carvers prefer to cut their roasts with the ribs against the platter and others disclaim this position on the theory that the juice seeps down into the dish.

Cook's Library

By MARTHA ELLYN

MOST persons have fond recollections of dishes eaten in their childhood. Especially if they have spent their early years on the farm, the smokehouse is a treasured trove in the winter, and where the summer brings all the wonderful produce from garden and orchard.

Such is the happy experience of Mary Margaret McBride, radio columnist, who has been voted the most popular woman on the air by the Woman's National Radio committee. In her recent book, "How Dear to My Heart," Miss McBride reaches back into her Missouri childhood days on a farm, recapturing the simple, steadfast qualities of American home life. She tells in the chapter, "Family Feasts," of soaking fresh cucumbers in salt water, of the red ham gravy, potato soup and other mouth-watering dishes her mother made. In this chapter she writes:

"If I were doomed to eat the same meal every day for the rest of my life, and could have my pick of all the food the world offers, this is what I would choose and be tickled to death at the chance, only, of course, it would every bit have to be fixed the way my mother did it: delicate buttermilk biscuits so hot you can't pick them up, and have to slather butter on their delicate insides by the catch-as-catch-can method, mashed potatoes that have been hand-beaten with cream and butter until they are fluffy as a cloud; baby chicken fried to crisp brownness, and cream gravy made in the skillet with all the little brown crumbs to give color and flavor; tender young mustard greens boiled with side meat and, to finish off, hot apple dumplings rich with cinnamon, butter and brown sugar and thick yellow country cream to pour over. Of course on the table there would also be pickled peaches in thick sirup, grape jelly, spiced gooseberries and pear and cherry preserves."

Miss McBride gives many treasured family recipes. Here are two of them:

Mama's Buttermilk Biscuit.

Sift two full cups of flour and one-half teaspoon salt. Add one-third cup shortening and three-quarters cup of buttermilk, with one-half teaspoon soda dissolved in it, amount according to the sourness of the buttermilk. Mix, roll out on floured board, handling lightly. Cut out and turn over in melted shortening. Place in pan without crowding and bake in a quick oven.

Aunt Mame's Brown Sugar Cake

Turn one pint sugar into smoking hot skillet, stir and let it melt well and add one-half pint cold water, stir and let cook until smooth, two cups sugar, three-fourths cup butter, three cups flour, four whole eggs, two teaspoons baking powder, four tablespoons burnt sugar, one cup cold water, one teaspoon vanilla, one-half cup nuts. Cream butter and sugar, add egg yolks beaten and burnt sugar; add water and then flour which has been sifted with baking powder, lastly whites of eggs beaten stiff. Bake in two layers.

Her Caramel Filling—Two cups brown sugar, one cup corn sirup, one cup heavy cream, three tablespoons burnt sugar, one cup cream, stir well before putting on stove, cook until it forms a soft ball, set in cold water, add flavoring and beat until creamy.

Meat Stuffing Gives Potatoes Appeal

Do you like baked potatoes? Then give them new appeal by stuffing them with frankfurters or link sausages. To prepare this flavor treat make a hole through the potato lengthwise with a vegetable scorer and stuff with a frankfurter or link sausage before baking. For another variation of this dish, stuff each potato with a mixture of finely chopped sweet Spanish onions and ground meat. Put a slice of bacon or salt pork over the potato and bake as usual.

Dutch Stuffed Baked Potatoes

Scrub 6 medium-sized Idaho potatoes. With an apple corer make a hole through the potato lengthwise. Stuff with a frankfurter or sausage. Bake at 400 degrees until potatoes are done.

New Style Popcorn

For chocolate chip popcorn balls, make up balls in the usual way and mix in some fine shavings of semi-sweet chocolate. About half a cup of chocolate is enough for each 4 cups of popped corn. The chocolate surprise flavor will intrigue.

Apple Butter Lends Spiciness To Cookies, Cakes

Good old-fashioned apple butter has taken to lending its rich spiciness to cakes and cookies. Not only does it enliven the flavor but also improves keeping quality.

Apple Butter Cakes and Cookies

Sift together two cups sifted cake flour, one teaspoon baking powder and one-half teaspoon salt. Cream one-half cup butter, then add one cup sugar gradually and cream together thoroughly. Add one egg and beat until fluffy. Stir one-half teaspoon baking soda into one-half cup canned pure apple butter. Add this to the creamed mixture, blending well. Add one-fourth cup chopped pecans and one-fourth cup seedless raisins and mix well. Add the flour mixture alternately with one-fourth cup milk, beating well after the addition of each.

For layer cake, pour batter into two greased 9-inch layer cake pans lined with waxed paper and bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) 25 minutes. To make cup cakes, fill 14 greased cup cake pans two-thirds full and bake in a hot oven (400 degrees F.) 20 to 25 minutes. This batter is made into drop cookies by dropping it by teaspoonfuls onto a well greased cooky sheet and baking in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 10 to 12 minutes. Frost the layer cake and cup cakes the day you serve them

J. T. Guilfoyle Is Buried At Mt. Olivet

Former Official In Engraving Bureau Died in Hospital

John T. Guilfoyle, 69, former assistant superintendent of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, who died Monday at Garfield Hospital, was bureid yesterday in Mount Oliver Cemetery, following last rites at the Church of the Nativity.

Mr. Guilfoyle, besides serving the Federal Government, was responsible for organizing currency production systems for both Italy and China. He was in Rome for two years, from 1904 to 1906, organizing the Italian government's engraving and currency control plant and training personnel.

He worked in Peiping, China, from 1907 to 1911 to start a national bank note and currency plant and distribution system. Recently he had been employed with the Security Bank Note Company, of Philadelphia, Pa.

Mr. Guilfoyle was a past president of the Washington section of the Holy Name Society, a member of the Washington Council of the Knights of Columbus, and a member of the Third Order of St. Dominic.

He leaves a son, Gerald Guilfoyle, Washington and New York attorney; and a daughter, Mrs. Madeleine F. de Maldonado, of Bogota, Colombia.

Last Rites Today For C. M. Dow, Federal Employe

Funeral services for Clarence M. Dow, employe of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, who died Tuesday, will be at 9 a. m. today at S. H. Hines funeral home, 2901 Fourteenth Street Northwest, followed by mass at St. Matthew's Cathedral. Burial will be in Arlington National Cemetery.

A native of near Davenport, Iowa, Mr. Dow was educated at Christian Brothers College, St. Joseph, Mo.

Enlisting in the Army in the World War, he rose to a captaincy in the ordnance department. He served at Camp Metuchen, N. J.

Mr. Dow was engaged in the automobile business here and in Cumberland, Md., and as representative of the Pennzoil Co. in Detroit before joining the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, with which he had been associated for four years. He lived at 1701 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest.

Surviving are Mr. Dow's wife, Mrs. Lavinia Dow, and a sister, Mrs. Owen Thompson, of Rehoboth Beach, Del.

Services Tomorrow For Daughter Of 1812 Veteran

Funeral services for Mrs. Clara D. Anderson Dowling, 89, daughter of a veteran of the War of 1812, who died Wednesday at her home, 618 I Street Northeast, will be held tomorrow at 9 a. m. at the Geier funeral home, 3605 Fourteenth Street Northwest. Services will be followed by a requiem mass at St. Mary's Catholic Church, 727 Fifth Street Northwest. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

A native of Piscataway, Md., Mrs. Dowling came to Washington at an early age. Her father, John William Anderson, enrolled as a drummer boy in the War of 1812 and served until it was over. She was the widow of Edward Joseph Dowling, a veteran of the Civil War.

Mrs. Dowling was active in church work and was an honor member of the National Society of 1812; a member of the grand council of the society, and a member of the Altar Society and the Sodality Society of St. Mary's.

Mrs. Dowling is survived by three sons, Walter and Edwin, of Washington, and Wilfred Dowling, of New York City; a daughter, Mrs. Mary O'Brien, of Washington; four grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

HOW TO MAKE RUM EGG NOG

HERE'S THE RECIPE —better clip it out

Beat separately whites and yolks of 6 eggs, fold in while beating ¼ cup granulated sugar into whites and ½ cup into yolks. Mix whites and yolks together and stir in one pint of sweet cream and one pint of milk. Add one pint of Government House Rum—4 Year Old. Stir well and put away in cold place until cold enough to serve. Add nutmeg to each glass as served.

Overloving Husband Wins His Freedom

MRS. MARY CADY

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Dec. 12.—Glen Cady, the high school bookkeeping teacher, whose wife said she found him much too amorous too much of the time, finally won a divorce today on his fourth attempt.

When Superior Judge Rudolph Desort granted Cady his decree on grounds of desertion, it ended a battle which began about three years ago.

Cady's 30-year-old wife, Mary, sued for separate maintenance in January, 1938, and Cady, 37, filed a cross-bill for divorce. In the resultant litigation he alleged his wife refused to cook him two eggs for breakfast and that she bit him on both arms and left him in August, 1937, after a rumpus over one of her relatives.

Mrs. Cady (who used to be "Honey Boo" to Glen) countered by testifying that her husband frequently ran around the house in the nude and that he tried to love her and kiss her in the kitchen, parlor, on the beach and in the forest preserve.

Both suits were thrown out of court when the judge ruled the allegations were groundless. Mrs. Cady returned to her parents' home in Flora, Ill., and Cady resumed teaching.

On November 30, 1939, Superior Judge Robert C. O'Connell tossed out Cady's second divorce suit charging desertion, because a year had not elapsed since dismissal of the previous case as required in Illinois.

Cady sued again on April 24, 1939, but Judge Desort dismissed this suit on the same grounds. His fourth suit was filed a week ago today.

Mrs. Anna Selby Dies at Frederick: Funeral Tomorrow

Mrs. Anna Elizabeth Selby, 72, of Germantown, Md., widow of William B. Selby, died yesterday in a Frederick hospital after a long illness.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Pearl S. King, Germantown, and Mrs. William Gunter, Philadelphia; seven sons, Bryce P. Selby, of Frederick, and W. J., Baker A., Roy L., Delmas J., Eugene and Roland A. Selby, all of Germantown; a sister, Mrs. John Crown, Riverdale, and two brothers, Thomas and William Hamel, both of Riverdale.

The funeral will take place at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow from St. Martin's Catholic Church, Gaithersburg, burial to be in the cemetery at Darnestown. Mrs. Selby was a lifelong resident of Montgomery County. For many years her husband was in the general mercantile business at Quince Orchard, Md.

Julius Kessler, Distiller, Member Of D. C. Clubs, Dies

Julius Kessler, president of the Julius Kessler Distilling Co., Inc., and a Washington clubman, died Tuesday at his home in New York City, friends here learned yesterday.

A native of Hungary, Mr. Kessler once sought to go West with Gen. Custer's cavalry, three years before their famous "last stand." He was turned down because of his youth.

Later he entered the distilling business, acquiring several plants in Kentucky and a wholesale distribution house in St. Paul, Minn.

During the prohibition years he was active in charitable work here and in Europe, then, after repeal, he returned to the distilling business.

He was a thirty-second degree Mason, member of the Knights Templar and a member of the Congressional and Army and Navy clubs, of Washington.

Mrs. Butler Dies At 77; Widow Of D. C. Physician

Mrs. Eleanor King Butler, widow of a prominent Washington physician and resident of the District or nearby towns for 77 years, died yesterday at her home, 5 Quincy Street, Chevy Chase, Md.

A native of Monticello, Minn., Mrs. Butler was the daughter of Charles and Eleanor Frances King, with whom she came to this city as a child.

She was the widow of Dr. William K. Butler, well-known eye, ear and throat specialist, who died in 1938. Mrs. Butler was a member of the Washington Club.

Mrs. Butler leaves a sister, Mrs. Henry S. Bean, of Lincoln, Mass.; two grandchildren, and a son-in-law, Kenneth S. Wales.

Bird Massacre For Millinery Opposed

Audubon Society Opens Campaign Against Designers of Hats

"I use only barnyard feathers" said Florence Reichman, American hat designer yesterday, in the course of her comment at the fashion show at the Shoreham Hotel for the benefit of the British-American Ambulance corps.

Back of that statement lies the story of a 10-year campaign on the part of the Audubon Bird Society to save birds from being sacrificed for hat adornment.

With bird plumage continuing in popularity, as hat trimming American women should look to their feathers if they would avoid trouble from the bird protectionists.

The whole trouble was germinated in 1938 when Audubon bird colors were inspiring current fashions. Fashion authorities took their que from John James Audubon's famous book, "Birds of America," which had been republished by the Audubon Bird Society the year before in honor of its century-old date.

Destruction Ensued

Audubon bird colors as fashion inspiration finally degenerated into actual use of precious bird plumage. Instead of fostering a greater appreciation for birds, actual destruction of them ensued.

Here is the story, as related by the Associated Press, that resulted in the Government's taking a hand in settling the matter once and for all time.

One evening in the fall of '39 a pretty, blue-eyed New Yorker opened the box containing her smart new hat, speared with a beautiful long feather—dark and mottled at the tip, white at the base. She put it on carefully and showed it to her husband, expecting applause. That wasn't what she got.

Her husband, Richard H. Pough, member of the Audubon Society staff, took one horrified look and said, "That looks like an eagle feather. Please take it off."

"Hat Wardens"

What he was thinking of was not the way his wife's hat looked, but of the pitched battle the Audubon Society had waged against killing nongame birds. It was a battle that resulted in a tariff on imported wild bird plumage for millinery and a flock of State laws protecting wild birds.

The battle died down after that because such fancy plumage virtually disappeared from women's hats. Now Mrs. Pough's feather has started it all over again.

Several months ago Congress passed the Bald Eagle Bill, making it illegal to kill or capture America's national bird or possess its plumage. It halted the killing of bald eagles previously permitted in a few Western States.

Now, if you insist on wearing bald eagle feathers, ladies, a Federal game warden can step up and seize them, unless you have proof you owned them before June, 1940, when the bill was signed.

"Barnyard" Feathers Legal

The Audubon Society has started a campaign urging women to ask their milliners for assurance the feathers they buy are within the law. These are the barnyard feathers—coque, turkey, pigeon, guinea hen, ostrich and the like.

Protected birds, besides the eagle, include condors, birds of paradise, snowy and barn owls, crested screamers, great bustards, storks, certain pheasants and herons (which yield egrets).

Lion Is King of Beast to Some People, But Osa Johnson's Favorite Is the Elephant

"LIFE wouldn't be worth living if I don't keep busy," says the vivacious Osa Johnson, in town this week for a dinner given by the Gifford Pinchots. Right now her program includes a nine-month expedition starting next spring, a sequel to "I Married Adventure" and a book a year for children. The first, now ready for publication, tells of a baby elephant named Pantaloons, and of how his mother looks after him. "People don't realize how much animals know," she insists. "For instance, when a baby elephant is born the mother first picks it up by the trunk and shakes it, then slaps it with her trunk to get breath into its body. When it's not a good little girl or boy, she spanks it with her trunk. She assigns two young cow-elephants to keep baby out of mischief while she goes off to feed. The lion is king of beasts to some people, but the elephant's my favorite."

Osa Johnson

Considering that she's palled around with animals in their native haunts, she's remarkably tolerant toward zoos—if they have plenty of runaway space. She herself has pets "boarding" in almost every zoo in the country. Incidentally, it may be just anti-lion propaganda, but she says lions in the jungle never have the full, thick manes you see in zoos; thorny bushes pull out the hair and keep it looking as ratty as an old fur coat.

TIPS ON MARKETING
From the D. C. Departmentof Weights and Measures.

Most merchants are honest; still they are human and sometimes make mistakes. Many shoppers, after discussing the price per pound with the dealer, feel that their responsibility has ended. Not so! Always watch the scale when your purchase is being weighed, and ask the clerk to state the number of pounds. Thus you cause the clerk to be careful, avoid mistakes and protect yourself. More than 50 per cent of short weights result from the consumers' failure to ask the weight of the commodities they buy.

YOUNGER GENERATION—Making a routine call at the home of a youngster who had been ill for several weeks, the Rev. R. E. Fuessle, of St. Alban's Church, found the boy was up and around and chatted with him as he waited for the mother. "Will you be back in Sunday school this week?" he asked. "I guess so," the lad replied; "I can't seem to think of any more ways to avoid it."

BUS LINES—The crop of new buses has aroused great interest among passengers. One man asked the driver what company made them, how fast they can go, and what kind of fuel they use; after leaving the bus, he crouched down and studied its underpinnings. "Why don't you buy one, mister?" the driver called to him as he drove off. . . . After making many requests to "Step back in the bus!" the driver mumbled: "Going to carry garlic around and chew on it. Then I'll just have to blow."

Lieut. Charles Duke, who teaches map-reading at the American Women's Voluntary Services here, recently took his pupils into Virginia and told them to find their way to Pohick Church by using military maps. One woman decided to go by way of Lacey, but when the road she was following became narrower and narrower she asked a passing countryman if she was headed the right way. "Yes, ma'am," he said; "see that house up there? That's it." She kept going but the road did not, so she turned around, caught up with her informant and said, "You're SURE this is the way to Lacey, Va.?" He replied wearily, "Don't ask me again, ma'am. That house up there is Virginia Lacey's; she's lived there for year."

Mary Haworth's Mail

Conflict Between Forces of Nature and Economics Drives Otherwise Upright Young Couples to Resort To Illicit Intimacy, Woman Reader Reports

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I read with interest your column of December 4,—and the "follow-up" letters from readers published December 7,—which discussed "Fleur's" question, as to whether she was acting wisely in refusing to make a "moral compromise" in order to retain the love and companionship of a young man who is financially unable to marry her. She asked your opinions, and those of column readers.

It troubles me that, so far, none of you has given a fair account of the other side of the picture. All of you assume that any young man who would propose such a compromise must be lascivious, insincere and cowardly. No doubt some of them are. But you forget that there are others,—decent, sincere young people truly in love and unable to be married, who are not given a choice between marriage and illicit love. They face the choice of illicit love or no love at all.

You forget that in our social scheme,—which we must deal with as it is; and not as we would like it to be,—many young men and women, when ready to make a start in both work and marriage, cannot find employment. An appallingly large percentage of young persons, between the ages of 20 and 25, have never had a job. It's one thing to start marriage on a tiny income;—and another thing to start on charity or nothing.

As generalities are never convincing, I'll tell you my story. It is paralleled by that of many young married couples I know—all of whom had premarital relations during a period when marriage was impossible; and who, to my certain knowledge, have never regretted it. I fell in love seven years ago, with an architect who, like most architects these days, could not get work in his field. He had a job as clerk at $20 a week, with which he supported himself, his widowed mother and an unemployed brother.

I, having been unable to find work after college, was starting a two years' post graduate course. My parents were paying my tuition and since they greatly disapproved of my marrying this "impecunious" young man, I could not ask them to continue my education or support, supposing I became his wife. And marriage would have meant (1) moving into a crowded little apartment, already overflowing with my prospective "in-laws"; (2) giving up the chance of preparing myself for a career, and (3) generally starting marriage under heavy handicaps.

Of course, we might have waited. But as it turned out, we would have waited four years — four years of tension, indecision, thwarted love; the sense that we were being implacably cheated just in the years when our lives should have been fullest. You, Miss Haworth, know more about psychology than I do. But I venture to say that such frustration, passively endured, does not make for strong character. So far as I am able to observe, it is more likely to build either smug, self-righteous personalities, or cynical, nervous ones.

We might,—as the man in my case suggested,—have married secretly, so that I should be protected "in emergency." But I considered such a marriage meaningless. Or we might have parted. We tried that, at first. But, thank God, we did not have the will power to stay apart. So, we were lovers for four years. And not once during that time, or since, have I felt that our love was merely "passion," or that I lost the man's respect. Of course, we suffered from all those "hazards to love" of which you warn your readers.

It's humiliating and unpleasant to have to resort to secret meetings; to have to conceal a relationship that you want to be proud of. But we did not suffer because he was "taking advantage of me." We were taking, together, the only path open to us. As soon as we were able to do so, we married. And our marriage has been happy in every possible way.

I am sure those first four years would have been far happier had we been able to marry when we first wanted to. But I cannot feel that our second choice was bad for us. And my reason for writing this is to befriend those many other young couples who are forced into the same decision. For they will make it, Miss Haworth, no matter how you advise them, because they are young. I want to say that a sense of guilt, attending such a relationship or decision, does far more harm than the relationship (if based on love) ever could. Sincerely,

PORTIA.

Girl Seconds Advice Given to 'Fleur'

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I'm glad that "Fleur" received the unanimous advice that she did—from all sides. However, it is possible that she will discount the opinions which sympathetic readers have expressed—since all of them apparently reflect the views of "the old order," whereas she inclines to an unconventional philosophy.

Therefore I, as a person with a background of "unconventional" experience, would like to endorse the "conventional view." When I was in my early twenties, I found myself confronted by the same choice which "Fleur" faces. I decided to discontinue my association with the man. I have never regretted that decision.

When the man comes along who really merits "Fleur's" love, there will be no question in her mind about the "wisdom" of entering into a premarital relation with him. She will be so secure in her knowledge of his love as to know that whether she does or doesn't will make no difference in his feeling for her.

On the other hand, if one doesn't love a person—with a mature love that is born of respect, sympathy and a sense of responsibility—no physical intimacy can possibly bind one to him. I think it definitely advisable for "Fleur" to forget this man—at least, until she is able to look at him with new perspective. If she went into an affair with him now, it might leave her embittered toward all mankind for the remainder of her life.

TWENTY-SIX.

Man Gives Insight Into Male Psychology

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Tell "Fleur" to stick to the ideals imparted by her early training. It is sad but true that the average man to whom she might surrender in the name of love, and afterward marry, would give her to understand, at some later date, that he had often wondered if he were the only man thus favored. Unless he is an exceptional man, it would be difficult for him to believe otherwise. Such is the fabric of the male of the species. I am one of them; and 50 years old, and I should know.

Cold Weather A Menace to Slim Figures

Appetites Are Keener, Extra Food Builds Blanket of Fat

By Ida Jean Kain

MOST PEOPLE gain weight in the winter and lose it in the summer. That's probably because of the mistaken idea that we need more food in cold weather. Of course you have a keener appetite, but if you live in a steam-heated house and lead a sedentary life, you don't need more fuel in your food.

Activity determines the number of calories you need, and if you are more active in summer than you are in winter, you need more fuel in hot weather than you do in cold weather.

Winter or summer, when you consume more food than required for body warmth and activity, the result is a blanket of fat. What do you want with that? It's a fallacy that a great abundance of fat helps to keep you warmer in winter. Overfatness leads to flabbiness of the musculature and with a lack of muscle tone less heat is generated. That's why very fat people suffer in cold weather. Everyone needs a protective covering of fat between the muscles and skin, but an excessive amount is merely a burden.

Tea vs. Ice Cream

The temperature of a food, by the way, has nothing to do with its fuel value—hot or cold, it contains just so many calories. Because of its higher fuel value, a dish of ice cream is far more heating actually than a cup of hot tea, which imparts an immediate sense of warmth.

One-half cup of vanilla ice cream contains 200 calories, while a cup of hot tea with one rounded teaspoon sugar contains about 30 calories. Therefore, ice cream ultimately provided more fuel than the tea.

If this fuel (calories) is not needed for warmth or energy, it will be stored as fat. Of course, if you use the calories up in energy, ice cream or any other food couldn't make you fat. It's only excess calories that are stored.

Fuel Value of Food

On the other hand, the glow that you get from a steaming cup of tea or coffee cannot be changed into either energy or fat—if the calories are not there. Yet it's often the thin people who go in and order a cup of coffee, and the fat ones order a chocolate malted. Thin people who need to gain should take the beverage that is higher in calories.

The fuel value of a food is gauged by the number of calories it contains, and your fuel requirement is gauged by your activity.

Today's Social Notes

(From the Truthtown Torch)

Local society circles are agog over the recently published annual Uppercrusters' Social Guide. Among the names dropped from that exclusive publication was that of Philander Plunkette, who was recently divorced by his fourth wife (The Guide approves only three divorces). Also dropped were Mortimer Silo, jr., who recently married his secretary; Jeannette Daubler, daughter of Mrs. Featherton Daubler, who recently joined the Socialist Party; Barbara Hardpann, who has become a saleswoman at Sailem's Department Store (the Guide recognizes only those socialites employed in exclusive shoppeys); and Artemas Swiffle, recently divorced by the marinated shrimp heiress, whose new husband, Count John Adagio, is now included in the Guide.

Among the new names that made the Guide was that of Livingston DeCrasher, gourmet and man about town, whose recent divorce makes him an eligible extra man at parties; Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer Mushroom, who recently endowed a ward at TopNotch Hospital; the new Lord Picadilly, (the former Cecil Strutt, elevator boy at the Hotel Swank), who recently inherited a title, and Mrs. Dartwood Diddle, who has entertained widely for visiting celebrities and worked indefatigably for numerous art movements.

Call of the South

Members of the Ladies' Parachute Patrol, who have been meeting at the Plush Sofa Club, are seriously considering moving their headquarters for the winter to Palm Beach. Mrs. Badminton Bellwether, the commander, has called a meeting for tomorrow afternoon at which the Patrol is expected to recess until after the Christmas holidays. Then it may resume activities in Florida.

"So many of our members are going to Palm Beach to escape the cold," said Mrs. Bellwether, "that it would be impossbile to carry on here anyway. We have been offered the grounds of the estate of the Alexander C. K. S. Maximillian's to carry on our practice. Moreover, in event of an invasion in the United States, we would be in a position to render strategic aid."

Cupid's Aid

Announcement of the engagement of Miss Fifi Luker to Mr. Gaston Pomeroy Pill has been made by Mr. and Mrs. Stuyvesant Luker. The two young persons were drawn together, it is understood, by their mutual interest in seventeenth century snuff boxes.

Interesting Guests

Mrs. Roswell Clymer is entertaining over the week-end the Countess Spirella, Prince Lastex, the Hon. Cecelia Nemo-Flex, Count Raoul de Girdlierre and Mrs. Smythe Percheron, of New York, Clamport, and Under the Spreading Chestnut Tree, Md.

Lord Lothian's Death Casts Pall Over District's Social Calendar

Ralph William Closes Dinner Scheduled For Last Night, Is Canceled; Labor Secretary Entertains in Honor of Second Assistant

By Hope Ridings Miller

WITH THE DEATH of Lord Lothian casting a pall over Washington, the social calendar for the next few days will undergo many drastic changes. Members of the British Embassy staff, all of whom have pared their partying appearances to a minimum because of the war, will be seen less frequently than ever for the remainder of the season.

Hope Ridings Miller

One of the first fetes to be canceled was the dinner to be given last night by the Minister from the Union of South Africa and Mrs. Ralph William Close. Justice and Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, who are dated up for such parties weeks in advance, were to be honor guests, and a number of other official notables were to have been in the company.

Meanwhile, however, several Britishers who would have declined to attend any other type of function were on hand for the benefit fashion show yesterday afternoon at the Shoreham Hotel. The fete—which is described elsewhere on this page—was another of the many given this year for the British cause.

Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, president of the Washington Committee of the British-American Ambulance Corps, which sponsored the style show entertained at luncheon yesterday, taking her guests later to the Shoreham for the fete. The luncheon, given at the National Republican Club, was in honor of Mrs. Tuckerman's sister, Countess de Castellane.

Guests included Lady Tute, whose husband, Sir Richard Tute, was appointed Chief Justice of the Bahamas in 1923; Mrs. Daneil Devore, Mrs. George Barnett, Mrs. Arthur McArthur, Mrs. William Livingston Crounse, Mrs. Dudley Knox, Mrs. James Frank Morrow, Mrs. Bruce Smith, Miss Edith Allen Clark, Mrs. C. H. Lynn, Mrs. George F. Becker, Mrs. William Scully, Mrs. Churchill Candee, Mrs. French Myers, Miss Lydia Loring and Miss Virginia Hunt.

Mrs. Tuckerman and her debutante daughter, Miss Peggy Tuckerman, will leave for Philadelphia early this morning and will attend the Philadelphia Assembly tonight. They will be guests of the Rev. and Mrs. Caleb Cresson.

Several dinners accented last night's social round. Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins was hostess at one; Capt. and Mrs. Ellis Stone gave another, and Representative Thomas C. Hennings, jr., entertained at still another.

The Second Assistant to the Secretary of Labor and Mrs. Daniel W. Tracy were guests of honor at Miss Perkins' party. Others in the company were Assistant Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Oscar Chapman, Undersecretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Paul Abbleby, Assistant Federal Security Administrator and Mrs. Wayne Coy and Msgr. Francis Haas.

ONE IN A SERIES, and the second this week, was the dinner given at the 1925 F Street Club by Capt. and Mrs. Stone. The latter, who is known as Grace Zaring Stone, the novelist, and her husband are spending the winter at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Gen. and Mrs. Sherman Miles were in the party, which also included among the guests Mr. and Mrs. Edward Finkenstaedt, Miss Carolyn Nash, Baroness Perenyi, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Stone; George Abell, and Walter Pendergast, of the State Department.

Also at the 1925 F Street Club was the dinner given by Representative Thomas C. Hennings, jr., of Missouri. Guest of honor was Mrs. Lionel Atwill, who will leave shortly before Christmas to spend the holiday with her mother, Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury, at Palm Beach. Nineteen guests attended the Hennings party, among them Admiral and Mrs. George T. Pettengill, Mrs. Hawes Dunn, Maj. Gen. Allen Gullion, Miss Evalyn McLean, Mrs. Waggaman Pulver, Clarence Hewes and Roberto Mendoza, of the Cuban Embassy.

SOCIETY-GO-ROUND: Dr. and Mrs. Charles Stanley White will spend this week-end in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., with their daughter, Mary Alice, who is a student at Vassar College. Dr. White will give a lecture on surgery at the college on Monday. Miss White will return to Washington for the Christmas holidays on December 19 and will be among those attending the White House dance for Joan Morgenthau on December 26 . . . Three debutantes who made their bows at the recent Baltimore Bachelors' Cotillion—Florence Magruder, Mary Gwynn Carmen and Lucy Clagett—will be guests of honor at a luncheon to be given by Miss Mary Jane Stanley on January 3.

Will Be Home For Holidays

Miss Margaret Diecks Linzel, now a student at Stetson University in De Land, Fla., will return on December 20 to her home here in Chevy Chase for the Christmas holidays. On December 29 her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Linzel, will entertain at a tea in her honor at their home. Miss Linzel, now in her junior year at Stetson, is prominent in campus activities; is a member of Florida Alpha, Pi Beta Phi, serving as social exchange chairman; is interfraternity editor for the Annual Year Book; president of Stevens Hall and president of the Interdenominational Council

CAPITAL WHIRL

By SALLY SWIFT

MRS. JOUETT SHOUSE has just received a letter from Mrs. Wendell Willkie in praise of Florida and its sunshine. Mrs. Willkie says that she will not accompany Mr. Willkie to Washington when he comes to the Capital for Saturday's Gridiron dinner. She will remain in Florida and will be rejoined by her husband for another fortnight's vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Rumbold entertained informally at dinner Tuesday night in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Joyce who are in the United States on leave between Foreign Service assignments. For the past three years Mr. Joyce has been Second Secretary at the United States Legation in Belgrade and now he and his charming wife are waiting to see what his next orders from the State Department will be.

At the dinner Jane Joyce looked charming in white with touches of gold embroidery. Turquiose earrings contrasted prettily with her California sunburn—the Joyces have been making a round of family visits out West—and gold and turquoise sandals completed the color scheme.

ANOTHER GUEST, soon to take off for foreign parts, was Llewellyn Thompson who on Sunday will begin the long and complicated trip to his new post at the United States Embassy in Moscow. Mr. Thompson had just been to New York buying supplies to take with him, all according to specifications of friends with experience of life in Moscow. Among his purchases was the "bride's complete kitchen equipment" of a well-known department store. He very much hopes the bride in question knew what she was doing when she made the list of cooking utensils. Another purchase for which the bachelor diplomat required the advice of a shopping guide was an outfit, plus shoes, for his Russian maid who, he prays, will rattle the shiny new pots and pans in a culinary chorus.

Also dining with the Rumbolds Tuesday were Helen Davis and Gordon Ellerington-Smith.

MR. AND MRS. Robert T. Pell asked friends in Wednesday afternoon to have a cocktail with Mr. and Mrs. Walton Butterworth. Mrs. Joseph Cotton, who had come to town from her farm in Maryland to attend the Polish Ambassador's farewell reception and had stayed on for a few days, was looking in the pink, a fine advertisement for country life. The Cotton's farm, which they have only recently acquired, is on the Eastern Shore next to the home of Mrs. Harold Walker. Mrs. Cotton says that she adores rural life and never has time to be lonely, what with constant week-end visitors that linger on into mid-week. Immediately we all volunteered to help keep the Cottons from being lonely on week-ends and were promised invitations.

* * * *

AMONG THE OTHER guests were Mrs. Anthony Rumbold, ravishing in a little black coal-scuttle bonnet worn with a black suit and a frilly blouse, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Cumming, jr., Mrs. Cumming's hat was a becoming little red pancake, and Countess de Gramont. Also Eugene Dooman, Counselor of the United States Embassy in Tokyo, Prince Radziwill, Earle Stevens, Sam Reber and Alfred Wagg.

Mrs. H. B. Willson H. B. Stonebraker Wed at St. Alban's

St. Alban's Church was the scene of the wedding of Mrs. Harry Bradford Willson and Howard B. Stonebraker at 11 o'clock yesterday, with the Rev. Charles T. Warner officiating. Mrs. Clara L. Hutchinson gave her sister away.

The bride wore a dubonnet ensemble and a cluster of orchids. Mrs. John Gibbons was matron of honor. Representative-elect William T. Pheisser, of New York, was best man. Ushers were Charles Marshall and Donald Latham.

A reception followed at the Westchester. After a tour of the Middle and Southwest, the couple will make their home at the Westchester. Among the out-of-town guests attending the ceremony were Mrs. J. W. Marshall, of Tulsa, Okla., and Mrs. E. E. Berthold, of San Francisco.

Shoops Fete Alf Landon At Cocktails

Roy Roberts Also Is An Honored Guest At Pre-Gridiron Affair

The round of fetes centering around the forthcoming Gridiron dinner got o to a lively start yesterday afternoon when former Gov. Alf M. Landon, of Kansas, and Roy Roberts, of the Kansas City Star, were feted at a cocktail party given by Mr. and Mrs. Duke Shoop.

From 5 to 7 o'clock—and even afterward—the Shoop apartment at 3901 Connecticut Avenue was crowded to the walls with Capital notables and an attractive group of out-of-towners who have come to Washington for the week-end.

Receiving her guests informally, Mrs. Shoop was trimly turned out in a black frock, cut on simple lines and accented with narrow pink lace ruffles edging the skirt and neckline and finishing off the short sleeves.

Cabinet members, "Gridironers," other members of the press contingent and a representative number of residential Washingtonians were in the company of well over a hundred persons. Sharing honors with Mr. Landon and Mr. Roberts were several house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Shoop, including Mr. and Mrs. John W. Hobbs, of Jefferson City, Mo.; Capt. and Mrs. Hugh Barclay, of Douglaston Manor, Pulaski, N. Y., and Mr. and Mrs. William Huggins, of Kansas City. Mrs. Huggins is the daughter of George Longan, publisher of the Kansas City Star.

Assisting the hostess were Mrs. James Wright and Mrs. Jay Hayden.

E. Flowerree Feted Tonight

Miss Ellen Flowerree will leave on Wednesday for New Orleans, where she will spend the Christmas holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Flowerree. The date of her return to the Capital, where she resides with her uncle, Clarence Hewes, is so far indefinite.

Miss Flowerree, who was one of the leading debutantes of last season, entertained at luncheon yesterday. Tonight she will be guest of honor at a dinner to be given by William FitzGerald before the Friday Supper Club. Mr. FitzGerald shares a house with Oliver (Bus) Hammond, whose name is being linked romantically with Miss Flowerree's.

The latter will be joined for the week-end by her cousin, Miss Mary Flowerree, who is one of the debs of the Baltimore season. Her hostess will give a dinner for her tomorrow and later that evening they will attend the debut party of Miss Mary Stuart Montague Price.

Mr. Hewes was host at dinner on Wednesday in honor of the United States Minister to the Netherlands and Mrs. George Gordon.

Mrs. Williams Gives Party After Style Show

Attractive Mrs. Horace Williams, whose husband, Capt. Williams, has been fighting with the British forces in London, was hostess yesterday afternoon, at a cocktail party following the British Relief Fashion Show.

The fete took place at the Wardman Park Hotel, where Mrs. Williams and her small daughter have made their home since they arrived in Washington several months ago. The hostess was trimly turned out in a black crepe frock, worn with an off-the-face powder blue hat that matched her eyes and her earrings.

Among those who called from 5 to 7 o'clock were a number of women who had attended the fashion show earlier, including Mrs. Frank J. Morrow, who was chairman of the event, and Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, who is head of the committee which sponsored the show. Others at Mrs. Williams' party were the Spanish Ambassador Don Juan Francisco de Cardenas; Senor and Senora de Gouthier, of the Brazilian Embassy; Mrs. Eldridge Jordan, the Spanish Minister Counselor Marques de Fontana; the Countess de Castellane; Mr. Tuckerman and the Misses Laura and Ruth Tuckerman; Mrs. Laurence Duggan; Mrs. George Thorpe; Mrs. Benjamin Dorsey, and Louis Montague.

Also Eduardo M. Danis, Minister-Attache of the Spanish Embassy; Mrs. Frank J. Morrow, Mrs. Robert Patterson, wife of the Assistant Secretary of War; Mrs. Benjamin Dorsey; Mrs. William Laird Dunlop; Mrs. Teusel-Funsten; Anthonie Chenocka; Mrs. French Myers, and Miss Emily Myers, Kien-wen Yu, Secretary of the Chinese Embassy; and Howard Bunch.

Mrs. Bennett Gives Party

Mrs. Russell Bennett gave a tea and cocktail party yesterday in honor of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Downs.

The affair took place at Mrs. Bennett's home on Bancroft Place. She is one hostess at whose home you may always be sure of finding tea as well as cocktails, and yesterday Mrs. Downs presided at the tea table in front of the living room fireplace. Mrs. Bennett is famous for offering her guests good food and one of the delicacies yesterday was cheese cake.

The hostess wore a floor-length gown with a corsage of gardenias. Among the guests were many from the diplomatic corps, including the Portuguese Minister and Mme. de Bianchi; Laurence Bungardeanu, of the Rumanian Legation, and M. and Mme. Charles Lucet, of the French Embassy. Others glimpsed were Mrs. William S. Culbertson, whose turban of pale pink feathers was most becoming; Mrs. McCeney Werlich, Mr. and Mrs. William Lacy, Mrs. Effingham Townsend, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Block, Mrs. Bissett Norment and many others.

About the Town

—with Dudley Harmon

THE SUDDEN death of Lord Lothian has profoundly shocked Washington. He had accepted an invitation to attend the dinner only last Tuesday at the Norwegian Legation for Crown Princess Martha. During his recent visit to London the envoy got practically no sleep, owing to air raids and the pressure of business. He managed to rest up for a week in Lisbon while waiting for clipper transportation, but evidently it wasn't enough.

DUDLEY HARMON

The general procedure in diplomatic circles all over the world is to go into mourning for 30 days on the death of a chief of mission.

JUST ARRIVED in Washington is the new Counselor of the Panama Embassy, John Ehrman-Lefevre. After Ambassador Boyd departs, the newcomer will be charge d'Affaires until a successor to Mr. Boyd is appointed.

Mr. Ehrman-Lefevre's appointment is of particular interest to Washington. He is a nephew of a former Charge d'Affaires, Joseph Lefevre, who with his sister, Miss Ramona LeFevre, was very popular during his several years in Washington. Miss LeFevre, a famous beauty, returns from time to time for long visits with her close friend, Mrs. Sumner Welles.

The newly arrived diplomat is a bachelor, a great nephew of the first president of Panama and a nephew of another president, Don Ernesto LeFevre.

THE WIFE of a European diplomat who recently resigned from his job here was speaking:

"It's amazing to me how little money you can get along on when you are obliged to stop throwing it around. The other day I went to visit friends in New York. I took a bus to the station, carried my bags, bought a round trip ticket via day coach, and took another bus when I got to New York. I never would have believed it possible that the trip could cost only ten dollars."

IN SEARCH of a rest, Mrs. Huntington Astor will arrive from New York today to be a guest at Staunton Hill, the estate of David K. E. Bruce, near Brookneal, Va. Mrs. Astor's latest war relief endeavor is with the newly formed Friends of Greece, of which she is honorary chairman. The Friends will give a dinner dance at the Ritz Carlton in New York tonight to raise funds. Mrs. Harrison Williams, Grand Duchess Marie and Mrs. Harold S. Vanderbilt are in charge of arrangements.

AMONG the belles at the Virginia Cotillion earlier this week were three pretty Alexandria girls—the Misses Jane Martin, Landon Burke and Mary Emerson. Miss Martin's frock was trimmed with old family lace. Miss Burke was in white net with a sequin top, and Miss Emerson also chose white, tulle with gold embroidery.

WHAT WITH hectic Christmas shopping and parties for young people, their elders are about to disappear from the social landscape until the New Year.

Why shoppers are going mad: one harassed woman waited in line for half an hour at a department store to order greeting cards. She carefully selected some from the book, spelled out her name and address to the clerk. After the clerk had written it down, she said:

"Thank you very much. We'll send these out. Only, of course, we can't guarantee their delivery until several days after Christmas."

THE TWO little English Refugees who have been living with Angus Malcolm are moving over to be under the wing of the George Howes. The children are romantically named Osbert and Cara Sophia Lancaster. Mr. Howe, by the way, will do over the house which Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Chatfield Taylor have just bought here.

Accustomed to spend Christmas with the large Armour clan in Chicago, Mrs. James Clement Dunn feels it isn't really a holiday unless she has a large group around the dining room table. So she and Mr. Dunn are asking a group of friends for midday dinner on Christmas.

Mrs. Nicholas Longworth will give a dinner for her daughter, Paulina, before Miss Minnie Hawkes' dance for subdebs December 30 . . . And for sub-subdebs, there's the dance Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Parker will give December 27 for Shirley Parker.

E. P. Turner Entertains At Cocktail Party

Entertaining at a party that, according to the host, was "really not a party," E. Pendleton Turner gathered in a few friends for cocktails yesterday afternoon at his home, 1311 Thirtieth Street.

Among those who called between the hours of 5 and 7 o'clock were Mr. and Mrs. Armistead Peter 3d, who recently moved into the Georgetown home formerly occupied by the Grant Masons; Capt. and Mrs. Ellis Stone, who entertained later at a dinner at the 1925 F Street Club; Miss Carolyn Nash, accompanied by George Abell; Baroness Perenyi, Edward Finkenstaedt, whose wife was attending the British Relief Fashion Show in which their debutante daughter, Sita, was a model, and several others.

S.R.O. Sign Out As Debs Model At Style Show

More Than 700 Attend Fashion Event Held As British Benefit

The S. R. O. sign was out at the strictly American fashion show given yesterday afternoon in the Shoreham for the benefit of the British - American Ambulance Corps. Not a seat was to be had in the ballroom—which holds more than 700—where the pretty debutantes paraded in costumes "made and designed in America."

The colors red, white and blue predominated in the all-American show. It opened with a whimsical note, Miss Nancy Strong wearing an Indian costume—sans headfeathers. Mrs. Dorothy Lee Ward entertained a large party of guests as did Mrs. Walter Tuckerman, who gave a short speech at the opening of the show. Among Mrs. Tuckerman's guests, many of whom she had entertained at luncheon beforehand, were Lady Tute, Countess de Castellan and Mrs. Carroll Van Ness.

Mrs. Barnett Attends Show

Mrs. George Barnett managed to get a seat down in front and watched the show with interest. Looking like a model herself was Mrs. Donald Nelson and not far away were Mrs. Blake O'Connor and Mrs. John O'Donnell, all admiring a Mme. Delia creation. Others there included Mrs. Newbold Noyes, Mrs. Bruce Smith, Mrs. George Thorpe, Mrs. Jouett Shouse, and Mrs. William Borah.

Wearing a tricky white feather hat was Senhora de Araujo, wife of the Brazilian Naval Attache. Mrs. W. W. Bride was accompanied by her daughter-in-law, Mrs. W. W. Bride, jr., and others there were Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, Mrs. Jouett Shouse, Mrs. Robert Guggenheim, Lady Broderick, Mme. Boncesco, Mrs. Norman Underwood, Mrs. Howard Copenbarger and Miss Polly Wirgman.

Miss Tirrell Is an Usher

Ushering at the show were Miss Dorothy Tirrell and Miss Kitty Fuqua. Mrs. Frank James Morrow, who had charge of the show arrangement, was on hand to see that things ran smoothly. Also attending were Lady Leslie, who sold tickets; Mrs. C. C. Carter, Mrs. Thurman Arnold, Mrs. French Myers, Mrs. Walter Wyatt, Mrs. Louis Caldwell, Mrs. Wayne Wirgman, Mrs. David Wills and Miss Patricia Prochnik.

Women's Democratic Club Fetes Officials

Mrs. Claude Pepper Presides at Affair Honoring Mrs. McAllister, Mrs. Evans; Michelson Is Master of Ceremonies

By Jessie Ash Arndt
The Post Club Editor.

The Woman's National Democratic Club last night gave a dinner at the clubhouse, 1526 New Hampshire Avenue, honoring Mrs. Thomas F. McAllister and Mrs. May Thompson Evans, director and assistant director of the women's division of the Democratic National Committee during and preceding the Presidential campaign.

The affair, at which Mrs. Claude Pepper, wife of Senator Pepper of Florida and president of the club, presided, was a farewell for Mrs. McAllister, who is leaving Washington next week. Mrs. Evans, whose husband Ney Evans, is with the Maritime Commission, will continue to reside here.

Mrs. McAllister gave up her house in Alexandria just before the Chicago convention. She will return to her home in Grand Rapids, Mich., where her husband is a judge of the State Supreme Court, and looks forward, she said to "getting acquainted with my family again." Her younger daughter, Claire, is now in school in Grand Rapids and her elder daughter, Mary, is attending Madiera School here, where her mother also was formerly a student. Mrs. McAllister expects to return to Washington for the inauguration.

Election Post-Mortems Are Reviewed

Both she and Mrs. Evans talked, reviewing briefly the women's part in the campaign. Their greatest contribution, said Mrs. McAllister, was that of getting factual information on to the voters. Eighty per cent of the campaign literature of the Democratic party was issued by the women's division of the campaign committee, she said.

Women were organized in the precincts and visited voters, distributing 50,000,000 of the "rainbow fliers," leaflets so named because the 18 different ones giving facts about the functions of different departments of the Government were all colors of hte rainbow, she said.

The women's division also had 100 national speakers on tour, conducted precinct campaign schools in 15 States and over 100 congressional districts and had telephone committees to notify people of important radio broadcasts, she continued.

Mrs. Blair Lauds Women's Activities

The educational program of the women's division is more important now than ever, said Mrs. McAllister, for "the very existence of our institutions depends on our showing that we can learn enough about the problems before our country to govern ourselves wisely."

Charles Michelson, director of publicity for the committee acted as master of ceremonies. Mrs. Walter Maloney sang two songs, words of which she had written for the occasion. She was accompanied by Mrs. John Alfred White, whose campaign song "Roosevelt, We're All For You", also was sung.

Emily Newell Blair, honorary vice president of the club, spoke, commending the high note in politics which she said had been struck by the women's division. She characterized its work as the greatest educational campaign ever put on in politics. One of their most remarkable accomplishments was to "make politics attractive", she said, "by putting fun into it."

Mrs. Louise Given, former national committeewoman from Wisconsin, now a member of the National Youth Administration, also paid tribute to the division's work under Mrs. McAllister and Mrs. Evans, "informing all women what their Government is accomplishing." She cited the National Institute of Government held here last Spring. "I don't think the women can elect a candidate, but they can certainly defeat one," she declared.

Madame Chairman

By Suzanne

THE MYSTERY of the meaning of "P. E. O." has been solved, according to Mrs. Saidie Orr Dunbar, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs and a member of one of the Portltand, Oreg., chapters of the P. E. O. Sisterhood.

The "B. I. L.'s" (husbands, sons and brothers of members) in Portland presented the program at one of the meetings of her chapter, she said and gave an original version of "Trial by Jury," in which a decision as to the meaning of the name was handed down. The verdict was that the letters "P. E. O." stood for "Pretty Exclusive Outfit."

Probably no other women's organibation in the country has so many questions asked as to the meaning of its name as does the P. E. O. I have been asked countless times what the letters stand for. All I can answer (not being a member) is "Why, for the P. E. O., of course." Then I hasten to explain that the sisterhood was founded on the campus of a Western college years ago and was invited, with other similar college societies, to adopt Greek letters and become part of the National Panhellenic Association. This it declined to do, keeping its original designation and expanding into an off-campus organization with education as its chief interest. It not only has founded and maintains Cottey College at Nevada, Mo., but also has a million-dollar educational fund with which it aids girls in completing their education.

The letters "B. I. L." are usually translated "Brothers-in-Law," but Mrs. Robert H. Young, program chairman at the B. I. L. dinner of Chapter B the other night, translated it "Boys I Love," which seemed to please the B. I. L.'s present.

FOUNDERS' DAY—Founders' Day of Beta Chapter, Phi Delta Gamma, National Fraternity for Women, will be celebrated at a luncheon to be held at the Kennedy-Warren Saturday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock.

The program will include a candle-light service and will carry out a Christmas theme. Mrs. E. Franklin Odor, jr., will give a reading; Mrs. H. L. Sangster will give a violin solo, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Frances Doty; Miss Hazel Bordon will render several piano selections.

Invitations have been extended to founders of the chapter, former officers and inactive members.

Geographers Meet Tomorrow With Mrs. McBride

The Washington group of the Society of Woman Geographers will meet tomorrow at the home of Mrs. Harry A. McBride, at 4 o'clock.

Miss Isabelle F. Story will speak on "National Parks—What, Where and Why?"

Among those expecting to attend are Mrs. W. Chapin Huntington, who will preside; Mrs. Walter Van Dyke Bingham, Miss Annita Ker, Miss Margaret A. Hitch, Miss Helen M. Strong, Miss Emma M. Thom, Mrs. Charles M. Hendley, Mrs. Gregg C. Birdsall, Mrs. Mitchell Carroll, Mrs. P. T. M. Lathrop, Mrs. Edward Stafford, Miss Taisia Stadnichenko, Miss Mary A. Nourse, Miss Ellen N. LaMotte, Miss Helen B. Smith, Mrs. Charles A. Saucerman, Miss Evelyn L. Yeomans, Mrs. Katharine Hafstad, Miss Edith M. Fitton, Miss Irene A. Wright and Miss Lois Olson.

C. A. R. Names Committees To Plan for Conclave Here

The board of management of the National Society, Children of the American Revolution, yesterday held its second meeting of the season at Memorial Continental Hall, with Mrs. John Morrison Kerr, the president, presiding.

Plans for the annual convention next April were initiated with the announcement of the appointment of Mrs. Roger Williams as chairman of the program committee; Mrs. Lewis B. Rhodes as chairman of the convention and color bearers, and Miss Catherine Caldwell, Miss Charlotte Gartland and Mrs. Arthur E. Kimberly as color bearers.

Mrs. Geoffrey Creyke, national organizing secretary, reported that new societies have been organized in Topeka, Kans.; Flint, Mich., Columbus, Nebr.; Beacon, N. Y., and Columbia, Tenn.

Mrs. Harry Melville Howard, national registrar, announced that 328 nwe members had been added to the rolls of the national society.

Mrs. William H. Pouch, honorary national president of the C. A. R., and national chairman of the C. A. R. grandmothers' committee, sent a request to her committee members urging them to form auxiliary units of the American Red Cross. This request was sent to the C. A. R. grandmothers' committees which have been formed in 23 States. This activity, the youngest in C. A. R. committee work, was authorized in 1936, and the first State chairman was a member of the Sagebrush Chapter in Reno, Nev.

The Sons of the American Revolution has sponsored a similar activity, with Frank B. Steele, of Washington, as the national chairman of the grandfathers' committee. This work was undertaken primarily to promote interest in the C. A. R. among the D. A. R., S. R. and S. A. R., members and friends by enrolling grandchilfriends by enrolling grandchildren enjoy the companionship of other grandparents. Another aim was to assist in establishing lineage records for the benefit of future members and archives of the national society.

Mrs. Houghton Patron of Sale

Mrs. Alanson Houghton, wife of the former Ambassador to Great Britain, is among the patrons for the sale of block woodcuts and the silver tea to be held today and tomorrow at the home of Mrs. Swager Sherley. A percentage of the proceeds will be donated to British relief through the Women's Auxiliary of St. John's Church.

Other patrons for the event include Mrs. N. M. Butler, wife of the Charge d'Affaires of the British Embassy; Mrs. Daniel Partridge 3d, Mrs. Wilbur Carr, Mrs. Duncan Phillips and Mrs. Keith Merrill. The prints are by the English artist, Miss Elizabeth Keith.

Woman's Job Clinic Formed

The Women's Occupational Council of the District held its second meeting of the season at the United States Chamber of Commerce last night. Dr. Marjorie Shearon, chairman, presided. The council, until last night, had been loosely organized during its formative period and until a constitution could be drafted.

Last night, in reporting on what had been accomplished since the previous meeting, the chairman explained that the first move of council had been to organize a women's job clinic.

Five weekly meetings have been held at George Washington University, where a room has been made available through the cooperation of Prof. Mitchell Dreese, head of the department of psychology. Seventy-five women have registered as unemployed or as employed and seeking a vocational change, she said. An equal number of women have attended the clinic, because of their interest in the work being done.

"While we must, in the beginning, help unemployed women with their immediate problem, I believe we have an important function to serve in helping younger women so to plan their working lives that they may avoid some of the pitfalls of middle age that result in loss of jobs," said Dr. Shearon. "We can teach them to study vocational trends and to change from precarious fields before they are forced out."

One innovation in women's meetings is a frank statement of age by the women themselves, said Dr. Shearon. This practice is being encouraged in order to overcome the fear psychology relating to age and to help break down the public prejudice against women over 35. Women seeking positions come to the clinic for advice about leads, about letters of application, and about preparation of experience portfolios.

"In the belief that we needed more first-hand information about employment opportunities in the District, we organized a job canvass," she asserted. "Employers, almost without exception, have been cordial and have showed great interest in the undertaking."

Head of World Girl Scouts Visits Here

Closer Hemisphere Bond Being Sought, Says Mrs. Leigh-White

A closer bond between the Girl Scouts of the Western Hemisphere is the aim of the World Association of Girl Guides and Girl Scouts, according to Mrs. Arethusa Leigh-White, of London, director of the organization, who is in Washington for a few days. Mrs. Leigh-White is the guest of Mrs. Frederick H. Brooke, past president of the Girl Scouts of America.

The last international meeting of the world association was held in Budapest, Hungary, just a fortnight before the war, said Mrs. Leigh-White, in an interview at the home of Mrs. Brooke. There were 4,000 girls attending from 17 countries. The association carried on its work chiefly in Europe before the war, she said, but now has established in New York City a branch of the world bureau, which is located in London. From this American headquarters she is directing a program designed to bring the girls of the Western Hemisphere closer in understanding and friendship.

A Western Hemisphere encampment was held last August at Camp Andre in Westchester, N. Y., she said, where 22 girls from 17 countries and 80 from this country gathered. One of the suggestions from the girls themselves as to ways of promoting international understanding was that it would be an advantage if young people in the United States knew as much Spanish as those of the Spanish and Portuguese speaking countries of South America knew of English.

The Girl Scout movement has made tremendous growth in the United States in the last year, Mrs. Leigh-White pointed out, with an increase of 70,000 members. In Canada—more sparsely populated—a substantial increase also has been made, with 8,000 new members.

The Girl Guides in England have been helping in many practical ways since the war, she said. They have taken charge of recreation for the evacuated children in many places, helped in canteens, assisted in the care of the sick and have found their Girl Guide training of practical value as preparation for service. Not only are they serving in the present emergency, but the organization is looking to the future and continuing its normal program, preparing the younger children for the tasks which will be theirs a few years from now, she added.

Mrs. Leigh-White will return to New York on Tuesday and expects to leave in January for a tour of Central and South America in the interest of the world association. She has been in the United States and Canada since August, when she came for the international meeting at Camp Andre.

Women to Hear Mrs. Roosevelt

"Must Defense Lower Living Standards?" will be the topic of Mrs. Roosevelt's talk at a meeting to be held by the Washington League of Women Shoppers, for members and their friends, in the grand ballroom of the Raleigh Hotel Sunday at 8 p. m.

Participating in a discussion of the subject will be Dr. Mordecai Ezekiel, economic adviser to the Secretary of Agriculture, and a panel of four additional specialists in their fields: Ralph Hetzel, director of unemployment division of C. I. O.; Marion Bachrach, Dr. Dewey Anderson, executive secretary of temporary national economic committee; Dr. Faith Williams, chief of the cost of living division of the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Mrs. Howell Moorhead, one of the board of directors of the Foreign Policy Association, and a sponsor of the Washington League of Women Shoppers, will be chairman for the evening.

Questions will be answered from the floor and refreshments will be served at a reception for Mrs. Roosevelt following the discussion.

*X WASHINGTON: FRIDAY, DECEMBER 13, 1940

The Federal Diary

—By Jerry Kluttz

Agriculture is attempting to do the unusual in Washington, improve its administration and economize at the same time. The result may be extensive reorganization within the department. At the moment the committee is inquiring into administrative functions of the Secretary's office. Executive officer of the interdepartmental committee is Charles McKinley, who is on leave from Reed College of Portland, Oreg., where he is a political science professor. Undersecretary Paul Appleby is chairman and serving with him are Roy F. Hendrickson, personnel director; W. A. Jump, budget and finance director; Milton Eisenhower, land use coordinator; M. L. Wilson, extension director; Mastin White, solicitor; Milo Perkins, marketing director, and James T. Jardine, research director.

The committee, which will act as a clearing house for all administrative problems, actually was established on the recommendation of President Roosevelt. Some months ago the President called on departmental heads to "survey expenditures and to make reports on administrative improvements, economies in operation and related matters."

Word is out that the Budget Bureau has used the ax on Agriculture's proposed 1942 budget in line with the President's suggestion that appropriations of nondefense agencies be reduced, and the committee may have more of a job on its hands than it bargained for.

National Defense is going to establish field offices but not on any grand scale. Field officials merely will be consultants on the vast program to train youths for national defense jobs. The Office of Education, NYA, CCC and the Department of Labor's Apprenticeship Division are supervising the job training program. Settlement of strikes and the like will be left to the Conciliation Service.

National Defense plans to do its field work on a shoe string. It is planned to hire consultants on a dollar-a-year basis, to use existing Federal office space, and to hire not more than a clerk and a stenographer in each office.

Incidentally, a person who'll have a lot to say about establishment of the field offices and where is Perry Taylor, the new office manager of the labor division, who has charge of the budget and personnel. Taylor formerly worked with REA, but more recently he has been connected with the Filene Foundation.

The number of Federal employes continues to set new high records. On November 1, the Civil Service Commission reports, there were 149,479 Federal workers here, an increase over the previous month of 3,922. Over the entire country the rise was 27,532, bringing the total number of employes to 1,086,171.

National defense agencies, of course, reported the largest gains. Selective Service hired 21,205 employes during October; War, 11,564; Navy, 9,147; Panama Canal, 926, and Tennessee Valley Authority, 863. Large reductions were reported by Postoffice, Commerce, Interior and Agriculture. In the District, War Department led the hiring during October by placing 1,445 additional persons on the pay roll. Navy reported an increase of 580, Justice, 510, and Government Printing Office, 403. The October pay roll was $166,483.603, an increase of $6,898,227 over September.

Col. M. E. Gilmore, PWA administrator, served in the Rough Riders with Teddy Roosevelt . . . James T. Jardine, Agriculture's research director, is the brother of William M. Jardine, former G. O. P. Secretary of Agriculture . . . Census Bureau Dramatic Club will present three one-act plays Tuesday night in Commerce auditorium. Joseph Mandelbaum directs and Gino J. Simi is production manager. Dottie Ruderman, Census' "own Kate Smith," and Shirley Maltz and Josephine DiBella will entertain between acts.

William G. Schutz has been reelected president of AFGE's Internal Revenue Lodge. Amelia Fishenden is secretary; Fred I. Edwards, treasurer, and James H. Hurley, sergeant at arms.

The Civil Service Commission makes character investigations of each new employe, but it won't reveal its findings even to the naive young girl who wrote this letter: "I am writing you in regards to a Mr. ——. He seems like a sorta nice person and has asked me to marry him. Of course, I don't know anything about him and feel like that it is a serious step to take not knowing him any better than I do."

Barking Dog Becomes a Hero, Saves 15 Lives From Blaze

Seabiscuit, a Terrier, Arouses Landlady Who Calls Firemen and They Do the Rest; Several Tenants Have Narrow Escape

Seabiscuit, a wire-haired terrier, is a hero today, savior of 15 lives, and his glory remains undimmed when it is admitted he had a bit of help from several firemen and his mistress.

Seabiscuit's home at 2521 Connecticut Avenue Northwest was filled with smoke and flames were blazing furiously in the basement early yesterday when his barking awakened Miss Orie Covington, his mistress and the landlady at that address. Miss Covington awakened other occupants of the house and called the fire department.

Smoke was so thick that firemen at first thought the third-story room of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Bell was unoccupied. They were able to locate the couple, however, and carried them down a ladder. Neither of the Bells was injured.

Miss Dorothy Walker was able to walk out of the house unaided. When she reached the street, she fainted, temporarily ill from smoke.

In the basement where the firemen said the blaze originated, a flaming wooden partition collapsed just seconds after Chesterfield Crews, 17, and Linwood Lipscomb, 32, colored houseboys, groped their way to the door and escaped.

The fire's principal casualty was Butch, a wire-haired puppy. Asleep in the basement, he was overcome by smoke, but firemen quickly revived him. Two other puppies later were found, unharmed, under a sofa.

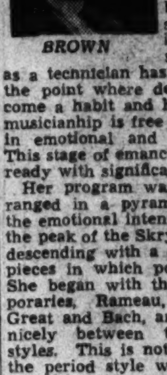
Firemen said they were unable to determine the cause of the fire.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Arts Club of ashington presents Margaret Tolson in a piano recital Thursday night. Program: Gavotte and Variations (Rameau), "Le Bavolet Flottant" and "Les Barricades Mysterieuses" (Couperin), French Suite No. 6 in E major (Bach), Chromatic Fantasia and Fugue (Bach), Sonata No. 5 (Skryabin), "Montanesa" and "Andaluza" (Falla), "Jeux d'Eau" (Ravel), Toccata (Marion Bauer).

Playing for her fellow members of the Arts Club and their guests last evening, Margaret Tolson disclosed an increased maturity of interpretation as well as an enhanced technical craft. Her mastery of the keyboard, which has now reached surety both in dynamic variety and digital fleetness, has been based from the beginning on a sound musical instinct. Her steady progress as a technician has brought her to the point where dexterity has become a habit and her fundamental musicianhip is free to express itself in emotional and spiritual terms. This stage of emancipation finds her ready with significant things to say.



BROWN

Her program was admirably arranged in a pyramidal form with the emotional intensity mounting to the peak of the Skryabin sonata and descending with a closing group of pieces in which poesy shimmered. She began with the three contemporaries, Rameau, Couperin the Great and Bach, and discriminated nicely between their individual styles. This is not easy to do, for the period style was international, and it is only by subtleties that the distinctions can be drawn.

Her playing of Rameau emphasized the figurations and ornaments by which the weak tone of the harpsichord was sustained Her reading of Couperin's "Le Bavelot Flottant" and "Les Barricades Mysterieuses" brought out the neat devices by which that composer initiated the atmospheric effects which were to culminate in Debussy. Her incisive and clear projection of Bach's sixth French suite showed the structural details of the dance forms that were the forerunners of the orchestral suite.

The choice of Bach's chromatic fantasia and fugue as the immediate neighbor of Skryabin's fifth sonata was nothing less than intuitive. For in the fantasia Bach blazed the trail of imaginative expression which Skryabin followed. Skryabin's whole tonal system is a development of the chromaticism which Bach exploited. While Bach's mysticism was governed by a very definite religious faith, the mysticism of Skryabin was vaguely theosophical. Skryabin yearned for something which he could not exactly define to himself.

In the fifth sonata, which was composed just before the orchestral "Poem of Ecstasy," this yearning is most poignantly expressed. The music is surcharged with passionate aspiration toward spiritual fulfillment. Miss Tolson played it with a splendid urgency and a compelling vitality.

Jackson Points To Need for New D. C. Courthouse

Discussion of a site for a new District courthouse was renewed yesterday when Attorney General Robert H. Jackson pointed out the "imperative need" of a structure more commodious than the 117-year-old building at Judiciary Square.

The Attorney General deplored overcrowding of the present courthouse in a letter to Henry P. Chandler, administrator of United States courts.

Thomas S. Settle, secretary of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, said that his group two years ago approved a plan to place the new building at the north end of Judiciary Square, facing F Street, between Fourth and Fifth Streets Northwest. This site is now occupied by the General Accounting Office.

Mrs. Eugene Meyer Named To Free Public Library Board

Underwood & Underwood

MRS. EUGENE MEYER

New Trustee To Fill Unexpired Term of Dr. Morley

Mrs. Eugene Meyer, wife of the publisher of The Post, yesterday was named a member of the board of trustees of the Free Public Library by the District Commissioners.

Mrs. Meyer will fill the unexpired term of Felix Morley, former editor of The Post and now president of Haverford College. Her term will run to June 23, 1944.

Active in welfare and civic work, Mrs. Meyer received an A. B. degree at Barnard College in 1907 and studied at the Sorbonne, in Paris, 1910 and 1911.

Mrs. Meyer is a trustee of Barnard College, chairman of the Westchester County Recreation Commission of New York, member of the Trust Fund Board of the Congressional Library, member of the American Oriental Society, and of the Cosmopolitan Club of New York and the Sulgrave Club of Washington.

Blood-Test Plan Stirs Opposition

Citizens Group At A. U. Park Favors Pre-Natal Plan To Detect Disease

Legislation to make blood tests compulsory before marriage in the District was opposed last night in a resolution adopted by the American University Park Citizens Association.

Their resolution urged as a substitute for compulsory pre-marital blood tests, some form of legislation that would provide for prenatal detection of communicable diseases in children.

The association, in other resolutions, asked additional stop signs on River Road at Western Avenue Northwest, so that traffic on both streets would be forced to a full stop before crossing the intersection, and through bus service from Massachusetts Avenue and the District Line Northwest, across Rock Creek to Bladensburg Road and Rhode Island Avenue Northeast.

Connecticut Avenue

Indorsement of the ruling now before the Zoning Commission to limit new buildings to a height of 110 feet instead of 130 feet, as in the present ordinance, was voted last night by the Connecticut Avenue Citizens Association.

Proposal to vote indorsement of the rule was made by Leon Presfelder, who argued that tall buildings create increasingly difficult traffic problems in those vicinities. Other citizens pointed out that tall buildings obstruct scenic views of the city.

The group heard two representatives of the Capital Transit Co. answer questions regarding service.

Congress Heights

Extension of Firth Sterling Street from the Naval Air Station at Anacostia to South Capitol Street was requested by the Congress Heights Citizens Association last night as a means of relieving Christmas rush congestion on Nichols Avenue.

The street has been cut through for some time, but has never been opened, the group pointed out.

Another holiday request was made in the form of a resolution sponsored by Frasier White, who was named head of a committee to request Capt. Hugh H. Groves of the Eleventh Precinct to rope off at least one street for sled riding. Francis Wahler and E. E. Chapman complete the committee.

New committee heads appointed last night by J. Louis Gelbman, president, were as follows: Law and legislation, Benson Taylor; highway streets and lights, Frazier White; sewer and water, E. J. Read; public utilities and zoning, George Allen; schools and playgrounds, Mrs. Florence Read; entertainment, Mrs. Benjamin Littman; membership, Mrs. Alma Allen; good will, Mrs. Benson Taylor; ways and means, Mrs. Alma Allen; local suffrage, Mrs. Maude Leibrand; police and fire, E. E. Chapman.

Extra Police Rushed To Help Arrest Woman

One of those unpredictable "Policeman in trouble" calls last night sent a battery of motorcycle officers speeding to Fourteenth and K Streets Northwest.

A large crowd was congregated at the edge of Franklin Park. There, in the center, was Private Tom Sullivan, of the First Precinct, having his hands full arresting a woman who allegedly violated the pedestrian control act.

Taken to the Woman's Bureau, the woman who gave her name, according of 2147 O Street Northwest, was held on three charges—violation of the pedestrian control act, disorderly conduct and assault.

This Bad News Travels Slowly

Emery French, 50, of the Soldiers' Home, will learn today that his shack was burned to the ground last night.

He spent all summer building the wooden hut, and liked to seek relief in it during the summer heat. It was located in a gulley, about a quarter o fa mile away from the dormitory in which French lives and where he was asleep.

L. A. Drubb, grounds chief of police, said that damage amounted to $500, since flames also reached an adjoining soil-mixing shed.

13th Precinct Has 13 Prisoners on Friday 13th

The Thirteenth Precinct police station early this morning came through with a Friday, the thirteenth, story.

At exactly 13 minutes after midnight, the station clerk noted, there were 13 prisoners locked up in No. 13 Precinct.

Brent School Teacher Is Injured in Fall

Mrs. Mary E. Cook, 42, of 1517 C Street Southeast, a teacher at the Brent School, Third and D Streets Southeast, was recovering in Providence Hospital last night from the effects of a fall at the school. Doctors said she suffered a broken left ankle and an injury to her right hand.

City Employes Face Defense Job Inquiry

McCoach Investigates Report Some Draw Two Government Pays

By James D. Secrest

Engineer Commissioner David McCoach, jr., last night said he will make a complete investigation of the right of District employes to work on defense jobs while on leave after Representative Hoffman (Republican), of Michigan, requested the names of all municipal workers on leave.

Earlier, Hoffman told the House that he had information that two District employes, an electrician and a painter, were working at Fort George G. Meade, Md. One had accumulated annual leave of 52 days, while the other was taking leave without pay.

Asks Hazen for List

Hoffman, in a letter to Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, asked for the names of District employes "who are now on leave, with or without pay, and who are working on jobs, a part of the cost of which is paid by the Federal Government.

"If you cannot furnish the above information," he added, "will you kindly give me a list of the District employes paid in part by money appropriated by the Federal Government, who are now on leave, giving the name, the address, and the occupation of each.

"This information is sought so that it may be learned whether District employes with regular jobs, paid in part by Federal funds, are during their vacation or sick leave period coming in competition with others who have no jobs.

Cites U. S. Code

He cited Title 5, Section 58, of the U. S. Code, which reads as follows:

"Unless otherwise specifically authorized by law, no money appropriated by any act shall be available for payment to any person receiving more than one salary when the combined amount of said salaries exceeds the sum of $2,000 per annum."

Acting District Auditor Arthur R. Pilkerton, however, expressed the opinion that the act does not bar a Government employe from taking private employment while on regular leave. The only question, he said, would be whether defense jobs could be interpreted as governmental in character.

Arnold to Talk On 'Trust-Busting'

"Trust Busting, 1940 Style" will be discussed tonight at the Friends Meeting House, 2111 Florida Avenue Northwest, by Thurman Arnold, Assistant Attorney General in charge of antitrust enforcement, and Donald E. Montgomery, consumers' counsel for the Department of Agriculture.

A puppet show, dealing with the District milk situation, will be presented by the District Cooperative League, which is sponsoring the meeting jointly with the Consumers Milk Committee of Washington.

Woman Clerk Braves Gun, Battles Thugs

Tackles Two in Holdup Of Bakery, but Fails To Save $40 in Till

A hard-punching, deep-scratching woman of 26 who grappled with two holdup men last night took the spotlight in a small crime wave which included two other armed holdups in liquor stores, a street robbery and a pocketbook snatching.

The fighting woman was Alice Pratt, clerk in Neuland's Bakery, 1325 Eleventh Street Northwest. She told police two white youths about 23 years of age sauntered into the bakery shortly after 8 p. m., and while one pointed a gun at her, the other attempted to push her away from the cash register. Miss Pratt immediately lit into the unarmed youth, who struck her on the shoulder with his fist.

The armed bandit then came toward the register. While Miss Pratt grappled with him the first youth seized $40 from the till.

Chases Them Down Street

She chased the pair down the street where they escaped through an alley. Miss Pratt later complained of a sore shoulder and a "headache."

Three colored men, all with pistols shortly afterwards held up and robbed Isadore Paskow, proprietor of a liquor store at 201 G Street Northwest.

While two covered Paskow and his son, Danny, the other went through their pockets. They left with $10 from the cash register. Paskow, who a month ago thwarted a holdup by punching a would-be bandit, nad hid the night's receipts.

Liquor Store Robbed

Shortly before midnight two white men answering the description of the pair who held up Miss Pratt, robbed Charles A. Magee, proprietor of McCrae's Liquor Store at 1619 L Street Northwest, of $40.

Victim of the pocketbook snatching was Elizabeth Frazier, 32, of 5814 Sixth Street Northwest, who lost $9 in valuables to a white man at Third and Nicholson Street Northwest.

Seized and held from behind by a colored man while he walked in the 1200 block of Fourth Street Northeast, George Heitkam, 927 Fourth Street Nohthwest, was robbed of his wrist watch valued at $15.

Benefit Scheduled

The Gonzaga Mothers' Association will sponsor an entertainment program tonight at 8:15 in Gonzaga High School hall, 37 I Street Northwest. Proceeds will benefit the scholarship fund.

Reorganization Bill Is Buried By McCarran

The District reorganization bill, sponsored by Representative Kennedy (Democrat), of Maryland, and passed by the House, was killed yesterday by Senator McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, upon his return to the Capitol.

Senator McCarran, who has been ill since his appointment as chairman of a special subcommittee of the Senate District Committee to hold hearings on the measure, said that there had been no civic demand for the legislation and that it would require too many amendments for action at this session.

Hope for Senate approval of the bill faded early last fall when Chairman King, of the Senate District Committee, condemned the measure after a conference with District officials. He agreed, however, to refer it to a special subcommittee.

Since all pending legislation dies with the adjournment of Congress, the action of the House bill will be nullified.

A.M.A. Faces Antitrust Trial Feb. 5

Charges Grew Out of Alleged Enmity Toward Health Cooperative

After nearly two years of preliminary proceedings, February 5, 1941, was tentatively set yesterday for trial of the American Medical Association, the District Medical Society and a score of physicians, charging violation of the antitrust laws.

The date was agreed on yesterday at a conference of prosecutors and defense counsel in the chambers of Justice F. Dickinson Letts, of the District Court, who may preside at the trial.

The indictment followed a special grand jury's investigation of the alleged hostility of "organized medicine" to Group Health Association, Inc., when the cooperative was organized here several years ago.

The District Court quashed the indictment and it was reinstated by the United States Court of Appeals here and this decision was left standing by the Supreme Court. The trial was due to begin in the fall before Justice James W. Morris, but he disqualified himself because he was an Assistant Attorney General when the investigation was being made.

The trial is expected to take about three months and District Attorney Edward M. Curran has sought assignment of a third justice to criminal sessions so other criminal cases will not be delayed. Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat declined to make the assignment until it should be absolutely necessary, because the court's civil division is far behind in its work.

Conferring yesterday were Curran, Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold, chief of the antitrust division; Special Assistant John Henry Lewin, and Defense Attorneys Charles S. Baker, William E. Leahy, Seth Richardson, Edward Burke, of Chicago; J. E. Laskey and Warren Magee.

Assault Charge Against School Man Is Dismissed

An assault charge against Maj. Homer B. Millard, headmaster of Millard Preparatory School, 1918 N Street Northwest, was dismissed in Police Court yesterday for lack of prosecution.

Millard was waiting a jury trial on the charge which grew out of his alleged attack on 7-year-old Charles Busey, colored, of 1742 Seventh Street Northwest, October 8, at the school.

It was charged that Millard placed the boy in a window well at the school after the youngster had disturbed pupils at the West Point prep. Charles collapsed after being released from the well and when taken to a hospital the next day, it was discovered he suffered a fractured skull.

Ford Contract Is Protested By Hillman

Auto Magnate's Refusal to Comply With Labor Act Cited

Labor Defense Commissioner Sidney Hillman has filed a vigorous protest with the War Department against granting a contract for trucks and automobiles to the Ford Motor Co., it was learned last night.

Moving toward a showdown with other Government departments on the entire question of awarding contracts to labor law violators, Hillman filed the protest with the definite implication that either Ford should be made to comply with the National Labor Relations Act or the contract should be canceled.

According to National Defense Commission records, the Ford Co. has been awarded $124,735,720 in contracts already, of which all but about $2,000,000 is for airplane engines.

The engine contract was awarded to Ford the day after election but Hillman did not make a public protest at the time. Army officers believe that Ford then was the only firm that could handle the contract.

Hillman was represented as incensed, however, at plans to award the truck and auto contract to Ford before the Dearborn, Mich., firm had given assurances that it would comply with the labor law.

The truck and auto contract has been awarded to Ford, it was learned, but signing of the papers is being delayed pending settlement of the labor policy question.

The Ford Motor Co. has been cited for violations by the labor board.

In answer to Hillman, Army officers maintained that the Ford company operated under wages and working conditions which were on a par with standards of other automobile manufacturers.

Detroit, Dec. 12 (U.P.).—The Ford Motor Co. today rejected a request of the United Automobile Workers (C. I. O.) for a consent National Labor Relations Board election.

I. A. Capizzi, counsel for Ford, charged in a statement that the union's attempt to organize 100,000 Ford employes was motivated by the "greed of these (union) leaders to take more than $1,000,000 a year in dues from Ford workers."

"The union has waged a relentless campaign of vilification, intimidation and falsification to create dissatisfaction and discontent among Ford workers," Capizzi said. "Ford workers have never solicited, requested or demanded the services of the union in handling their affairs."

Smithsonian Gets Crowned Frog

A crowned frog is the latest importation from Mexico. It is one of a collection of more than 20,000 reptiles and amphibians which Dr. Hobart M. Smith announced yesterday he had brought to the Smithsonian Institution.

Banana trees constituted one of Dr. Smith's most fruitful hunting grounds of unusual life, he said. "They constitute a biological world hitherto little explored in Mexico," he declared.

Bankers Vote To Intensify Publicity Drive

By Claude A. Jagger
Associated Press Financial Editor

Hollywood, Fla., Dec. 12.—The Investment Bankers Association of America today voted to intensify and continue for one year its public information program to promote the function of investment banking as an indespensable integral part of the American system of free enterprise.

The program was started six months ago in an effort to awaken public opinion to what the investment men claim are needed adjustments in the Federal Securities laws to make them "workable" and to rebuild the prestige of the investment banking business.

The public information committee, headed by Emmett F. Connely, of Detroit, president of the association, said in its report to the convention.

"We have told each other fiercely that the flow of investment capital between the people and industry is essential to a healthy economic life in America.

"We have criticized privately and to a few people in Washington the Securities Acts which we sincerely felt were crippling the flow of private credit, no matter how excellent their intent of curbing malpractice.

"But we had not told the people, who are source of all power in the republic."

FREDDIE AND MAY DEARBORN, newly arrived at El Patio

DANCING IN ROBIN HOOD. Owner "Laddie" Puryear plans to install a tabloid dance floor in his Robin Hood within a week or so. This will involve some first class transforming. The "open kitchen" and its glistening metal will disappear from view to make way for a jolly little snuggery built around the hunting lodge bar and the new dance floor. Laddie's hoping the changes can be made in a few hours of high-pressure work over a week-end, so that no closing whatever will be necessary.

The Troika is all thrilled over the inscription penned by Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., in their guest book. It was "a great spot and a great show."

WASHINGTON-HOLLYWOOD OPUS. Seasoned Washingtonians will recall Rox Roemhold, who led the band at the Rialto Theater in its days of glory. He's now with Warner Brothers, has just written the theme song, "Moonlight and Tears" for the new picture, "Four Mothers." Rox sent a first copy of the song to his old friend, Milton Davis, of the Rainbow Room who's playing it with tears in his eyes because, he says, "It's so wonderful that it'll never be popular."

THE ST. REGIS, glossy new cocktail spot on Pennsylvania Avenue near Eleventh Street, opened yesterday. It's done handsomely in the newest streamlined style, is a real "restaurant of 1941." Restaurateur Anthony Lagesano is the head man.

DANGER! Those hoydens, the Three Sophisticated Ladies, currently exciting onlookers at the Shoreham, take a lot of risks in their acro-romping. At an exclusive but patriarchal Western hotel, Gail Page (the blonde one) connected with the grandpa of all splinters while sliding over the floor. It was such a big splinter that Gail couldn't move until the wrecking crew arrived and either cut the floor out from under her or sawed off the splinter, we can't remember which . . . Adele Van, warbler with Paul Kain at Mayfair, is back on the bandstand after finding out that taking a bath is dangerous business. She had to take three days off to recover from a terrific tumble in the bath tub. Radio's Shannon Bolin subbed for her very prettily.

77-B is the number of the national bankruptcy act, but it's also the number of the station wagon that Movie Star Helen Vinson drove here from the West Coast, she confided in the Mayflower Lounge. La Vinson is thinking of buying a farm near Washington, making it her eastern home.

HILDA SIMMONS is hi-jacking the new show at Paul Young's. Whatagal! She sings with a cyclonic contralto swing, pianos a hectic boogie-woogie, has a gay glint in her eye. Her opening night reward was a storm of applause from an audience including many musicians and show people . . . You'll also like the debonair songs of Ben Perry, Rosalind Gordon's piquant stepping and the way Joan Brandon, girl magician, turns water into mystical cocktails.

Put next Tuesday down as a "must night" in the Neptune Room. It'll be "try-out night" for the first group of girl singers whom Milt Herth has been auditioning this week. This interesting canarying will occur between 9 and 10 p. m. Nice going girls!

CASINO ROYAL VIEWS. Manager Huey Liang verra pleased over the Muriel Kretlow revue to open in Casino Royal next Monday with clowning juggler Bill Penman and dancers Gill and Paris . . . Bob Preble singing "Stardust" especially for a cluster of sorority lasses . . . Those topsy-turvy ones, Manning and Stan, keeping audiences busy trying to decide whether they're dancers, singers or acrobats . . . We hear that bassist-singer Ray Nelson is organizing his own trio, be ready for engagements early in 1941.

SANTA CLAUS came early to Maestro Burrus Williams, of La Salle Versailles. He's just received a package of 30 dazzling new tunes straight from Rio de Janeiro. Movie Star Claire Trevor was among the first to dance to them on the evening after their arrival.

ON THE SWEET SIDE. Sonny James' Orchestra is going ultra-sweet in the Metronome Room. Their latest lodge is to mute all trombones. Much customer praise has resulted. The majority of folks like their melody sugared, it seems . . . Those warmly shivering Hawaiian numbers played by Don Carper's trio in Cafe Caprice. The gold fringe skirt that drapes Don's vibraphone quakes as though it's going into a hula . . . It's a choice moment in Hi Hat when Sandy Ross pianos Rachmaninoff's "Prelude" with tremendous expertness and spirit. He calls it his "wrapped in cellophane number" . . . You'll not hear anything sweeter around town than the vocal harmonies of cunning Peggy Wood and Helen Malcolm at the Silver Fox . . . Around midnight the Heintze Brothers and Jane Marlow sometimes play "Ave Maria" in the New Bavarian. The hush is absolute.

Bob Simpson's full orchestra with Linda Carroll will play in the Carl-a Simpson quartet for afternoon sessions on the other days of the week.

ALL IN FUN. "I Won't Go Home," brilliantly amusing ditty being done in El Patio by Freddie and May Dearborn. It was written by May and you'll say it's the cutest number you've heard for months . . . "That's All I Want to Know," light but mischievous specialty of Jack Norman, the Lounge Riviera's new table-to-table singer . . . That Viennese waltz with the Svengali touches and very peculiar spins being done in the Lotus by Terry and Walker who are runners-up to the great Hartmans in dance satire . . . Those nightly dance circuses presented by the Arthur Murray crew in the Pall Mall Room . . . The way Eileen George and Matt Windsor are doing "Down Argentine Way" in the Anchor Room. With all the original kiss-kisses you saw in the picture . . . And never, never miss "The Beeches and the Bassets," prize song of Archie Robbins, Del Rio's new prize phenomenon, whose whole act is like a string of firecrackers.

TREATS IN TASTE. Chicken cacciatore at Ciro's Famous Village. A great menu catch . . . The ravioli at Midrillon. U-m-m! . . . Stuffed pork chops at the Harrington's Cosmos Room for afternoon cocktail dancing tomorrow. There's ton Tavern. They give you that prosperous feeling.

WEEK-END SPECIALS. Kavakos Grill. Big floor shows on Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Dance to "Brownie's" Band. Barbara Brown is now in her fourth week as singer and mistress of ceremonies.

Nightingale. Every week-end is special at the 'Gale. Rodd Raffel's 14-man band likes to bring out the newest hit numbers on Fridays and Saturdays for the 500 or 600 dancers who pack the spot.

Gay 90's. Maestro Al Oddone always picks smart band novelties for week ends. On Saturday night you can record your singing or speaking voice, receive the resultant platter as a gift from the Gay 90's.

Peter Fritz' Log Cabin out Silver Spring way is a magnet for carefree week-end parties. Bring your own, or if you forget, the Log Cabin has a corps of trusty messengers.

Vote Inquiry Jury May Hear Flynn Monday

Edward J. Flynn, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, is scheduled to testify Monday before the special District grand jury investigating suspected violations of the Corrupt Practices and Hatch Acts.

Assistant District Attorney William S. Tarver, who announced Flynn's appearance, said no date has been fixed as yet for the testimony of Representative Joseph W. Martin, jr., of Massachusetts, chairman of the Republican National Committee.

Both party leaders were sought last week, when the inquiry opened. Pending their testimony, leaders of other groups have been heard.

Also called for Monday is Alexander Trachtenberg, treasurer of the Communist Party national election campaign committee.

Directing the grand jury investigation is Special Assistant Attorney General Maurice M. Milligan, who is United States Attorney for Western Missouri, assisted by Tarver and Special Assistant Attorney General Roy D. James.

Witnesses heard yesterday included John L. Lewis, chairman of Labor's Nonpartisan League and former president of the C. I. O. Lewis and the prosecutors declined to discuss his testimony.

Others heard yesterday were Robert O. Bonnell, Baltimore; Robert E. Smith, New York, assistant treasurer of the People's Committee to Defend Life Insurance and Savings; O. L. Garrison, controller of Labor's Nonpartisan League, and Samuel E. Pettengill, chairman of the National Committee to Uphold Constitutional Government.

James T. Huggins Dies in Pittsburgh

James T. Huggins, 82, native of Washington and retired veteran employe of the Government Printing Office, died yesterday in Pittsburgh where he had been living for the past five years, it was learned last night.

Funeral services will be held Monday at Hines funeral home, 2901 Fourteenth Street Northwest, and burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Huggins, friends here said, was a proofreader for many years in the Government Printing Office. He was a member of Columbia Typographical Union, and of National Lodge, No. 12, F. A. A. M.

Surviving is a sister, Mrs. Florence Whitney, of Pittsburgh.

Root to Take Park Position January 2

Irving C. Root, chief engineer of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission, will take office as superintendent of National Capital Parks on January 2, the National Park Service announced yesterday. He will quit the Maryland commission this week-end.

Lord Lothian as America Knew Him . . .

Meet 'Miss Flight Command . . .'

SHE'S ADELINE COX—Pennsylvania Central Airlines hostess

Twenty-year-old Adeline Betty Cox, said to be the youngest and prettiest hostess flying the airlines, is "Miss Flight Command." She's been a stewardess on the Pennsylvania Central Airlines for seven months and today was given the title. A group of judges selected her photo from those of other hostesses.

This queen of the skies will be hostess when "Flight Command," the M-G-M movie starring Robert Taylor, is screened for the press on Sunday night while a P. C. A. transport is in flight between here and Kitty Hawk, N. C. She'll participate in other activities arranged for Tuesday by the National Aeronautic Association which is sponsoring the hemispheric premiere of "Flight Command."

At a banquet at the Carlton Tuesday, followed by the first showing of this M-G-M drama of the Navy's fliers at the Capitol Theater, she will be present as one of the honored guests. Miss Cox graduated from a Detroit finishing school, lives in fashionable Sherwood Forest, Mich. Tennis and swimming are her favorite sports and we don't know how she will react to being called one of aviation's prettiest members for she won't be told that she is the winner until she flies into Washington today . . .

The Ad Club of Washington commended M-G-M for its "civic consciousness and spirit" in connection with its activities scheduled for Pan American Aviation Day, Tuesday, when "Flight Command" has its "hemispheric premiere" at the Capitol Theater. Loew's Eastern division manager, Carter Barron, accepted a scroll for M-G-M which was presented by Reid Wallace, vice president of the club. Charles Columbus, executive secretary, participated in the presentation ceremony in the Raleigh Hotel.

Nats Get Cramer for Walker; 7 Players Traded

Walker Goes To Cleveland In 3-Ply Deal

Red Sox Get Pytlak, Dobson, Hale; Give Up Bagby, Desautels; Nats Welcome Cramer

By Shirley Povich

Post Staff Writer

Roger Cramer, fleet outfielder of the Red Sox, became a member of the Nats yesterday in a deal for Gerald Walker which touched off a three-cornered trade ilnvolving seven players of the Washington, Boston and Cleveland clubs.

First stage of the deal was a straight swap of Cramer and Walker by the Boston and Washington clubs.

Within an hour, the Red Sox baited an offer to the Cleveland club with Walker and closed a deal with the Indians involving these players:

To Cleveland—Outfielder Walker, Pitcher Jim Bagby and Catcher Gene DeSautels.

To Boston—Catcher Frankie Pytlak, Infielder Odell (Sammy) Hale and Pitcher Joe Dobson.

Another Deal Brewing

It was the deal that had been brewing throughout this week's trading sessions of the club owners at Chicago. After the Nats' bosses returned from Chicago, acknowledging their willingness to trade Walker for Cramer, Cleveland and Boston officials haggled all day yesterday before announcing the trade.

The acquisition of Cramer by the Nats may be a forerunner of another deal in the making. Throughout yesterday, Clark Griffith was in telephone conversation with the St. Louis Browns, who are seeking Rick Ferrell in a swap for Outfielder Chet Laabs.

In parting with the colorful Walker, who spent only one year with Washington, the Nats acquired in Cramer one of the prize center fielders of the league. Cramer last season was one of the three American League batters to make as many as 200 hits. Over the season's play he outhit Walker, .302 to .295.

Cramer 34, Walker 32

Manager Bucky Harris announced that Cramer would immediately be assigned the Nats' center-field job in deference to his ground-covering ability and his throwing arm. The Nats will move George Case to right field.

Cramer is 34 years old, Walker 32. Cramer brings a lifetime average of .305 to the Nats, compared to Walker's .312 average over his major league career.

The Nats are sacrificing hitting power for smarter fielding and better throwing in the trade. Walker led the Nats in driving in runs last year, but Bucky Harris was not averse to parting with him despite the Nats' need of more punch.

"Allowances must be made for the fact that Cramer drove in only 50-odd runs last year," said Harris. "He was batting in second place in the line-up, which is not conducive to driving in runs. Cramer will bat second for us. We are still hopeful of obtaining an outfielder who will be our cleanup hitter.

Pytlak Bolsters Boston

The Red Sox, with a trio of outfielders in Ted Williams, Dominic DiMaggio and Lou Finney, at no time contemplated retaining Walker if they were able to make a deal with the Nats. They used him to bolster their weak catching department chiefly.

In Pytlak, the Boston team acquires a clever receiver who is the fastest catcher in the league on the baselines. Pytlak has been a dangerous if not hefty hitter during his career with the Indians. That career has been marked by frequent absences from the Cleveland team. Pytlak, complaining of illness, several times threatened to quit baseball. Last season he was a holdout for many weeks after the opening game.

Joe Dobson was regarded as one of the better of the Cleveland rookies. But that fact did not deter the Indians from including the tall pitcher in the trade with Boston inasmuch as it brought to the Indians what they hope is outfield hitting strength as personified by Walker. The Indians' pennant hopes were blasted last year by weak outfield hitting. In Jim

Lou Plummer Beaten on Mat By Steinborn

Milo Steinborn added to his local winning streak in the wrestling feature last night at Turner's Arena, stopping Lou Plummer in 34 minutes with a bear hug. It was the first sporting event in the renovated arena.

Tiger Tasker appeared without his beard in the semiwindup against Joe Cox and he left the ring without a victory, as Cox pinned him in 19 minutes with a body slam.

Tommy Rae and Carl Gray, the latest two-man team, defeated Ed Newman and Herb Freeman in straight falls, the first in 18 minutes and the second 30 seconds later.

Paul Boesch drew the biggest cheers of the night as he pinned Cherokee Charlie in 12½ minutes with a drop kick.

Boston College Holds Stiff Drill

Newton, Mass., Dec. 12 (AP).—The Boston College football squad was sent through a stiff scrimmage today—the first rugged contact work the Eagles have been given since they started preparing for their Sugar Bowl engagement with Tennessee.

All the squad members took part except Right End Gene Goodreault, who is recovering from a knee injury, and Lou Montgomery, colored halfback, who will not play in the New Year's Day game.

Coach Frank Leahy was not entirely satisfied with the showing made by his charges and promised them another stiff session tomorrow in order to bring them back quickly to their seasonal effectiveness.

Prior to the scrimmage the squad was given a lengthy drill on fundamentals and then ran through plays in a snappy signal session.

Eleven Pros Smash Par in $10,000 Golf

Heafner, Dudley Second With 68s; Al Houghton's 72 Leads D. C. Players

By the Associated Press

Miami, Fla., Dec. 12.—Ben Hogan, of White Plains, N. Y., the mightiest little man in golf, cracked out a 3-under-par 67 today to share the first round lead in the $10,000 Miami Open with hitherto obscure Ben Loving, of Springfield, Mass.

Hogan, front runner in the stretch battle for the year's money-winning honors, took a three-stroke margin over the number two man, Jimmy Demaret, of Houston, Tex., and had a two-shot leeway over Sam Snead, of Hot Springs, Va., third high.

Twenty-one golfers equaled or bettered par despite a brisk southeast wind.

Clayton Heafner, the big blond from Linville, N. C., and the veteran Ed Dudley, of Augusta, Ga., scored 68's.

Al Houghton, of the Indian Creek Club here and the Beaver Dam Club in Washington, D. C., led a four-man District delegation with a 35-37, 72, five shots behind the coleaders. Bob Barnett, of Indian Creek and Chevy Chase, Md., was next with 37-36, 73, followed by Leo Walper, Bethesda, Md., 37-37, 74, and Lewis Worsham, jr., also of Bethesda, 40-37, 77. Al Jamison, Claggett Stevens and Ernie Garlem, other District of Columbia pros in Miami, did not enter.

Seven professionals, including Snead, sliced a stroke off par with 69's. Among these was the day's hard-luck player, Harold (Jug) McSpaden, of Winchester, Mass., who took a penalty stroke after a long conference following his round.

Jimmy Thomson, of Chicopee, Mass., who also carded a 69, charged that McSpaden's ball moved while he was addressing it on the fourteenth green. The penalty gave McSpaden a five on the par three hole.

Others at the 69 notch were P. G. A. champion Byron Nelson, of Toledo, Ohio; Jim Turnesa, of West View, N. Y.; Claude Harmon, of Orlando, Fla., and Tommy Wright, of Knoxville, Tenn.

Hogan, out with a magnificent 31, was six under par until he hit the last five holes, which were very tough in the wind today and ruined many another fine score.

The 132-pound larruper bogeyed three out of those five holes to nullify half of his six birdies.

Loving went over par on just one hole, the first, the 31-year-old professional, who has been making the circuit for years but never won a tournament, was steady from tee to green with nine hole scores of 34 and 33.

The 20 leaders:

Ben Hogan, White Plains, N. Y.	31 36—67
Ben Loving, Springfield, Mass.	34 33—67
Clayton Heafner, Linville, N. C.	37 31—68

George Abrams Wins Decision Over Jannazzo

Two Judges Vote for Local Boy, Referee Casts Ballot for Loser

Special Dispatch to The Post

Baltimore, Dec. 12.—George Abrams, Washington middleweight, gained a split decision over Izzy Jannazzo, of Brooklyn, in a bristling ten-rounder tonight at Carlin's Park.

Two thousand fans saw Abrams' hand raised after the two judges cast their votes for him. The referee cast his ballot in favor of Jannazzo.

Abrams went into the ring at 159 pounds with an 11-pound advantage over Jannazzo, who recently was acclaimed the Maryland welterweight champion.

A factor against Jannazzo was his loss of the third round which was credited to Abrams when the referee ruled Jannazzo was guilty of low punching.

Bloody Battle

Long before the finish, both fighters presented a bloody spectacle. Abrams' eye was cut in the early rounds and he replied by punching a gash over Jannazzo's eyes.

ing battle. The clever Jannazzo, who has outboxed all of his opposition in recent years, met up with another clever boxer in Abrams. The punches with the greater authority were landed by Abrams.

The Washington middleweight, who is high-ranked nationally in his division, was set a torrid pace by Jannazzo but the latter's light hitting was ineffective.

There were no knockdowns. Jannazzo won the early rounds with his clever left-hand jabbing, but Abrams came back with a vicious punching attack that drove the New Yorker to cover.

In a preliminary bout, Roy Dunn, Washington middleweight, was knocked out by Bob Stone, of York, Pa., in the first round.

Tribe Discloses Tie-Up With Texans

El Paso, Tex., Dec. 12 (AP).—A 1941 tie-up with Cleveland of the American League for the El Paso Texans of the Arizona-Texas Baseball League was disclosed today by General Manager Grover Wilson.

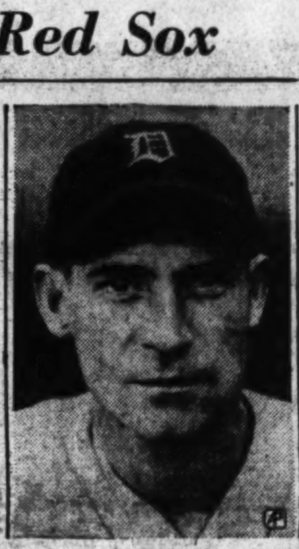
The Texans operated last season under an agreement with the San Francisco Seals.

Wilson said the Cleveland Indians had agreed to furnish El Paso with six players, pay part of their salaries and take first call on their services at the season's end.

Tigers Sell Pete Fox To Boston Red Sox

Price Undisclosed; Outfielder Played With Team 8 Years

By the Associated Press



PETE FOX

Detroit, Dec. 12.—Ervin (Pete) Fox, a ball player who gained a large following in Detroit by consistent, workmanlike performance, was sold today by the Tigers to the Boston Red Sox for an undisclosed amount of cash.

The 31-year-old outfielder, native of Evansville, Ind., had patrolled the Tiger gardens for eight seasons.

"Pete wasn't a regular here last year and we didn't figure he would make the grade in 1941," said General Manager Jack Zeller of the Tigers. "A change in scenery may benefit him. Everyone connected with the Tigers wishes Fox every success with the fine Boston club."

Announcement of the deal probably didn't surprise Fox because for long there has been gossip saying he was to be involved in this trade or that one. Barred from trading by the American League rule against a pennant winner, the Tigers today made one of the few straight cash sales in the history of the club.

Fox came to the Tigers in the spring of 1933 after having been developed at Beaumont of the Texas League by Del Baker, present Detroit manager. Fox was a Tiger regular through 1939, boasting a seven-year major league batting average of .303. Last season he alternated in right field with Bruce Campbell and Earl Averill, two former Cleveland Indians. He batted .289 in 93 games.

As a fielder Fox ranks among the best in the business. His arm is not regarded as powerful, but he throws with accuracy.

Fox was a pitcher before entering professional baseball. Bob Coleman, manager of the Evansville Club in the Three Eye League, urged Fox to become an outfielder. Before joining Detroit he spent three seasons at Tiger farms at Wheeling, Evansville and Beaumont.

Washington's Pro Cagers Win, 28-21

Brooklyn, Dec. 12.—Washington's Brewers found the range here tonight and turned back the Brooklyn Celtics, 28 to 21, after two straight losses in American Basketball League competition.

Phil Rabin and Moe Dubilier, each with 8 points, led the District contingent's scoring, with Ned Frankel bringing up the rear with 7. High scorer for the losers was Pete Berenson, who also tallied 8 points.

Golden Gloves Bouts Continue At Turner's

Forty-three seniors have weighed in and been approved by the District Golden Gloves committee and 12 of these will square off tonight as the second night of a five-week tournament stand is launched at Turner's revised arena at 8 o'clock.

Six bristling senior bouts and 14 novice attractions will round out one of the most promising cards of the entire tournament.

Two champions will be tested in the senior division when Danny Petro, last year's titlist at 112 pounds, steps up a notch to face George De Zerne, of the National Guards, at 118 pounds, and Leo Marcopulous, defending 135-pound champion, wars with Charley Gardner, unattached.

Nick Mancini, former District A. A. U. champion and runner-up to Billy Kekeris in the welterweight finals of a year ago, will duel Bobby Curtin, of the Huron A. C., in the 147-pound class.

One of the real finds of the year may develop in Roy Crombie, slugging welterweight of the Apollo Club, who battles Martin Howard, former Texas A. and M. athlete who boxes unattached.

Carl Ercoli, knockout sensation of the middleweight novice class last season, moves up a peg to oppose Wilbur Mason, of the Merrick Club, at 175 pounds.

Kimbrough, Here, Yearns To Be Rancher

Will Not Decide on Offer to Turn Pro Until After Jan. 1

By International News Service

"Jarrin' John" Kimbrough was grounded here last night, but it wasn't by an opposing line or by the reportedly "fat" contracts he has been offered if he would follow up his All-American football play at Texas A. and M. by turning pro.

It was the weather that grounded the 212-pound back, second choice to Michigan's Tom Harmon in the National Professional League football draft, and center of an interleague fight which may rival the old National-American league baseball battle of years ago.

En route to New York to talk things over with Jack McBride, of the New York Yankees of the American Pro League, the Eastern Airlines plane on which Kimbrough was a passenger was grounded here by bad weather after a flight from Atlanta.

"Definitely I will not sign a contract while I am in New York," said Kimbrough. "There is definitely no agreement. This is just a week-end pleasure trip. I'm going to make no decision at all until after January 1."

January 1 is the date of the Texas Aggies-Fordham clash in the annual Cotton Bowl game at Dallas, and Jarrin' John is looking forward to that game.

A Texas Aggies co-ed—Miss Gloria Stephan, in Washington for a visit—rushed up to greet Kimbrough, and between campus gossip lines, Kimbrough answered to questions:

"After all, I am a rancher, and want to be a rancher," adding with a grin:

"I'm going to ranch, and raise food and material for the Army."

Ralph Pittman, of Washington's Touchdown Club, and Max Farrington, athletic director at George Washington University, met Kimbrough and invited him to the club's January 6 dinner here. Kimbrough said he'd have to think it over.

He took a 1:05 a. m. train for New York.

D. C. Touchdown Club To Fete Bob Suffridge

The Touchdown Club of Washington voted yesterday to award the Knute Rockne Memorial Trophy for "the most outstanding lineman of the year" to Bob Suffridge, of the University of Tennessee.

The club told the Associated Press Tennessee University officials had assured them that Suffridge would be permitted to leave classes to attend the club's fifth annual dinner here on January 6, when the trophy will be presented.

Williamson Grid Ratings Tally With Vote

By Paul B. Williamson

Noted Football Selector

Though there was a difference in the order of their selection, the Williamson system of rating the Nation's college football teams takes credit for naming, with its mathematical ratings, the same four final leaders as picked in a popular vote.

In the popular poll the country's top teams were Stanford, with 5,691 votes; Minnesota, with 5,467 votes; Tennessee, with 5,394 votes, and Boston College, with 4,932 votes.

Our system put the leaders in this order: Tennessee at the top with a 99.1 rating; Stanford second with 98.6; Boston College third with 98.1, and Minnesota fourth with 97.0.

In an effort to take in the numerous peculiarities of football teams and their fans, our system used both the popular vote and its own scientific comparison for ascertaining the eventual standings. The "inspiration" of small teams which often accounted for upsets of superior foes was also taken into consideration.

On the basis of polling from various portions of the country the votes were marked as "home" and "away," after which allowances were made for local sentiment. The nation's 44 best teams thus came out in this order:

No.	College.	W.R.	Colleges.	Pts.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

POVICH

Three big league clubowners finally summoned enough courage to trade talent yesterday but the seven-player transaction among the Red Sox, the Indians and the Nats will scarcely have any league-rocking effects. There isn't an outstanding star in the lot, and some of the players aren't even good journeymen.

The Nats' part of the deal was not vastly exciting, but it does token improvement in the Washington outfield. Any team with Roger Cramer in its line-up instead of Gerald Walker is an improved club at least defensively. Cramer and Walker, in fact, are the only two men figuring in the seven-player deal who have managed to make themselves tolerable reputations in the big leagues.

Boston's acquisition of Frankie Pytlak, Odell Hale and Joe Dobson from the Indians will scarcely cause Mr. Jack Doyle to revise his winter book and make the Red Sox favorites to win the pennant. And the Indians, who acquired Walker, Catcher Gen DeSautels and Pitcher Jim Bagby won't leap into favoritism, either, off the deal.

The Red Sox needed catching and their catching will be bolstered by Pytlak, but not very emphatically. The little former Indian lost his job as the regular Cleveland catcher to Rollie Hemsley who has been steadily slipping. Pytlak will add very little to the Boston batting attack.

In Pitcher Joe Dobson and Infielder Sammy Hale, the Red Sox picked up what is known to the trade as barbecue. Hale couldn't hold down any sort of a job in the Cleveland infield during the past two years and was kept around mainly for his pinch hitting. Dobson has been regarded for three years as a promising pitcher who has rarely justified his promises.

Still very much unsolved is Boston's woeful pitching problem. The Red Sox threaten to go into the 1941 race with the same sort of hurling they had in 1940, which was the league's worst. Boston pitching is profaning an otherwise potent ball club.

Walker will help the Indians, but DeSautels and Bagby scarcely figure to bolster the Cleveland club. The Indians needed right-handed hitting strength in their outfield and Walker will doubtless give it to them if Manager Roger Peckinpaugh can abide his goofy base running. He is no ball of fire on defense, but the Indians can offset that by playing him in their short rightfield where the fielding and throwing demands aren't great.

DeSautels is a nice sort of lad, but he has been the chief reason why the Boston catching staff was never rated highly and why, finally, Jimmy Foxx was called behind the bat last season. The Indians will hardly use DeSautels much. In Bagby they have acquired one of the league's finest pitchers—in a hitting way. If Bagby could pitch as well as he could hit, he would do very well for Cleveland, but unfortunately he hits like a slugging outfielder and pitches like the same.

In Washington, Walker was a high favorite with the bleacherites—the people's choice, in fact. In Detroit and Chicago he similarly won the fans. He addressed himself to Washington's bleacher customers on the opening day of the season when he was irked by the silence among them. Turning to the stands, he cupped his hands to his mouth and shouted: "Make some noise up there, I like to hear it." When they booed him, Walker smiled. "That's better," he said. They booed him rarely after that.

Washington sacrificed color and excitement in the deal that brought Cramer to the Nats. The handsome, curly-headed outfielder sent here by the Red Sox is a drab journeyman compared to Walker. But in a baseball way, he does most everything better than Walker with the possible exception of driving in runs.

There isn't any doubt which position in the Nats' outfield will be assigned to Cramer.. It will be centerfield because he is the only good outfielder who has been with the club in several years. George Case will be moved to rightfield to make room for Cramer in center, a change that should be a welcome one for both Manager Bucky Harris and Washington fans.

Case for two years has profaned his speed by his inability to play centerfield. He gets off with the crack of the bat but, alas, in the wrong direction too often for Bucky Harris' peace of mind. Cramer has long been recognized as one of the fine centerfielders of the big leagues. Three times he was named to American League All-Star teams and it was not because of his hitting, which should give you an idea.

Cramer brings also to the Washington outfield its finest throwing arm since Goose Goslin was in his prime. His presence in the Nats' outfield bulks as a help also to Buddy Lewis in right and Case in left, inasmuch as they can now concern themselves with roaming only their immediate territory. Cramer can shade both left and right from his centerfield position, he's that clever.

The only fans who will be disappointed in Cramer are those who anticipate that he will knock the ball out of the lot. He won't. He's a good hitter, as his lifetime average of .305 attests. But he's a line-drive hitter who in two seasons has made only two home runs. He doesn't swing for homers but is content to make more hits than 95 per cent of the other hitters in the league.

Jimmy Wilson Voted Comeback Champ in Annual Sports Poll

World Series Hero Given Honor for Work in Classic

By the Associated Press

New York, Dec. 16 (AP).—Under necessity, 40-year-old Jimmy Wilson went behind the plate for the Cincinnati Reds in this fall's World Series. He was only a fill-in for Ernie Lombardi, but he did such a grand job of catching that today he was voted the year's No. 1 comeback in the annual Associated Press poll.

Seventy-eight sports editors from every section of the country gave Jimmy 102 votes for a courageous performance that included perfect handling of the Reds' hurlers for the six games, a .353 batting average and the only stolen base of the series.

Twenty-three of the writers placed the new Chicago Cubs manager at the top of the list. Twenty-four of them gave the No. 1 berth to Clark Shaughnessy, Stanford football coach, but Wilson received more second and thirds and won by 6 points on a 3-2-1 scoring basis.

Ball Players Dominate

There's no question but that Wilson qualified on all counts under the heading of "comebacks in individual competition." But the same cannot be said regarding Shaughnessy. Stanford's football team did come back from the cellar to the Pacific Coast championship, but the ability of Shaughnessy as a coach never was questioned even in his leanest years at the University of Chicago.

Baseball players easily dominated the poll, 13 of them receiving votes. Detroit's Schoolboy Rowe, although a failure in the World Series, did such a fine job of helping the Detroit Tigers win the American League Pennant that he ranked third with nine first and 37 points. Fred Fitzsimmons, veteran Brooklyn hurler, who won 16 and lost two, polled 23 points. Dick Bartell of the Tigers, Lou Finney of the Red Sox, Tex Carleton of the Dodgers and Dizzy Dean of the Cubs were other ball players that received five or more points.

Georgetown Defeats A. U. on Bornheimer's Late Baskets

American U. Loses, 41-35, In Thriller

Eagles Hold Point Lead With 3 Minutes Of Play Remaining; Schulze Is Star

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Georgetown's Hoyas gave Coach Ripley 40 anxious minutes last night before they pulled a close one out of the fire against American U., 41-35, in a ball game that had the packed house in the loser's gym on its feet through the final moments.

The Eagles led, 35-34, with less than three minutes to play when Bill Bornheimer, the 6-foot 4-inch sophomore center, came back in the ball game for Georgetown and in quick succession caged three timely baskets and the winning points.

Bornheimer, who scored 14 points, was taken out midway in the second half with three personal fouls. He came back just in time.

Strategy Puzzles Hoyas

Coach Staff Cassell pulled a fast one and it almost worked. His boys started using the man-for-man defense but when Georgetown took a 4-2 advantage the Eagles switched to the puzzling zone defense. Georgetown had been practicing against the freshman using the zone but it balked them for a while and American took a 16-13 lead late in the first half.

Bornheimer was also the star against the zone. He stood in the corner and flipped in four overhead baskets.

The lead see-sawed in the early going. The Eagles first passed the Hoyas at 7-6 and then the eventual winners took the first substantial lead at 13-9 on two baskets by Bornheimer and one of Jim Kiernan's patented "swish" shots. Here Dutch Schulze sparked the hosts to seven straight points and a 16-13 lead, with four minutes to play in the first half. Schulze, star shot and floorman of the Eagles, had personally accounted for 9 of his team's 16 points.

A. U. slipped at this point and Georgie Pajak, Capt. Irving Rizzi and Charlie Schmidli slipped in the markers that gave Georgetown a 21-18 halft-time lead.

Eagles Come Back Again

As in Tuesday's Western Maryland encounter, the Hoyas came out in the second half to make it a rout. Pajak, Rizzi and Schmidli tossed in telling points to make it 30-22 with ten minutes to play, as the scoring slowed.

The Eagles took time out at this point and with two minutes rest came back a new team. Bing Byham tossed in two spectacular field goals and Archie Norford arched a pair from near midcourt to tie the count at 30-30, and Ripley rushed in three substitutions.

For the next four minutes scoring was divided with A. U. taking a 35-34 edge before Bornheimer came in to tuck away the verdict. Byham left the game via the personal foul route with 1:19 minutes of game time remaining but the damage was done at this point.

Bornheimer's seven field goals accounted for scoring honors with 14 points followed on his team by Pajak, the senior who suffered a broken arm in the A. U. game last year. Dutch Schulze dropped three field goals and six out of nine foul shots for 12 points for the Eagles. Byham, Norford and Reese followed with eight, seven and six, respectively.

It was another double victory for the Hoyas as the freshmen doubled the score on Western High, 40-20, in a preliminary.

Yankee Sale Draws Near Completion

Brokers Say Deal Should Go Through In Next Few Days

By the Associated Press

New York, Dec. 12.—The $4,000,000 deal for the purchase of the New York Yankees by a group headed by James A. Farley will be completed within the next few days, brokers in the negotiations said today.

The office of Brown, Wheelock, Harris, Stevens, Inc., said there never has been any question involving the cash in the transaction, and that final details have been practically ironed out. Preston Goodfellow, cobroker, said he had been in touch with Farley and John Farber, of the law firm representing Farley, and had been informed by both men that Farley has the necessary funds to purchase the club.

The deal involves the purchase of the New York, Newark, Kansas City, Binghamton, N. Y.; Akron, Ohio; Norfolk, Va.; Butler, Pa., and Amsterdam, N. Y., properties.

The Rupperts own in fee the Yankee Stadium, and the Kansas City and Newark properties. The others are under lease.

The three properties owned outright are valued by the brokerage house as follows:

Yankee Stadium:
Construction	$2,117,560
Real estate	587,839
Equipment	582,699
Total	$3,288,098
Kansas City:

Long-Shot Victor Stymied a Train Near Baltimore

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, Dec. 12.—When a nag named Mudsill won the first race at Charles Town yesterday and paid $174.40 for $2, horse players scratched their heads and tried to remember where they had heard that name before.

The form charts showed Mudsill had never won a race in her six-year career—but Mudsill really did win an 8-mile dash last August 12.

She got out of her van on the traffic - crowded Hanover Street Bridge that sultry day and hightailed it for Lansdowne, with her handlers, police and railroaders chasing her.

Mudsill outran them all and didn't stop until she came face to face with a train. Fortunately, the train was stopped in time to preserve Mudsill for posterity—$174.50 for $2 worth of posterity, anyway.

On the Line

—With CONSIDINE

CONSIDINE

New York, Dec. 12.—The question to be answered at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night is "who learned the most from the first Overlin-Belloise fight?" They battle again tomorrow night, the hotsy totsy tar and the serious young man from the Bronx. The muddleweight crown again is on the line, and we have on tap one of the few even-money fights in years.

Overlin's favorite song at the clarinet caves lately has been "The last time I saw plaster of Paris." At least it felt like a ton of plaster hitting him when Belloise conked him in their last fight. He went down, full of skyrockets and ringing bells, and when he got up he fought by rote—the instincts of his years of boxing emerging through the fog of his torpor.

He, who is the smartest old boxer in action today, was hit and nearly knocked out by a sucker punch. Belloise led with a right—the cardinal sin of boxing—and, to quote Bugs Baer, knocked Overlin battier than a guano cavern. It was like a Broadway racket guy being rolled in snohomish. Overlin explained it this way:

"In ten years I must have fought a 150 of those fresh young punks . . . You know, local prides. I guess I had gotten too accustomed to outstabbing them. This fellow threw the rule book away. He keeps his left down around his skins and his other duke almost straight out—but still he can hit like a bullet."

Nearly everyone who saw their last fight came away not only in a dither but convinced that if Belloise had been a little wiser he would have won Ken's series 2-X world middleweight title, which is not to be confused with Tony Zale's world middleweight title or Billy Soose's world middleweight title claims. The kid was over-anxious and the brave old salt, leaking badly at the seams, outfumbled him until his head cleared. Belloise must have gained considerable ring wisdom out of the fight, and taken something out of Ken. Yet Ken has been around too long to expose the same chin twice. This makes the fight harder to pick than salt out of sugar.

Belloise's unorthodox style—he seems to fight by ear—jibes with the history of the middleweight division, which he someday should head. There was never a more unorthodox fighter than Harry Greb, and Johnny Wilson, Tiger Flowers and Lou Brouillard have been other form defiers who got away with it in this class, to become champions.

Overlin's idol was, and is, the late Harry Greb. "He could have taken all the modern middleweights in one evening and given them an awful pasting," Ken says in his frank way. "He was kind enough to help me when I first started, but I can't begin to do the things he could. He was one in a million. He'd take a deep breath, sail into a fellow and keep punching long after any other man would have had to step back and catch his breath. They never discovered the secret behind that until after his death. His autopsy showed that he had lungs twice the normal man's size."

To the keen satisfaction of those who know Overlin and have liked this intelligent fellow for years, Ken will make his first important money in years of fighting tomorrow night. Everyone who saw his first Belloise fight will want to see this one, and bring along the friends who couldn't believe it was as good as it was. The boys around Jacobs Beach are talking of a $65,000 gate, or more. And that means maybe $10,000 for Overlin, after the awesome cuts are taken out of his share. It is $10,000 which will begin to be put back into circulation just as soon as Ken can climb into his clothes after the match.

He gets 40 per cent of the net tomorrow night. He got about that much of a percentage the last time he fought Belloise, but the house was modest. Few figured the fight to be what it turned out to be.

Quail Hunting Season Is Cut In Virginia by Commission

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., Dec. 12.—Acting to conserve what many sportsmen and game warden's reports indicated was a depleted supply, the State commission of game and inland fisheries decided today to lop 16 days off the quail hunting season in eastern Virginia and five days off the season west of the Blue Ridge Mountains.

The new closing dates will be January 4 instead of January 20 for eastern Virginia, and December 26 instead of December 31 in the western part of the State.

The commission first decided to curtail the general hunting season and announced after an executive session that followed an open hearing on the quail situation that the January 4 and December 26 closing dates would apply to all upland game. Several hours later, however, the members reconvened and modified the original decision so as to make the curtailed season apply only to quail.

Conflicting opinions on the advisability of closing the season were presented by sportsmen and farmers crowding the old Senate chamber of the State capitol for the public hearing. The commission did not announce the vote by which the early closing was decided.

Chairman Carl H. Nolting said in reply to a question during the hearing that the meeting was called primarily for consideration of the quail problem and the first decision announced apparently was modified after further consideration of this situation.

The commission's order fixes the curtailed season's expiration on January 5 east of the Blue Ridge, but as that day is Sunday the season actually will close the evening of January 4. Nightfall on December 26 will ring down the curtain on the season in the rest of the State.

Ashton Dovell, speaker of the House of Delegates and a candidate for Governor, declared at the hearing that closing of the season, particularly on quail, would arouse the antagonism of a great section of the public. Dovell, a resident of Williamsburg, said in hunting in surrounding counties he had found quail about as abundant as in former years. He referred to a report prepared by the commission from information supplied by its game wardens indicating a scarcity of quail in 66 counties and asserted the report should have been made before the opening of the season.

Berwyn Equals Track Record in Winning at Charles Town

Taylor Rides Choice; Pays $4.60 Price

Gay Amazon Second, Dora May Is Third; Somali and Maecloud Are Winners

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Charles Town, W. Va., Dec. 12.—After delaying the start for several minutes while trying to toss off Jockey W. L. Taylor, Mrs. F. L. Karnow's Berwyn was all business when the running began and equaled the track record in winning the Catoctin Purse, best offering of the day. Berwyn was clocked in 1:15 1-5 for the Charles Town course (120 feet more than six furlongs) and becomes the fifth party to the mark. Lady Buck, Consistent, Blabiah and Pimlico Lady are the others to step the route in that time.

Berwyn was operating in the role of a favorite and paid a $4.60 mutuel. The son of Westwick and Tramer forged to the front going into the first turn. Taylor saved ground and took a little insurance in the stretch by putting Berwyn to a drive. Gay Amazon, racing for Mrs. E. A. Christmas, was second, beaten two lengths. Third money in the starting group of eight went to G. Simone's Dora May.

Somali Easy Winner

M. J. Reed's Somali, a disappointment at Bowie proved a good betting proposition here. The son of The Porter won by five lengths in a battle over the mile-and-a-sixteenth course. Jockey Glen Smith did the booting and left nothing to be desired by his backers. D. J. Sullivan's Lerno set the early pace and chased the winner home. Mrs. Tom Lewis' Goodwine was a beaten-off third. Somali paid $7.80.

The Tri-State Purse, located sixth on the program, went to the favored Maecloud, owned by Mrs. G. C. Brenton. Jockey R. Sisto did the riding and came to the wire two lengths in front of P. L. Fuller's Stand In. In third position was Mrs. W. Anderson's Hot Man. Stand In and Maecloud waged war all the way, with the latter drawing out at the end. The winner paid $3.60 and was clocked in 1.52 3-5, a fifth over the track record held by Easter Holiday for the mile-and-an-eighth course.

Lead Please Takes Lead

Lead Please took the lead in the opening jump of the first race and was never headed while performing for the favorite players. The 6-year-old mare, the property of H. O. Wilt, paid $5.20 and was clocked in 0:50 1-5 while leading Davidor and Vonnie to the wire. Jockey R. Tilden rode Lead Please. Several paddock tips were among the beaten horses.

The daily double paid $151.40. Fusionette, owned by D. V. Gallotta, of Washington, paved the way for the substantial pay-off by winning the second race at a $19.40 mutuel. Jockey Buddy Root rode in top fashion, saving ground and coming through on the rail to win by three lengths. Regalia and Wise Kitty followed the winner to the wire.

D. J. Sullivan's Irish Mirth took the third race at a $17.20 mutuel. Jockey Charlie Friedman made the 3-year-old filly overcome early trouble and booted her along to win by a length and a half over Corsica and Major B.

Charles Town Race Charts

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 12, 1940.
(Compiled by Walter Haight.)
WEATHER, CLOUDY. TRACK, FAST.

FIRST RACE—About 4½ furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 1:35½. Off 1:36½. Winner, H. O. Wilt's br. m. (6), by Prince of Wales—Marjorie M. Trained by W. T. Allen. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 0:50⅕.

Horses	Jockeys	Wt.	Post	St.	¼	Stretch	Fin.	Straight
LEAD PLEASE	(Tilden)	111	8	1	1^{3}	1^{3}	$1^{1½}$	$1.60
DAVIDOR	(Kelly)	111	6	3	4^{1}	$3^{1½}$	2^{no}	27.10
VONNIE	(Eversole)	109	1	5	2^{1}	2^{3}	3^{3}	14.70
GOLD BUCKLE	(Bernhardt)	111	4	7	7^{4}	7^{3}	4^{3}	9.30
BARRACA	(W. Kirk)	109	7	4	5^{nk}	5½	5¾	4.90
GREY LASSIE	(Taylor)	108	5	2	6^{h}	6^{3}	6^{1}	5.30
FANNING ISLAND	(Claggett)	108	2	6	3^{1}	4^{1}	7^{4}	4.90
HIGH AIM	(Everett)	109	3	8	8	8	8	18.70

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LEAD PLEASE, $5.20, $3.60, $3.20; DAVIDOR, $11.00, $7.60; VONNIE, $7.00.

LEAD PLEASE, first away, drew clear at once, and was not seriously threatened at any stage, but was kept to pressure to end. DAVIDOR could not keep up early, responded when shaken up and closed gamely. VONNIE had keen early speed and held on willingly. GOLD BUCKLE was slow to begin and closed some ground.

SECOND RACE—About 7 furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 2:09½. Off 2:10½. Winner, D. V. Galotta's ch. f. (2), by Caruso—Suffusion. Trained by W. T. Allen. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 1:36.

Horses	Jockeys	Wt.	Post	St.	¼	½	Str.	Fin.	Straight
FUSIONETTE	(Root)	109	3	2	$3^{1½}$	3^{2}	2^{4}	1^{3}	$8.70
REGALIA	(Everett)	110	8	5	$2^{1½}$	$2^{1½}$	2^{1}	2^{nk}	6.30
WISE KITTY	(Eversole)	106	6	3	1^{1}	1½	1^{nk}	3½	5.00
POP'S SISTER	(Taylor)	115	7	4	5^{1}	5^{4}	$4^{1½}$	4^{4}	1.50
MISINFORMER	(Kelly)	110½	1	6	4^{3}	$4^{1½}$	5^{3}	5^{3}	3.10
GLOW ON	(Brinson)	109	5	1	$6^{1½}$	6^{1}	6^{3}	6^{nk}	41.20
GOLD CAP II	(Pierson)	110	2	8	7^{3}	7^{3}	7^{4}	7^{3}	36.60
BLACKFAST	(G. Smith)	113½	4	7	8	8	8	8	82.00

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FUSIONETTE, $19.40, $10.40, $6.80; REGALIA, $8.00, $5.40; WISE KITTY, $4.60.

FUSIONETTE, off in first flight and kept on rail to save ground while close up, came through on inside entering stretch and wore down leaders to win going away. REGALIA was under punishment from start and closed with good energy. WISE KITTY forged to front at once, set good pace, but weakened in closing test. POP'S SISTER was not a serious factor.

THIRD RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 2:37. Off at once. Winner, D. J. Sullivan's b. f. (3), by Sun Meadow—Irish Morn. Trained by S. Hicks. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:21.

Horses	Jockeys	Wt.	Post	St.	¼	½	Str.	Fin.	Straight
IRISH MIRTH	(Friedman)	109	5	4	4^{1}	$3^{1½}$	$3^{1½}$	$1^{1½}$	$7.60
CORSICA	(Sisto)	107	6	8	8	8	6½	2^{no}	15.70
MAJOR B.	(W. McDonald)	106	7	7	3½	2^{1}	1^{h}	3^{h}	7.10
ROYAL VEIL	(Taylor)	114	4	1	1½	1^{h}	2½	4½	4.60
SCULLERY MAID	(Scocca)	108	2	6	5½	7^{nk}	7^{1}	5^{3}	21.80
CHALLANTE	(Martinez)	107	8	5	7^{3}	4^{h}	4^{1}	6^{3}	1.60
CHANCER	(Hacker)	111	1	2	2^{3}	6^{1}	8	7½	12.90
RAVENHURST	(Claggett)	106	3	3	6½	5^{1}	5½	8	6.10

Two-dollar mutuels paid—IRISH MIRTH, $17.20, $11.60, $8.00; CORSICA, $12.40, $9.60; MAJOR B., $5.80.

IRISH MIRTH, in trouble at first turn, came out to improve position gradually and disposed of leaders to win going away. CORSICA was shuffled back early, took overland route and closed with bold rush to be going fastest at end. MAJOR B. was sent to contention with rush on backstretch, disposed of ROYAL VEIL, but could not resist other two. ROYAL VEIL, first away, saved ground while setting pace and weakened when real test came.

Daily Double, FUSIONETTE and IRISH MIRTH, Paid $151.40

FOURTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won handily; place easily. Went to post 3:07. Off 3:07½. Winner, M. J. Reed's b. h. (6), by The Porter—Kenya. Trained by L. L. Chambers. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 1:48.

Horses	Jockeys	Wt.	Post	St.	¼	½	¾	Str.	Fin.	Straight
SOMALI	(G. Smith)	115	7	8	7½	2^{h}	$1^{1½}$	$1^{1½}$	1^{5}	$2.90
LERNO	(Friedman)	109	1	1	1^{1}	1^{nk}	$2^{1½}$	2^{3}	2^{3}	3.90
GOODWINE	(Sisto)	107	5	3	4½	5½	$5^{1½}$	5^{3}	3½	2.30
MENEN	(Eversole)	109	4	4	$3^{1½}$	4^{3}	4^{3}	4^{3}	4^{3}	16.70
TONIANNA	(Bernhardt)	109	8	7	5^{h}	7^{nk}	6^{h}	6^{nk}	5^{nk}	9.50
SWING IT	(Taylor)	109	6	6	6½	8	8	8	6^{h}	5.40
MERAB	(Brinson)	109	3	2	$2^{1½}$	$3^{1½}$	3^{3}	3½	7^{4}	38.00
NIMBLE PINS	(Tilden)	111	2	5	8	6½	7^{1}	7^{3}	8	56.70

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SOMALI, $7.80, $4.60, $3.20; LERNO, $5.40, $3.40; GOODWINE, $2.80.

SOMALI, off slowly, went to leaders with bold rush on backstretch, took command without effort and won with speed in reserve. LERNO, first away, saved ground while setting pace and was no match for winner. GOODWINE was listlessly handled and can do better. MENEN had early speed and weakened.

FIFTH RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $600. The Cacotin. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:38. Off 3:39. Winner, Mrs. F. L. Karnow's ch. g. (4), by Westwick—Tramar. Trained by Miss M. Manya. Value to winner, $425; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:15⅕. (Equals track record.)

Horses	Jockeys	Wt.	Post	St.	¼	½	Str.	Fin.	Straight
BERWYN	(Taylor)	117	6	4	$1^{2½}$	$1^{1½}$	1^{2}	1^{2}	$1.30
GAY AMAZON	(Claggett)	103	5	6	5^{3}	4^{nk}	3^{1}	$2^{1½}$	11.00
DORA MAY	(Conley)	114	4	1	2½	2^{1}	2½	3^{nk}	4.60
LEGENDA	(Fels)	114	2	3	8	8	$6^{1½}$	4^{h}	8.40
IRISH MOON	(Sisto)	107	3	2	6^{3}	7^{1}	5^{3}	5^{4}	12.70
BEAMING LADY	(Napier)	111	1	7	$4^{1½}$	3½	4^{3}	6^{3}	11.10
STEPPES	(Root)	108	8	8	7^{1}	6^{nk}	8	7^{1}	23.70
KINGDOM	(Dufford)	111	7	5	3^{1}	5^{4}	7^{nk}	8	7.40

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BERWYN, $4.60, $4.40, $3.20; GAY AMAZON, $7.80, $4.80; DORA MAY, $4.00.

BERWYN assumed command at first turn, drew out to good lead, but was put to pressure in closing stages. GAY AMAZON was within striking distance from start, responded gamely to pressure and closed willingly. DORA MAY was closest to pace from start, was hard ridden and weakened in closing sixteenth. LEGENDA was allowed to lag early and closed some ground. IRISH MOON came willingly at end.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. The Tristate. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post 4:08. Off 4:08½. Winner, Mrs. G. C. Brenton's b. m. (6), by High Cloud—Sarah Ginger. Trained by G. C. Brenton. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:52⅗.

Horses	Jockeys	Wt.	Post	St.	¼	½	¾	Str.	Fin.	Straight
MAECLOUD	(Sisto)	112	1	2	2^{3}	$2^{1½}$	$2^{1½}$	1^{h}	1^{2}	$0.90
STAND IN	(Pierson)	107	2	1	1½	1½	1^{nk}	2^{3}	2^{3}	3.90
HOT MAN	(Claggett)	101	5	3	4^{h}	3^{h}	4^{1}	3^{2}	3^{4}	5.00
MARGO G.	(Conley)	112	6	6	6	6	6	6	4^{3}	16.20

JULES LAZARD	(Vesseli)	107	4	5	5^{10}	5^{10}	3^{h}	4^{h}	6	17.30

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MAECLOUD, $3.60, $2.60, $2.60; STAND IN, $3.60, $3.00; HOT MAN, $3.00.

MAECLOUD, steadied early while closest to pace of STAND IN, drove to lead when put to drive and was kept to stout urging to end. STAND IN went to front at once, saved ground, but could not resist winner and was best of others. HOT MAN went evenly and was held safe. MARGO G. dropped far out of it and closed with bold rush.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:41. Off 4:41½. Winner, Mrs. E. Snell's ch. g. (5), by Omar Khayyam—Better Believe. Trained by G. Mohr. Value to winner, $380; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:48.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CREDENCE, $10.20, $5.00, $4.00; MAMIE'S LAD, $7.00, $4.80; JUNGLE MOON, $4.00.

CREDENCE, first away, saved ground while setting pace, shut off MAMIE'S LAD approaching stretch and just lasted under hand ride. Taylor's foul claim against winner was not allowed. MAMIE'S LAD improved position gradually on inside, was taken up when shut off and came with rush on inside in closing sixteenth. JUNGLE MOON raced in first flight from start and hung in final drive. PLAYMORE was forced wide while making move and was held safe.

Selections at Charles Town

Dear Al:

Walter Lee Taylor, second leading rider this year in the United States, and still very much in the redhot scrap for championship, picked up one point Wednesday on Earl Dew, the leader. Dew failed to bring home a winner in California, but Taylor kicked in with one at Charles Town, bringing his score for the year to 264, against Dew's 273. It is of more than passing interest to note that both Dew and Taylor already are well in advance of the numbers of victories that any riding champion has turned in since Jackie Westrope's 301 in 1933. Last year, Don Meade won the crown with 255; in 1938 Longden (Johnny) won with 236; J. Adams was the tops with 260, and the year ahead of that, Basil James copped the royal robes with 246. In 1935, Charlie Stevenson made first place with only 206 victories, and in 1934, Maurice (Moose) Peters was the leader with 221. The greatest number of victories scored by any riding leader since 1895 was W. Miller's 388 in 1906. Sometimes one has to make a mistake to find friends. I was a bit balled up on that race in which Chase Me broke his leg. I received several letters and they were all of a most friendly character. I can't get to the records right now but I'm going to look it up and set everybody straight. Jockey Charley Friedman is not the leading rider here in the number of winners but he has the best percentage of winning mounts. The bugle call showed a lot of improvement yesterday but was not up to the standard set here by the boy who held the job for years. He's gone to college. Happy Gordon, outrider at the Maryland tracks, was a visitor yesterday. Jack Bishop, the trainer, was rushed from the Bowie track to Baltimore for an appendectomy according to word received here. Trainer J. C. Metz says O Play broke down in Wednesday's feature race. Jockey Sammy Wiesman, who won with Fandan the other night, is a good boy who has operated in Kentucky and California for the most part. See you on the rail. BILL.

First race—Pack Saddle appears best placed of those gathered for the the first race. Gets in light and has worked well. Mike's Grace has plenty of speed and it will be difficult to keep him out of contention. Waugh Scout for the minor award.

Second race—Eltonhead suffered interference last out and promises to do a lot of running if he escapes trouble this time. Callao won that last and is fit as hands make horses. Owaller won here and is dangerous.

Third race—Frank H. was sent to the front and run into the ground last out. If he gets a rating ride, this one should take it all in this field. Channing is an in-and-outer in clever hands. May awaken with a bang in this company. Blue Cyclone for the show end.

Fourth race—Big Steel had plenty of trouble in that last and it was a crime he was beaten. Steps up in this field but I'm forced to string along. The Bowman entry of Schley Goree and Navigation is formidable and is liable to draw the bulk of the betting. Harebell for the show.

Fifth race—Weatherite appears to have found the right spot in this field. The route suits and I believe this one can carry the 111 pounds and do it. Jerisa was a winner at Bowie and will be hard to beat. Buckle Up will be close if he gets into action.

Sixth race—Here Goes appears to have an edge over this gang. Needs only the right ride. Red Wrack must be considered despite the 121 pound assignment. Shailleen for the minor money.

Seventh race—Remolee, winner here, may make it two in a row. Should go this far and I'm going to string along. Heel Dust will be dangerous if taken off the reserve list. Clymene has been away a long time but she will be in there knocking.

Sub race—If this event is used, I'll take Silver Beam, Westing and Stonehaven.

Best—Here Goes.

Virginia Gold Cup Set for May 3

Warrenton, Va., Dec. 12 (AP).—The Virginia Gold Cup Association will hold its twentieth annual meeting on the Broadview course here May 3, 1941. Date for the four-race program was approved at a recent meeting of the hunts committee of the National Steeplechase and Hunt Association in New York.

Kitty Smith's 325 Set High In Pin League

Census Bureau Bowlers Led by Ellen Brown's 325

Helene Heinrick, Toggery Shop, and Kitty Smith, C. & P. No. 2, were the stars of the Clarendon ladies' meet, the former getting 144 for top game as the latter took a 325 count for the set. The Maccabees worked best as a team, topping the others with 508—1,394. C. & P. No. 2 was the only team to win all three, taking them from Southern Oxygen.

CENSUS BUREAU

Ellen Brown, Population, was the standout in the Census Bureau ladies' meet at Columbia, taking all the honors with her high game and set of 126—315, respectively, and helping her girls get the team prizes with 504—1,443. The Population girls won the first half of the race.

CONN. AVENUE

Zora Corley, Orioles, was best in the Connecticut Avenue Ladies' League at the Ice Palace, making away with the top scores of 118 and 314 and helping her team take the set count with 1,326. The Blue Jays were team-game winners with 480.

BUREAU OF STANDARDS

Bill Rieser, Cosmos team of the Bureau of Standards loop at the Ice Palace, took the highs with a nice 148-388. The Physicists were too good for the others on team game, getting a 597 score, while the Office took a 1,655 count for the set.

LADIES' FEDERAL

In the Ladies' Federal rolling at Arcadia the high game and set for individuals were taken by Inez Bryan, G. P. O., who counted 145 and 355 to win, thus helping her quintet to high team set with a nice 1,572. The Marines broke up the G. P. O.'s party, however, by taking the team game with 546.

D. C. GOVERNMENT

The District of Columbia Government boys at Brookland discovered that Marty Alexander, Sewer Department, had 145 for high game but had to divide honors with Bob Smith, Highway Department, who equaled the game and then went on to take high set with a 381, leading his boys to team highs with 602 and 1,697.

Col. Bradley Passes Another Milestone—81st

Venerable Turfman Spends Birthday With Sister on Kentucky Farm

By the Associated Press

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 12.—Lonely, in his beautiful blue grass mansion, Col. Edward Riley Bradley, turfman, is 81 years old today.

The famous horse breeder, whose thoroughbreds won four Kentucky Derbies, spent the day with his sister, Mrs. Catherine Bailey, of Philadelphia, the only guest at Idle Hour Farm. The colonel's health these days is poor.

If Kentucky's weather continues to be pleasant, Bradley plans to remain here until January 1, when he will leave for his annual visit to Palm Beach, Fla., where he has a night club enterprise.

The venerable horseman, who once told a Senate committee he "gambled on anything," has had a career which found him at one time or another a Pennsylvania steel mill laborer, a Texas cowboy, an Arizona prospector, an anti-Apache Government scout and a Chicago clothing store operator.

In 1906 he purchased 336 acres near Lexington and since then has expanded the tract to 1,390 acres. Green and white buildings, 35 in number, are scattered across his estate, which annually lures hundreds of sightseers.

The colonel suffered an emotional setback last May when Bimelech, his prize pet, failed to win the Kentucky Derby, losing to the longshot, Gallahadion.

Olin Gentry, Idle Hour Farm manager, said today Bimelech is at Hialeah Park in Florida, completely recovered from his foot injury and "doin' fine." Bim is prepping for Hialeah's $50,000 Widener Handicap.

Generous with orphans and needy children, Col. Bradley already has made his yearly contribution of food and money for the unfortunate youngsters' Christmas season.

Double Bills Start Tonight At Tech High

Gonzaga and Wilson, G. W. High, Johnnies Feature Day's Card

The first of the scholastic doubleheaders which Gonzaga and St. John's High Schools inaugurated successfully last year, will be staged at Tech gym tonight, the Purple pairing off with Woodrow Wilson in the opener at 7:45, and the Johnnies meeting G. W. High, of Alexandria, at 9 p. m.

Every team except St. John's has played at least one game to date, so tonight's action should be headlined by the first appearance of Coach Gene Augusterfer's "dark horse" five.

Also on the night schedule are games between Eastern and Washington-Lee High, and Maryland School for the Deaf and Montgomery Blair, both on the floor of the latter.

The afternoon card calls for invasions of Bethesda-Chevy Chase by Central; Hyattsville by Anacostia; Roosevelt by Baltimore City College; Woodward Prep by Franklin Day School and Herndon by Fairfax.

Daily Double Dream Comes True for $413

Special Dispatch to The Post

Williamsport, Dec. 12.—Vernon Gruber, local restaurateur, is $413 richer because he believes in dreams. When one member of his household told him she had dreamed of having two handfuls of money after wagering on a daily double. Nos. 6 and 7, Gruber went to the Charles Town track that afternoon and bought a ticket on these numbers, which won and paid $413.

Bill Ackerman On Fishing

Throughout the 1940 season, from North Carolina to Long Island, there was considerable talk about bluefish and their migrations, mainly because of their absence from their usual spawning grounds off the Jersey Coast during the summer, and their failure to put in an appearance along the beaches and in the inlets early in the fall. The latter fact disproves the theory of many, that the blues schooled far offshore.

ACKERMAN

In October the schools appeared off the coast of southern Florida, and anglers again were happy, for it looked as though the cockeyed run had returned to its normal orbit. But November was something else, for the bluefish just weren't around. Jensen netters, who usually hit them heavy, have caught but a few stragglers, and so far this month conditions have failed to improve.

Now, and added to the numerous theories already advanced, comes another theory that seems to be logical, except for one reason. It is that the blues were driven around Cape Florida during the unprecedented cold wave of last January and February, and finding conditions to their liking, remained for the lush feeding along the Gulf coast.

The unaccustomed catches of blues by Pensacola commercial men prove that a change has been made from the usual migratory routes. That it was due to the cold is something that hardly coincides with the water temperatures in which they make their usual northern spring run. It is true that air readings were lower than most Floridians can remember, but water readings were never lower than 60 degrees, some 6 degrees above the temperature in which they are caught off the Virginia and Maryland coasts during May.

With that single exception, we can agree with the new theory, and that probably is the reason for the change.

We prefer to wait out 1941 to confirm it, however, for there is that little matter of the schools that lay off the North Carolina coast below Hatteras during April. Where they went during the balance of the summer is the real mystery of the season.

Even though the Ruppert contest shows but a few small entries, and the Field and Stream contest had but one, there were bluefish caught in Northern waters—very few, according to normal standards, it is true. Couldn't it be blamed partially to the natural cycle of increase and decrease which is more pronounced in almost all other species, but still the deciding factor in the size of our summer schools—and that, after all, they did lay far offshore?

The fact that we didn't get them here in Chesapeake Bay waters isn't anything out of the ordinary. Weather and conditions off the Carolina coasts during April and May appear to be the governing factors for the September and October bluefishing here. As early as mid-June it was freely predicted we would have no run in 1940.

Gallaudet, Wilson Open Big Week-End Court Card Tonight

Terps Host To Richmond Tomorrow

George Washington Opens in Lexington Tomorrow Night; A. U. Host to Terrors

Gallaudet and Wilson Teachers College courtmen open their annual intra-city rivalry tonight in the former's gym in the opening game of the first big college basketball week-end of the young season.

It is Gallaudet's first home game and will start at 8 p. m.

Both the Blues and Wilson started last week and dropped their first two games, Gallaudet to Elizabethtown and Susquehanna, while Wilson bowed to Albright and Baltimore.

The Owls gave Albright a run for first half, however, and pressed a good Baltimore team for the entire 40 minutes so they will be in the favorite's role for the first game of the home-and-home series.

Coach Blair Smith will regain one of Gallaudet's depenables, Duick, who was out with an injury. He will not break into the starting line-up of Ludivico and Johnson, forwards; Weingold, center, and Padden and Hanson, guards, but is expected to play most of the game.

Terps Meet Spiders

Tomorrow night's four-game card will find Maryland opening up with Richmond and American U. host to Western Maryland while George Washington and Wilson will travel. The Colonials meet Washington and Lee at Lexington, Va., while Wilson meets Randolph Macon on the Virginia court.

Coach Burton Shipley has promoted Jim "Pop" Wharton to a starting role in place of sophomore Joe Baumann for the Terps opener with the Spiders in a Southern Conference engagement.

Gene Ochsenreiter and Artie Woodward, the only returning letterman will start at forward with Irving Gordy at center and Bob Fetters at guard with Wharton.

The squad has been cut to ten men and Baumann, Dick McHale, Ashton Garrett, Leib McDonald and George Jarmoska complete the roster. The starting team will average better than 6 feet 1 inch.

Richmond opened with a 31-to-29 victory over Hampden-Sidney team, and showed a good first five but a lack of reserves. Mac Pitt, jr., son of the Spider coach, led the attack.

Coach Bill Reinhart's rangy, veteran squad, sharpened by several weeks practice, will meet a Washington and Lee club that is touted as better than last year's Big Six champions. Both clubs are untested in competition, the Generals scheduled opening game Wednesday night having been postponed.

G. W. Has Two Games

G. W. will come back for a big pre-Christmas campaign next week that includes Monday and Saturday games in Tech gym with Davidson and Duke, respectively, and Wednesday's important clash with the powerful Oklahoma Aggies, National Championship claimants last year.

The Aggies defeated Texas, 48 to 42, Wednesday night.

American U. will open its Mason-Dixon Conference schedule tomorrow night against the improved Green Terrors of Western Maryland. The Westminster club has three good sophs on the squad and are likely to improve with each game. They looked good against Georgetown for a half on Tuesday night.

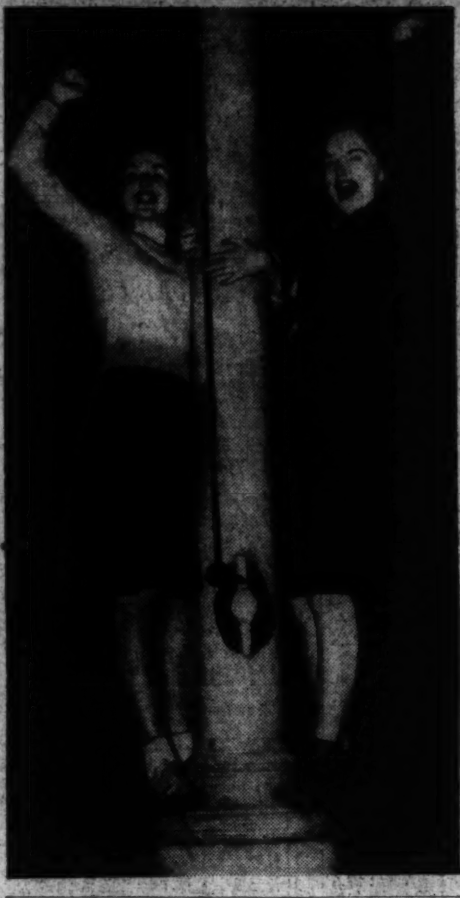
Catholic U. cagers are drilling afternoons and nights for Sunday's annual opening tilt with the Alumni, and next Friday's game with Duke.

The 1940-41 Cardinal squad will meet the Old Grads at 3 o'clock Sunday in the Brookland gymnasium and for the first time in three years the Old Grads will be favored. Intermural boxing bouts will be added to the card.

The Freys Sign Up New Second Sacker

Cincinnati, Dec. 12 (AP).—There's a new member in the "home team" of Lonnie Frey, second baseman for the Cincinnati Reds. Traveling Secretary Gabe Paul found this telegram from the Frey home in St. Louis on his desk today: "Six-and-three-quarter-pound boy arrived Saturday noon. Mother and baby fine."

They Hope to Lead Yells for the Buff and Blue



After years of having masculine cheer provokers, G. W. will send girl yell leaders onto the court during the approaching cage season. Above is a portion of the number which tried out for berths last night (left to right)—Anne Neamon, Mary Ida LeBrou, Faye Griffith, Bee Hackstaff, Betsy Moser, Mino Brown, Mary Ellen Hopkins, Mary Henshall, Miriam Jaggers, Cherrie Frost, Mary Garrett and Betty McCombs. Vitt Takes Salary Dun to Landis

Cleveland, Dec. 12 (AP).—Oscar Vitt, former manager of the Cleveland Indians, has taken his $2,500 salary dun against the Tribe to Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis, President Alva Bradley said today.

Vitt, recently named manager of the Portland, Oreg., baseball club, contended the sum was due him under a supplementary agreement to his bonus contract for last season.

Bradley asserted Vitt apparently misunderstood the terms, and agreed to send the club's record to Landis for study along with the manager's papers.

$11,000 Golf Open Listed for Chicago

Miami, Fla., Dec. 12 (AP).—Fred Corcoran, P. G. A. tournament bureau manager, announced today that an $11,000 Open, offering the largest purse so far in the 1941 schedule, would be played next September 4-7 at Chicago.

The first annual tournament, to be called the Tam O'Shanter Open, will be played at the Tam O'Shanter Country Club course, scene of the Chicago Open last summer. Dick Metz, of Oak Park, Ill., won that event. Corcoran received confirmation today from George S. May, club president.

Germania Meets Y.M.C.A. Gymnasts

Germania Club, of Baltimore, will furnish competition tonight for the local Y. M. C. A. gymnastic team's first home dual meet of the season at 8:30.

Both men and women will be in action during the event, which is the first in a series which will be concluded with the national Y. M. C. A. gymnastic championships here on April 19, 1941.

Outstanding male entries will be Ernest Gaither and Howard Burger, the first high point scorer in the interstate championships for the past five years, and the second the big gun of the District team which placed second in national competition last year. Consetta Garuccio, of Germania, will stand out among feminine contenders.

Boss Cheerleader Mike McKool Lionized at G. W. Coed Tryout

Thirty Girls Perform as D. C. School Selects First Feminine Yell Leaders

By Bill Burnett

If they were selecting a young lady to attend the Black and White Ball with Clark Gable the competition couldn't be hotter than it is at George Washington University, where they're picking their first girl cheer leading squad in history.

Most everybody wants to lead the cheers. Girls who ordinarily are models of propriety go about assuming poses like nineteenth century boxers, shouting "Yea, Buff." Young ladies who know Mike McKool, masculine head of the Colonial howling department, look down their noses at young ladies who don't. And those who can do a cartwheel without fracturing their spines, are the toast of the campus.

Last night the last tryout of candidates was held in the G. W. "yard" behind Lisner Hall. Fourteen girls appeared then, bringing the total to about 30 who had gone through their best gyrations in two nights. Now they must wait for McKool, who has the final say, to pick the six best, or loudest, or prettiest, or something. After that they'll probably be out for McKool's scalp.

Because this will be G. W.'s first squad of girl cheer leaders in 121 years of having male or no cheerleaders, something ofo a ceremony will be made of the final choice.

When Colonial cagemen open their home season at Riverside Stadium next Tuesday night against Oklahoma A. and M., every feminine candidate for the yelling team will be on hand. They will be in ignorance of their fate, but high hopes will be burning in each delicate heart.

At halftime drums will roll, the trumpets blare, and McKool will announce his selections. From then on Buff and Blue cheering will be in the hands of the gentle sex, a condition the young ladies of G. W. have been seeking for the past ten years.

Mary Browne, Tennis Star, To Talk Here

Miss Mary K. Browne, three times national singles tennis champion and Wimbledon doubles champion, will be guest leader at a conference on athletics for high school and preparatory school girls tomorrow at George Washington University.

"Opportunities and Responsibilities of Girls in Athletics Today" will be the theme of the conference, which is sponsored by the faculty and major students of the physical education department of the university. Sessions will begin at 9 a. m. and last until 4:30 p. m., and will feature round table discussions, a tennis demonstrations, exhibits, speeches and a luncheon.

Ten students from 23 schools in the District and nearby vicinity have been invited and many others are expected to attend unofficially. Miss Browne will speak at a general conference at 10 o'clock and again at a luncheon. Entertainment at the luncheon will include dances by the Orchesis group and songs by the Glee Club.

The tennis demonstration will begin at 2:30 p. m., and university graduates who majored in physical education for women and members of the university tennis classes have been invited to attend the demonstration and a tea for Miss Browne at 4:30.

Boston	2	11	1	40	58	5

Tonight—Baltimore at WASHINGTON, Boston at Atlantic City.

Tomorrow — WASHINGTON at River Vale, New York at Boston, Baltimore at Atlantic City.

The league-leading Washington Eagles will be seriously challenged at Riverside Stadium tonight at 8:30 o'clock when they entertain the champion Baltimore Orioles in a crucial Eastern Amateur Hockey League match.

Hundreds of Baltimore fans will be included in a crowd that is expected to test Riverside's 4,500 capacity.

The always fierce rivalry involving these intercity foes will be stepped up tonight inasmuch as the Orioles automatically will deadlock Washington for the league's lead in the event of victory. As the result of a recent spurt the defending champions now are trailing the Eagles by a scant two-point margin, 20 to 22.

Coach Redvers Mackenzie, grimly determined to head off Baltimore's challenge and to all but clinch the Hershey Cup series, will return Gordon Hemming to goal tonight. The Eagles will face one of the finest freshman net tenders the Eastern League has produced in many years in Frank Ceryance.

Tough Boys on Team

Baltimore's Bully Boys also will bring a trio of pugnacious defensemen in Bob Dill, Jack Dyte and Guy Roach and a pair of small, but alert, centers in George Grigor and Ken Partis, the latter with the Eagles last season. Also a sensational scoring wingman in Carl Ripley, one of the fastest pucksters in the Eastern League.

Ned Vitarelli, swift skating, high scoring wingman, also will be spotlighted by the champions. Vitarelli was credited with four points a few weeks ago as the Orioles defeated Washington in Baltimore. The Eagles hold the series' edge to date, 2 matches to 1.

Three of tonight's combatants have been warned by President Thomas Lockhart, jr., of the Eastern League, against unnecessary roughness. John McTeer, of the Eagles, and Dill and Roach, of Baltimore, all defensemen, are the players designated.

Engaged in Fight

Dill and McTeer engaged in a toe-to-toe slugfest that culminated in a pitched battle involving players of both teams recently as the Eagles defeated Baltimore at Riverside, 8 to 3. Both offending players were administered misconduct penalties and suspended for one match. Roach also was suspended for one match recently after being charged with three major penalties.

Officials of the Eagles and Orioles protested tactics of these three players at an Eastern League meeting in Madison Square Garden last Monday. Tonight's officials have been empowered to exact drastic penalties in the event this offense is repeated tonight, but have been advised to make proper allowance for the pressure under which the players will be working and to in nowise slow them down with overzealous officiating.

George Halas, Once 'Just a Pro Coach,' Now National Figure as Result of Bear Victory

Chicago Coach Has Been Player, Coach, Owner for 30 Years

By George Kirksey
United Press Staff Correspondent.

New York, Dec. 12.—George Halas, the new man of the hour in football, is no morning glory. He's been in the game as a player, coach and owner for nearly 30 years. But until his Chicago Bears beat the Washington Redskins, 73-0, for the professional football title Halas' reputation best was described as "just another pro football coach."

Now Halas is a national football figure as a result not only of the Bears5 sstounding professional triumph, but on the success of Clark Shaughnessy at Stanford, using the Bears' famed "T-formation, man-in-motion" offense, a brain-child of the Chicago owner-coach.

In appearance Halas is an average-size man of about 185 pounds, with thinning black hair. He is known among his rivals as a shrewd, tough businessman. But even his worst enemies admit that Halas is fair and honest. One of his rival pro coaches described the Bear's coach as "a fellow who wants all that's coming to him all the time."

"I pity anybody who tries to give Halas the worst of it in a shady deal," this coach said.

GEORGE HALAS

Halas played end at Illinois under Bob Zuppke in 1914 through 1917. He was undersized but a foxy player who played with a flaming spirit. He once played in the Rose Bowl, playing end for the Great Lakes Naval Training School team which beat the Mare Island Marines, 17-0, on January 1, 1919. Halas caught a pass for one touchdown in this game.

Pro Owner Once Fired Self; Returns To Game in 1933

Halas started out to be an engineer but changed his mind on the spur of the moment one day. He was working in a room with several elderly men, all of them stooped over their draft boards. Without another job in sight, Halas walked out and never went back. In talking about it later Halas said "I made up my mind I wasn't going to wind up laboring over a draft board when I got to be 50 or 55."

The Bears started out as the Staleys, of Decatur, Ill., back in 1920 and Halas, who played on the club, was instrumental in having them moved to Chicago the next season.

Time Turns Back to Old Hit Tunes In 'Tin Pan Alley,' at the Palace

Faye, Oakie, Grable And Payne Score in Nostalgic Picture Of 'Show Business'

"TIN PAN ALLEY." Twentieth Century-Fox picturization of a story by Pamela Harris, adapted to the screen featuring Alice Faye, Jack Oakie, featuring Alice Faye, Jack Oakie, Betty Grable and John Payne, with Allen Jenkins, Esther Ralston, Ben Carter, John Loder, Elisha Cook, jr., Fred Keating, Billy Gilbert, Lillian Porter, Billy Bryan, the Nicholas Brothers, Princess Vanessa Ammon, Brian Sisters and the Roberts Brothers. Directed by Walter Lang. At Loew's Palace Theater.

Anyone who reveled in the melodies, modes and moods of "Alexander's Ragtime Band," as it emerged on the screen, will derive a comparable bang from "Tin Pan Alley." They are blood brothers, or sisters, as the case may be.

BELL

This latest of the Twentieth Century - Fox excursions into a reminiscent past, currently on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater, doesn't date back quite so far as its predecessor — only to 1915—but from its jingly beginning manages to syncopate its way down to and into the First World War, precisely like its earlier prototype. But there is a difference.

Instead of basing its serio-comic romance on the organization and growth of a jazz band, it traces the careers of two struggling young song-writers and their gal friends in "show business" from starvation poverty to the peak of popularity and back again. Not entirely back again, but into the army, which is near enough.

From this skeletonization it should be as plain as a patch on the nose that "Tin Pan Alley" shares the right with "Alexander" to resuscitate a string of hit tunes dating back through the years two decades and a half. Among them are such recrudescent lilts as "K-K-K-Katy," "Moonlight and Roses," "Goodbye Broadway, Hello France," "America, I Love You," "The Sheik of Araby" and a bushel basketful of others—including the running problem of the proper geographical location for the number one of the boys is trying to transform from a dog-eared flop into a candidate for the hit parade.

There can't be much quibbling over the manner in which all these songs are put over. Alice Faye has a way with her in the projection of any number and stands as high above Betty Grable in the vocal department as Miss Grable does above her in the dance. Jack Oakie and John Payne make a likely brace of tin-panners, Oakie with his unobstrusive ribbing of Al Jolson and the lyrically unsuspected Mr. Payne with a bit of crooning that is not half bad, coming from a fellow whose voice never before has been heard from the screen, so far as I know. The comedy is intrusted almost entirely to Master Oakie, with Allen Jenkins on hand—first as a walk-up apartment janitor and later as Harrigan and Calhoun's top sergeant —to lend first aid in the emergencies. It is pleasant to see the blonde Esther Ralston back in the gelatin going, cast as Nora Bayes—although she is about as much like Nora Bayes as Alice Faye was like Lillian Russell. Elisha Cook, jr., a Washington visitor this week, by the way; Fred Keating, Billy Gilbert and John Loder are among the others who bolster the goings-on no end.

Over and above the contributions of the bona fide members of the cast there are some specialists in "Tin Pan Alley" who deserve an eye and an ear. Topping the list are those unique, sepia, acrobatic hoofers, the Nicholas Brothers, tossed back into the era of the mid-1900s from the present-day Technicolor glories of "Down Argentine Way." These lads break out a new routine in the "Araby" number that just simply can't be done!

If none of this seems to hit you where you live—and some of it most emphatically should—the new bill at the Palace also offers one of Pete Smith's enlivening eruditions, called "Wedding Bills"; a cartoon comedy, with the self-explanatory title of "Plane Goofy," and the "News of the Day."

Metropolitan

Fulfilling its one-week's promise at the Earle of taking immediate rank as one of the genuinely fine pictures of the year, the Warner Brothers picturization of W. Somerset Maugham's "The Letter," starring Bette Davis, enters the second week of its transplanted engagement at the Metropolitan Theater. This is eminently as it should be.

Although familiar from its original stage version, starring Katharine Cornell, and its first translation into celluloid, with Jeanne Eagles, "The Letter," in its present manifestation, takes on new importance through the incomparably restrained portrayals by its star and supporting cast, and the especially deft direction of William Wyler. Miss Davis has seldom if ever been more impressive than in her entirely natural and tensely forceful assumption of the role of Leslie Crosbie, who pistols her clandestine lover in the opening scene and then pays a bitter penalty to the inexorable way of life in the mystic Orient. Herbert Marshall, James Stephenson, Gale Sondergaard, Bruce Lester, Sen Yung and Willie Fung are those of most vital aid in making "The Letter" a powerful and a memorable film.

Oddly Enough, They Sound Okay!

JOHN PAYNE AND JACK OAKIE

as Skeets Harrigan and Harry Calhoun, the song-writing duo, with Alice Faye and Betty Grable in the Twentieth Century-Fox production of "Tin Pan Alley," now on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater. An able cast supports the principals in this song-revival epic of the tune-pluggers and a struggling sister act that finally reaches stardom

John Garfield Breaks "Stir" In Earle's "East of the River"

By Richard L. Coe

"EAST OF THE RIVER." Warner Brothers picturization of a screen play by Fred Niblo, jr., based on a story by John Fante and Ross B. Wills, with John Garfield, Brenda Marshall, Marjorie Rambeau, George Tobias, William Lundigan, Moroni Olsen, Douglas Fowley, Jack LaRue, Jack Carr and Paul Gilfoyle. Directed by Alfred E. Green. Reviewed Thursday afternoon. At the Earle Theater.

They let John Garfield out of prison, they do, in Warner Brothers' "East of the River," but that's as far as his regeneration goes in the Earle's new film. Sure, Garfield can play those tough guys in a style all his own; he doesn't even remind you of studio-mate Cagney. But how about giving him a new role, if only to prove he can't do it?

From the first glimpse of the squalid lower East Side of 1927, it's evident that this is to be the story of one—maybe two or three—underprivileged lads. If there's only one, you'll see the goodness in his heart only at the final fadeout. If there's more than one, they will be blithe and bonnie, good and gay, showing the contrast 'twixt good and evil.

Not that such makes poor drama. It's good, meaty stuff and is the substance of the finest of plays. But "East of the River," is not adroitly scripted; its lines have a tired, familiar ring; its character delineation is uninventive.

Marjorie Rambeau has the unfamiliar role—for her—of an Italian restaurant owner. When her own son and a pal are about to be sent to a reform school for nearly killing a railway employe, she impresses the judge with her honesty, offers to adopt the pal as well as to keep both of them on the straight and narrow. With the adopted boy she has great success. Her own son is the problem.

He comes back from three years in California ("stir" to him), bringing a sulky, tough lass with him. Home life is inspiring to her and she tries to make a break for marriage with his foster-brother. The prodigal son does all he can to stop it, but true love triumphs and so does regeneration. In a way.

Naturally, Garfield's role fits him like a sarong on Dorothy Lamour. In fact, his playing is far more resourceful than some of the lines he's called upon to say. After her debut as a glamour girl of Good Queen Bess's glorious days in "The Sea Hawk," Brenda Marshall's tough lassie, who's wanted in Reno for kiting checks, is something of a moral shock, but she is allowed to regain her good name.

No doubt, some of the experience gained at the Columbia on F Street when she played some of her husband, Willard Mack's dramas, has gone into Miss Rambeau's Italian mother. Some of her knowing playing is laid on too thick, much like viewing a stage portrayal through opera glasses. William Lundigan is forthright as the adopted son who reforms.

"Under the Big Top" is the Earle's stage revue, brightened by colorful routines of the Roxyettes and a couple of authentic circles from the five rings.

Sharkey, that sleek buffoon, is one of the stars in this charade, juggling odds and ends on his nose, playing Irish tunes on doorbells and imitating the more ordinary humans. Sharkey, by the way, is a seal.

Truzzi is another juggler, but he's a man. He has some of the colorful paraphernalia of the big top, but, like Sharkey, didn't seem to feel that yesterday's first show was a particularly opportune time to juggle. Song is boomingly handled by Harry Stockwell, the voice of Prince Charming in "Snow White." He offers current ballads and reprises of the Disney Fantasy. But it remains for Tip, Tap and Toe, those ebony tapsters to get the solid hand of the revue. Their taps are still tops.

Two comedy short subjects and the newsreel complete this shopping-season bill.

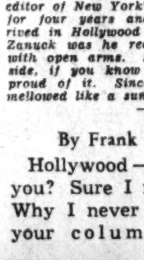
In Hollywood

—With Hedda Hopper

Frank Nugent was motion picture editor of New York's largest newspaper for four years and not until he arrived in Hollywood to write for Darryl Zanuck was he received in our midst with open arms. He was on the acid side, if you know what I mean, and proud of it. Since coming here, he's mellowed like a sunkist orange.
—HEDDA HOPPER.

By Frank E. Nugent

Hollywood — Remember you? Sure I remember you! Why I never missed one of your columns. Breakfast wasn't breakfast without the good old Herald Tribune open to the movie page . . . Oh, the Times? Of course! I meant to say the Times . . . Just got out, didn't you? Seven months! You don't say. How come I haven't seen anything about you? Oh, you don't go to Ciro's. Very funny, oh very funny. Yeah, that would explain it.



HOPPER

Well tell me: How do you like Hollywood? No, don't tell me. I'll tell you: You miss New York, right? Of course, you miss New York. Who doesn't miss New York? After all, New York is New York and Hollywood is . . . No, you don't have to tell me what Hollywood is; you just think you know what Hollywood is. But just the same, boy, let me tell you: You go back to New York, go back just once, go in the summer when it's so (two words censored) hot you die even under airconditioning, or in the winter and it's cold and wet and windy and everybody has a cough or the flu—yeah, you go back then, boy, and let me tell you: You'll be so anxious to come back here.

Yeah, I know that's what everybody says. I didn't believe it either. You been here seven months? Well, first time I came out I could only stand it three months. Three months and I was chewing the corners off my desk. I'd get out and walk up and down the street; you know, the Boulevard, Hollywood Boulevard. And I'd look at the faces and there wouldn't be anybody there! Blanks, complete blanks! It was terrific! Or I'd go to a bar. Not like this where everybody's from New York anyway so it don't count, but a local bar and people would look at me like I was peddling nail files or a guy from the vice squad. I got so I was nuts. I started talking to myself. Three months and I grabbed me a plane! A train wouldn't take me away fast enough! And all the way across country I kept hummin' to myself: "California here I go, you big four-flushin' so-and-so" and I was practically jumping up and down all the way in from Newark.

And do you know how long I stayed? One week! One week! And the only reason I stayed that long was to arrange for my furniture and books and things to be shipped out here! That was seven years ago and I haven't been back since. I got a house and two cars and a couple to take care of things. I can play golf and tennis all year around. I don't, you understand, but I could if I wanted to. And I wouldn't go back to New York to live even if New York was where you could make a Hollywood pay check.

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, Dec. 12.

COMBAT: E. Ray Goetz, the producer, told this story at Fefe's Monto Carlo Tuesday night: He had discussed the battles in Greece with Ferenc Molnar, who had been a war correspondent assigned to covering the Italian front in 1915. Molnar told of the battle in which he asked the Austrian commander about the progress of his army. "We're meeting no opposition, and it's all quiet," reported the officer, "except for one nest of machine-gunners on top of that hill. Every once in a while they start shooting their 12 guns" . . . "Why don't you silence them?" asked Molnar . . . "We can't," said the officer, "because they want 25,000 lire to give up."

RELIEF: Dorothy Parker, who was operated upon at the Cedars of Lebanon last month, spoke to Allen Campbell, her husband, before being wheeled into the operating room . . . "I just remembered," said Campbell, "this means you won't be able to address next week's dinner given by the Writers Committee" . . . "That," said Dorothy as the internes wheeled her away, "is the silver lining to my appendix."

SPEECH: Howard Lindsay, Russel Crouse's associate, made a speech at The Players Club and found that he was unable to finish it. Lindsay kept talking, getting more involved and groping for a suitable windup. Ogden Nash, seated in the audience, immediately wrote a poem: "God help man, God help mouse. But Holy Gee, help Russel Crouse."

SUCCOR: Last week Robert E. Sherwood was the principal speaker at the Harmonie Club. Just before he was to make his address Sherwood became ill . . . Among the guests were Dr. Emanuel Libman, the world-famous clinician, and Dean Winternitz of Yale University. The two distinguished doctors took Sherwood into another room and diagnosed his ailment as an acute, neuralgic headache, for which a sedative was required . . . Dr. Libman, who is a consultant and so hasn't written a prescription in many years, had no prescription blank, nor did Dean Winternitz carry any. And neither of them could remember their federal registration numbers which may be used in cases where prescription blanks are not available . . . But Sherwood recovered and made his speech.

ATONEMENT: Ben Hecht, who is the highest-priced writer in America today—having received as high as $80,000 for less than ten weeks' work—received an attractive offer from M-G-M . . . He conferred with the officials there and agreed upon terms. Before the contracts were to be signed, Hecht was invited to the office of L. B. Mayer, who confirmed the terms—but made one personal stipulation . . . "I want you to apologize," asked Mayer, "for that poem you wrote about me three years ago. Otherwise the deal is off" . . . Hecht refused —and so the contract never was signed.

MEETING: Lee Shubert stepped into the elevator of the apartment house where he resides. He nodded to another passenger in the elevator, who also lives in that house . . . "Your face is very familiar," said Shubert. "What's your name?" . . . "William A. Hyman. I used to be Deputy Attorney General" . . . "But where do I know you from?" asked Shubert as the elevator stopped at Hyman's floor . . . "I'm representing the ticket brokers," the lawyer informed as he stepped out of the elevator, "in their fight against you."

PLENTY: Harpo Marx telephoned Harry Kurnitz, author of the new "Thin Man" picture, and invited him to breakfast . . . "I'll come," Kurnitz agreed, "if I'm sure you have plenty of lox" . . . "Hold on," said Harpo, "while I look in the icebox and see if we have any lox" . . . Kurnitz waited, and then Harpo told him: "Okay, come on. We have so much lox piled in there, it looks like a roaring furnace."

That Jolly, Old Divorce Mill Is Celebrated in Capitol Film

"I WANT A DIVORCE." Paramount picturization of a story by Adela Rogers St. John, adapted to the screen by Frank Butler, costarring Dick Powell and Joan Blondell, with Gloria Dickson, Frank Fay, Jessie Ralph, Harry Davenport, Conrad Nagel, Micky Kuhn, Dorothy Burgess, Sidney Blackmer and Louise Beavers. Directed by Ralph Murphy. At Loew's Capitol.

Even if you are plumb set on divorce, the idea will revolt you after seeing "I Want a Divorce." There are three divorces in the picture, with a horribly discouraging score of success. Dick Powell and Joan Blondell manage to get unhitched, but can't make it stick and are reconciled. Gloria Dickson and Conrad Nagel achieve one suicide and an extra marriage as a divorce dividend. Frank Fay and Dorothy Burgess have a 50-50 success, with Frank free as a lark but poor Dorothy minus any alimony. But Frank is an old and experienced divorcer.

The story by Adela St. John is one of those that most women simply dote upon. It has young love, a married life that drifts from the idyllic to the pugilistic, with the husband finally made to see the wisdom of friend wife's point of view—ah, and the house furnishings and clothes are simply sublime. When you girls feel a simultaneous urge to go to a movie and inspect model houses, just combine them and see "I Want a Divorce."

A string of shots of people coming out of Los Angeles' divorce court gives an auspicious and diverting start to the picture. Naturally, in the general melee of divorces, there are a couple of court-room scenes. The first is simply dramatic, but comedy altitudes result when Frank Fay essays to get loose from his little Mexican firecracker, Dorothy Burgess. Plump alimony seems an inevitable outcome after the pathetic appeal of Dorothy and Frank's lack of chivalry. But up bounces a big marine and the "situation is well in hand" pronto. It seems that Dorothy has a habit of marrying marines.

Fun in the Divorce Mill

Main thread of the story concerns Joan Blondell's aversion to divorce, her objections when husband Dick Powell becomes a divorce lawyer. They live in luxury on divorce-mill gold, but Dick's hours are too uncertain for a normal menage. Finally, he doesn't get home for Joan's birthday, even doesn't telephone. That is the last straw. Not until after sister Gloria Dickson commits suicide, as her ex-husband remarries, does Joan become reconciled to Dick. It all winds up too beautifully, with Dick giving up his divorce practice to become a professional consultant on marital reconciliations. The caramel flavor of the ending, thanks be, is slightly obliterated by a fadeout of Frank Fay throwing a fish at a process server.

Harriet Hoctor Graces Stage

Harriet Hoctor, graciouosly lovely as ever, dominates the stage show with her matchless dancing, doing one classical ballet number and a flashy Manhattan bit, wherein the Capitol Rockets serve as background and look no end vampirine in black sequins and scarlet.

Headlines are made into laughs by jovial Senator Murphy, who gleans fun from relief, politics, Nazism, Greeks and Italians. It's all in the manner of the hallowed Mr. Dooley, lends a zest of humor to the pictorial values of the revue. Excellent vocals are contributed by Ben Yost's Varsity Eight. And the Five Herzogs could just as well be called "Five Daring Young Ladies on the Flying Trapeze." MARY HARRIS.

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, Dec. 12 (INS).—When the talkies first came in and Norma Shearer was put to test, to see whether she could speak lines, she was given "The Trial of Mary Dugan," one of the then successful plays. She and the picture were both excellent. Now M-G-M has taken this old play off the shelf, rewritten it and given it to Laraine Day for her next starring vehicle. Edwin Knopf has been commissioned to produce the exciting melodrama which served Ann Harding on the stage and also brought her fame.

PARSONS

"The Trial of Mary Dugan" was different in that the curtain remained up in the stage play and it had an unusual twist at the end. It gave Bayard Veiller, the author, renewed prestige.

"The Corn is Green," the Ethel Barrymore play by Emlyn Williams, is by far the biggest dramatic hit New York has had this year. Of course, the asking price for the film rights is terrific and unless there can be a radical change in story I doubt if M-G-M will buy it. There is an illegitimate child in the story, and censorship being what it is, I don't see how the story could be filmed without changing the plot. Perhaps M-G-M could do what Sam Goldwyn did with "The Children's Hour" ("These Three").

Wonder how many people out of Hollywood realize that the Republic Studio stands on the site of the old Mack Sennett lot? So it is certainly fitting and heart-warming that Herbert Yates has decided that their new $250,000 sound stage, completed next week, shall be dedicated to the memory of Mabel Normand. The dedication ceremony will be lavish, with many of the beloved little comedienne's former coworkers invited to take part.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Justine Johnson Wanger, formerly Mrs. Walter Wanger, has adopted two tiny babies—both boys; Greg Bautzer's birthday gift to Dorothy Lamour was diamond earrings shaped like wolves heads; the Florence Rice-Dalies Frantz romance is getting hot enough to be noticed. They were dining with the Grantland Rices last night at the Brown Derby; both Bill Orr and Owen Ward have been visiting Brenda Joyce in the hospital. She goes home Friday; Jackie Cooper realized the ambition of his life when he played the drums in Tommy Dorsey's band; Marie Frey, who has been mentioned as Phil Harris' favorite girl friend, was at the Hollywood Tropics with Artie Shaw.

On December 27, Hollywood will attend the opening of Macombo, a new night spot, which Charlie Morison and Felix Young are sponsoring. That's also the eve of the Santa Anita opening; Bob Crosby will bow out of his radio program January 1, because of the ASCAP fight, which makes it impossible to get the tunes he wants; Margaret Ettinger flew to Chicago on business today. She'll be back Monday; couldn't help but notice how very much alike Gloria Vanderbilt and Lady Furness look. They were at the dinner Mrs. Jules Stein gave. Lady Furness may do something in the movies. She had a long talk with Sam Goldwyn. So did I.

Sam, who is permanent chairman of all charities, has done a wonderful job. He gave a dinner last night in honor of L. B. Mayer at the Hillcrest Country Club. All of the committee members were present to compliment L. B. on the swell job he did on raising funds for the Community Chest—nearly half a million.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

5 New Partners Named

Merrill Lynch, E. A. Pierce & Cassatt, one of the nation's largest securities and commodities commission firms, yesterday announced that five new general partners would be admitted January 1. Two limited partners will retire.

The Washington branch, of which Joseph H. Hines is resident partner and Thomas W. Brahany is manager, is not affected.

The new general partners will be Eugene Crawley, formerly vice president of Consolidated Oil Corporation; Ray L. Lamb, manager of the Cleveland office of the firm; Cyrus H. King, manager of the Detroit office; Ferdinand C. Smith, manager of the Portland office, and Harry F. Bliss, manager of the Research Division in New York City.

Retiring January 1 will be limited partners Mamie B. Mills and Joseph L. Merrill. The changes will increase the number of partners to 43.

Local Agent Honored

National recognition for his personal production record last month has been won by C. B. Ray, Washington representative for the Lincoln National Life Insurance Co., according to word received here from the home office in Fort Wayne, Ind. This honor was won in direct competition with the company's more than 1,500 sales representatives throughout the country.

New York Cotton

New York, Dec. 12 (AP).—Cotton futures overcame their recent fading tendency today and closed 2 to 5 points higher.

Trade price fixing for domestic and foreign account and evening up in the December position, in which trading ends tomorrow, helped to swing some support to the price structure.

Range follows:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.
December	10.12	10.15	10.10	10.12	+ .02
March	10.16	10.19	10.14	10.17	+ .03

His Honors Are in Pairs

CLARENCE E. KEFAUVER, secretary of Columbia Federal Savings & Loan Association, was doubly honored on Wednesday. In the afternoon he was elected chairman of the Senior Advisory Council of the Washington Chapter, American Savings and Loan Institute. That same night he was elected president of the Washington chapter, Society of Residential Appraisers

Loadings Gain 8% in Week Over Year Ago

By the Associated Press

The Association of American Railroads reported yesterday 738,513 cars of revenue freight were loaded during the week ended last Saturday.

This was an increase of 9,988 cars, or 1.4 per cent, compared with the preceding week; an increase of 54,540, or 8 per cent, compared with a year ago, and an increase of 119,549, or 19.3 per cent, compared with 1938.

Coal, miscellaneous freight and less-than-carlot merchandise contributed to the contra-seasonal rise in total loadings. Only important decline was in ore shipments, which are normally tapering off at this season.

The Associated Press seasonally adjusted index of loadings, beased on 1929-30 as 100, advanced to 78.6 (new 1940 high) compared with 76.1 the previous week, and 74.0 a year ago.

Reserve Board Index Reaches All-Time Peak

Industrial Output Surges to 131% In November

By the Associated Press

The Federal Reserve Board estimated last night that industry, spurred by defense orders, reached a new all-time peak in November.

The board's seasonally adjusted index of industrial production placed November ouptut at 131 per cent of the 1935-39 average. The index had been 128 the preceding month, and 124 a year ago.

"Recent increases in activity have been widespread," the agency's monthly bulletin asserted. "Expanded output has occurred not only in industries directly engaged in production of war materials and in those making goods formerly supplied by European producers; war and defense developments have also increased civilian expenditures.

"In the aggregate these increases have much more than offset losses resulting from the closing of many foreign markets for American goods. Retail sales of automobiles have been exceptionally large this autumn, more new houses have been bought, and consumers' purchases of other products have increased substantially, although not so much as buying in the wholesale markets. A sharp rise in factory construction this autumn has been to meet civilian requirements, as well as military demands."

The board also estimated that total employment in the United States had increased by more than 2,000,000 between August, 1939, and October, 1940. This was said to be a net gain. Huge increases in industrial employment overbalanced some declines in the agricultural field.

The board noted slight price rises in some fields, but added that "wage rates in general have shown little change."

Profits of corporations were said to have declined somewhat in the last part of this year, because higher costs and taxes more than offset increased sales.

Building Awards Continue Heavy

New York, Dec. 12 (AP).—Engineering construction awards declined this week to $81,725,000, a drop of 26 per cent from the previous week but more than double the same week a year ago, Engineering News-Record reported today.

It marked the fifteenth consecutive week that awards have exceeded their corresponding 1939 values.

A lull in Federal contracts was responsible for the decline from the previous period. Public awards were 35 per cent smaller than the week before. However, they were 156 per cent greater than a year ago.

Clearings in 23 Cities Up 1.2% in Week

New York, Dec. 12 (AP).—Bank transactions for the current week exceeded the comparative 1939 volume for the sixth successive week, despite the fact that clearings were smaller than a year ago in New York, Chicago, Kansas City and New Orleans.

Clearings for 23 leading cities for the week ended December 11, amounted to $5,597,763,000, according to Dun & Bradstreet. This was a gain of 1.2 per cent above the $5,530,334,000 recorded for the same 1939 week.

Last-Minute Rally Bolsters Stock Market; Senior Industrials, 'Sleepers' in Demand

New York, Dec. 12.—Tax-selling difficulties persisted in the stock market today but a selective last-minute rally, led by steels and senior industrials, enabled the list to finish moderately higher.

The opening was on the rising side but failed to follow through and mild irregularity prevailed until the final hour when bidding revived for a number of the metals.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks finished up .2 of a point at 44.2, its first advance of the week. That it was not a one-way street, however, was shown by the fact that, of 836 individual issues traded, there were 370 gainers, 228 lowers and 238 unchanged.

There were scattered active flurries, especially toward the close, and transfers totaled 781,410 shares compared with 813,660 the day before.

Business optimism, actual dividends and hopes for more favorable year-end disbursements, and a bit cheerier view of the war dispatches were helpful factors, brokers said. Observers also felt that offerings for the establishment of tax losses or gains may have about run their course, thus putting the market in a healthier technical position.

Preference stocks with sizable dividend arrearages were bullish performers, these being propped by the idea the forward stride of industry would enable companies to reduce or pay off accumulations. Universal Pictures preferred shot up 14 points on scattered sales and ended with a net advance of 9 at 119, a new year's peak. Up 1 to more than 3, also at new 1940 tops, were crucible steel common and preferred, American shipbuilding and Chicago Pneumatic tool.

Ending with modest improvement were United States Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, Chrysler, General Motors, Western Union, Union Pacific, Great Northern, Anaconda, Kennecott, Loew's, du Pont, Allied Chemical, Cuban-American Sugar preferred and Pittsburgh Steel preferred.

Under water were American Telephone, Santa Fe, Montgomery Ward, Eastman Kodak, United States Gypsum, Westinghouse, Boeing, J. C. Penney and International Harvester.

Rails generally about held their own, although it was disclosed last week's freight loadings climbed more than seasonally.

In the Curb plus signs were posted for Bath Iron Works, Creole Petroleum, Lake Shore, International Petroleum, St. Regis Paper and Sherwin Williams. Todd Shipyards turned up 4¼ points on a restricted volume. Trades here were around 187,000 shares versus 156,000 Wednesday.

British Empire dollar loans did better in the bond department. Commodities were uneven. Wheat at Chicago was off ⅜ to ⅞ of a cent a bushel and corn down ⅛ to ½. Cotton edged forward 10 to 25 cents a bale.

Holiday Buying Cuts $30,000,000 Out of Idle Cash

By the Associated Press

Christmas shopping, pumping money out of the banks, reduced excess reserves in the Federal Reserve member banks by $30,000,000 in the week ended December 11.

The Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday the decrease left the level of these lendable reserves at $6,790,000,000. There was an increase of $58,000,000 in money in circulation, most of which could be credited to Christmas shopping.

For the tenth successive week, the 12 banks reduced their investments in Government securities, selling $11,000,000 of Government bonds and cutting the total investment to $2,184,000,000.

Bank of England

London, Dec. 12 (AP).—Currency demands for holiday spending expanded circulation of the Bank of England for the third time in as many weeks, the bank's weekly statement showed today. An advance of £6,289,000 brought the figure to £604,540,000. Reserves were cut correspondingly, standing at £26,876,000, and the ratio against liabilities fell off to 14.6 per cent. More than £10,000,000 was added to holdings of government securities.

The detailed statement, in thousands of pounds, follows: Circulation 604,540, increase 6,289; bullion 1,416, increase 141; reserves 26,876, decrease 6,148; public deposits 16,430, decrease 5,523; private deposits 167,197, increase 9,901; government securities 149,833, increase 10,005; other securities 24,742, increase 437. Ratio of reserve to liabilities 14.6 per cent, compared with 18.4 last week. Bank rate 2 per cent.

Sugar Futures

New York, Dec. 12 (AP).—Domestic raw sugar climbed a couple of points today after a boost in the refined price, but late profit selling canceled part of the rise.

The close was unchanged to 1 point higher. Sales amounted to 18,850 tons. World futures closed unchanged to 1 lower on transfers of 5,250 tons. At the new level refined locally was 4.40 cents against 4.35 previously.

Commodity Futures

New York, Dec. 12.

COCOA futures closed 3-7 higher. Sales, 3,189 tons.

WOOL TOP futures fluctuated irregularly today with relative firmness in December position. Later months were responsive to moderate orders either way. Final prices were .5 higher to .03 lower.

RAW HIDE futures closed 8 higher to 5 lower. Sales, 3,400,000 pounds.

CRUDE RUBBER futures closed 1 higher to 5 lower. Sales, No. 1, standard, 13 contracts.

RAW SILK futures closed 3½ to 4½ higher. Sales, 390 bales.

London Stocks

London, Dec. 12 (AP).—The stock market closed generally firm today, excepting for the gilt-edged list. Oil shares again supplied chief interest, with leaders, especially Anglo-Iranian, responding to the latest news from Cairo.

Kaffairs recorded an all-around improvement, with fair support locally and from Johannesburg.

Greek issues were ½ to 1 point higher on continued military successes, but other foreign bonds were unchanged.

New York Dry Goods

New York, Dec. 12 (AP).—The rayon goods market continued active and firm.

Cotton goods trade was restricted to covering in heavy industrial and sheeting numbers against extention of Government business for defense purposes.

Many mills in the woolen industry are as much as one month behind schedule on needed shipments of civilian goods. The trade estimates several months of intensive production necessary to correct this situation.

The silk market continued in the doldrums.

Appalachian Elecrtic Power Issues Offered

New York, Dec. 12 (AP).—An issue of $70,000,000 bonds and 300,000 shares of 4½ per cent cumulative preferred stock of the Appalachian Electrical Power Co. were announced for public offering today by a Nation-wide underwriting group of 112 banking firms headed by Bonbright & Co.

The bonds, first mortgage 3¼ per cent series, due in 1970, were priced at 107. The preferred stock, a portion of which was subject to an exchange offer tendered holders of the company's $7 and $6 preferred stocks was to be sold at $106 a share.

In addition to the securities publicly offered the company's financing program will include a capital contribution in cash from its parent, American Gas & Electric Co., of $30,670,472.

The financing will provide a total of $134,674,378 which will be applied toward the redemption of securities now outstanding. Completion of the program, the announcement said, will simplify the company's debt and capital structure.

Extra Dividend Of $7.50 Voted By Local Bank

Commerce & Savings Boosts Disbursement to $20 for Year

An extra dividend of $7.50 a share on capital stock has been declared by directors of the Bank of Commerce and Savings, President Thomas J. Groom announced yesterday. This was in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of $2.50 a share. Both disbursements are payable December 31 to holders of record December 20.

MR. GROOM

Payment of the latest quarterly dividends will bring total disbursements to stockholders to $20 a share this year, compared with $15 a share in the previous year.

The bank board also voted that $50,000 be added to surplus account and a bonus of one month's salary be paid to the operating staff.

Union Trust Votes Dividend

Directors of the Union Trust Co. have declared a dividend of 3 per cent on capital stock, payable January 15 to holders of record December 31. Total disbursement, equal to $1.50 a share, will be $30,000, according to Secretary Irving Zirpel. He added that extra compensation amounting to one-half a month's salary has been paid to officers and employes. The latest dividend equals that paid in mid-year and the 6 per cent total for the year is unchanged from that of the previous year.

Another Extra Dividend

Directors of Real Estate Title Insurance Company have declared an extra dividend of 1½ per cent in addition to the regular semi-annual dividend of 3 per cent, both payable December 30. Extra compensation equal to one month's salary also was voted for all officers and employes.

Japanese Comb Marts for Quick Copper Shipments

New York, Dec. 12 (AP).—Japanese interests again scoured metal markets here today, persistently seeking sizeable tonnages of foreign copper for quick shipment.

All they were successful in procuring, however, was 200 tons, for which they laid out 11¾ cents a pound, alongside ship, New York.

The 11¾-cent price represented a hike of ¼ cent over the 11½ cents a pound, f. a. s. New York, paid by Nipponese interests Wednesday for around 500 tons.

Week's Auto Output Estimated at 116,977

Detroit, Dec. 12 (AP).—Automotive News in its survey of the motorcar industry said today this week's production was estimated at 116,977 cars and trucks, continuing a slight downward trend. Last week's production was 120,749 vehicles, and a year ago this week 117,814 units were assembled.

The survey put the General Motors Coropration's total for the week at 48,975; the Chrysler group at 28,975, and the Ford group at 21,650.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Dec. 12 (AP).—With wheat traders still under the spell of usually favorably new crop prospects, prices drifted lower again today in the absence of commercial and speculative demand.

Snow and rain blanketed much of the hard and soft winter wheat belts, augmenting moisture supplies which some crop experts said should make possible favorable early growth during the period of plant revival in the spring.

Much of the weakness of wheat was associated with selling of December contracts in which trading will cease a week from Saturday. The selling was attributed in part to interests possibly with occumulated profits who do not wish to take delivery, although, so far, only 10,000 bushels have been tendered and outstanding contracts still exceed 6,000,000 bushels.

December wheat fell 1⅛ cents at one stage and deferred contracts were off almost that much. Closing prices were ⅜@⅞ lower than yesterday; December 89⅛; May 86@86⅛; Corn closed ⅛@½ down; December 60½, May 60¼; oats ¼ off to ⅛ up; rye unchanged to ⅜ lower; soybeans ¾@1¼ down and lard 7@13 lower.

Arc Game Rule Leaves Browns Without Hope

By the United Press

Chicago, Dec. 12.—Two high executives of the St. Louis Browns were closeted in a Loop hotel tonight debating the future of their ball club now that its chief source of revenue has been cut in half.

There was not even a hint of how they would reply to major league action cutting the Browns from 14 night games to 7, but President Donald L. Barnes and Vice President William O. Dewitt were known to be bitterly disappointed.

After dropping a reported $100,000 a year before the advent of night baseball, the Browns managed to break even with the extra cash from 14 home games at night last year and they fought for the same number in 1941. With only seven, their entire financial program for next year may be crippled.

"We are preparing a statement for release at 10 a. m. Saturday," Barnes said. "This thing takes a lot of thinking over. I don't even know myself what it will contain."

Barnes and Dewitt held the floor for nearly two hours in yesterday's joint meeting of American and National League officials and Commissioner K. M. Landis.

New Lustre for a Star

adds new sparkle inside and out!

Crowning all past achievements, this grand No. 1 Ale has been stepped up to a new degree—with extra flavor, added life and a brand-new dress.

In its new character NATIONAL•GENUINE ALE is rich as cream, robust as red-blooded beef—yet light as a bubble and smooth as velvet. Every ounce bottled at the brewery with utmost care—from top-fermented yeast and choicest grains—in pure, white, clear, crystal bottles. With its 1941 model, streamlined label, you can now easily recognize it.

Instead of merely saying "Ale," be sure to ask for "NATIONAL GENUINE ALE" to avoid imitations.

Bagby, they gain from the Red Sox a pitcher who was a first-year sensation three years ago but who was used chiefly in relief work last season. He won 10 and lost 16.

Always known as one of the fleetest outfielders in the league, Cramer's speed has not slowed appreciably despite his 34 years.

Walker, acquired by the Nats last winter in the deal that sent Taft Wright and Pete Appleton to the White Sox, led the Nats in driving in runs with 96 to his credit and has always been a potent run-producer. But his outfielding last season was something less than was desired as was also his throwing arm.

Cramer broke into organized baseball 12 years ago with Martinsburg, W. Va., but has spent 11 seasons in the majors. A 185-pounder who stands 6 feet 2 inches, Cramer was born and reared in New Jersey, where he was first scouted as a sandlotter by Cy Perkins, former catcher of the Athletics.

Came Up With Athletics

The Philadelphia Athletics brought him up from the minors in 1930 and he figured in the World Series of 1930-31. After hitting .336 for the Athletics in 1932 and .332 in 1935, Cramer was sold to the Red Sox during the era when Connie Mack was making wholesale disposals of his Philadelphia stars.

At Boston, Cramer has maintained his .300 hitting but as a second-place hitter had little opportunity to show his run-producing ability. He batted in only 51 runs last year in contrast to the 95 produced by Walker, who was in the clean-up position for the Nats.

Cramer, however, has achieved his greatest fame as a maker of hits, annually finishing among the leaders in total hits made. More frequently than any other American Leaguer in recent history, Cramer has reached the select circle of men who have made 200 hits a year. Last season he was one of the three men in the league to get 200 hits, the others bring Rip Radcliff and Barney McCosky. Not a power hitter, Cramer made only one homer, but he pounded out 27 doubles and 12 triples.

DeSautels Grateful He Won't Face Feller

Quinebaug, Conn., Dec. 12 (AP).—"Thank goodness I won't have to face that Bob Feller again," Catcher Gene DeSautels said tonight when he learned the Boston Red Sox had traded him to the Cleveland Indians.

"I only got two hits off Feller in my last 20 times at bat against him," DeSautels explained. "This deal suits me fine. I think the Indians got very much the best of the bargain."

Pitcher Bagby Welcomes 'Change of Management'

Atlanta, Dec. 12 (AP).—Jim Bagby, jr., said tonight he believed he would "be able to play much better baseball under different management" when advised of the deal sending him to the Cleveland Indians from the Boston Red Sox.

"I didn't pitch my own game with Boston," the Atlantan said. "I like the trade very well."

Young Bagby, 24-year-old son of the Jim Bagby who made baseball history with Cleveland in 1920, added that he hoped he would do as well with the Indians as his father did.

Halas Becomes National Figure

HALAS, from Page 27.

He bought stock in the club and kept on buying until he acquired control. After he quit playing he coached the Bears. Then he fired himself and let Ralph Jones coach the team for three years. But the football urge was too strong in him and he returned in 1933.

The Bears have always used the T formation, which is as old as the hills. Halas modernized it with his back in motion. Some football men claim that Halas' "man in motion" is the only new contribution to the game since Pop Warner's double wing back formation in the early 20s. Halas is modest and says "Oh, I got that from Judge Steffen at Carnegie Tech." But whether Halas or the late Judge Walter Steffen introduced the back in motion, it was the Bears' mentor who perfected this play, which promises to have a tremendous effect on football next year.

Halas is a man of many businesses. He has a restless spirit and can't remain idle. In addition to the Bears, he owns the White Bear Laundry in Chicago, is half owner of the May & Halas Jewelry & Sporting Goods Co., has a piece of a professional basketball team, and not so long ago was a promotional salesman for a Chicago concern.

Brewers Meet Akron Five In Twin Bill

Local Pros Host To Goodyears Here Sunday at Riverside

A doubleheader between the Washington Brewers and the Akron Goodyears, involving 24 hours in time and about 125 miles in distance, will be played this week-end as the local American Basketball League delegation undergoes much-needed experience in action.

Saturday night in Philadelphia's Convention Hall the Brewers first meet the Goodyears, 1938 champions of the National Basketball League. Then on Sunday night the two clubs move into Riverside Stadium here to wind up the Ohio team's Eastern tour. Starting time of the Sunday program will be 8:15, with an outstanding preliminary preceding the inter-league clash.

Though the Brewers have already faced some of the strongest cage teams in the country in their own circuit, they have yet to meet as tall a group of players as the Goodyears boast. Jules Rivlin, a 5-foot-10 speedster from Marshall College, is the shortest man on the squad of 25 which will appear here, and every other player soars to 6 feet or better.

Tallest of the invaders will be big John Wiggers, formerly of Morehead (Ky.) Teachers College, who scales a classic 6-feet-10. Other stars and their height are: Marvin Huffman, 6-2; Steve Sitko, 6 even; Art Anderson, 6-6; Howard Vocke, 6-2; Jim Montgomery, 6-3; Gene Anderson, 6-3; Jake Nagode, 6-2, and Ben Stephens, 6 even.

In addition to their height, the Goodyears boast individual scoring records seldom equalled. Stephens, an All-National League forward last year, was also third high scorer in the loop. Vocke set an individual game record of 32 points in his college career at St. John's. Wiggers has consistently registered ten or more points per game throughout his professional career. Rivlin, formerly of Marshall College, turned in the amazing total of 1,123 points during his three years in school, and Art Anderson, an Augustana College alumnus, had an aggregate of 309 points during 1938.

Coached by Ray Detrick, who piloted Ohio Wesleyan cagers for 13 years before joining the Goodyears two years ago, the invaders will probably be favored in both their clashes with the Brewers this week-end. Main reason will be that Washington has yet to show any great offensive power.

Coach Mack Posnack, however, is convinced the boys will be more effective after a strenuous series of drills this week.

Various acts will be staged between the periods of Sunday's game, after which the public will be invited to dance to the music of Leon Brusiloff's Orchestra until midnight.

Joey Archibald Arrives Today For Fight

To Meet Billy Banks At Turner's Arena; Odds Favor Banks

With prefight odds against him for one of the few times since his first battle in Washington, Joey Archibald, former featherweight champion, arrives in town today to wind up preparations for his eight-round feature match with Billy Banks, local colored star, at the renovated Turner's Arena Monday night.

A workout at Huron gym is scheduled today for the Providence puncher if he arrives in time, but if not he will definitely drill tomorrow at the same site at 2 p. m.

Al Weill Phones

Meanwhile Matchmaker Gabe Menendez was cooling his ears after a sizzling telephone conversation with Al Weill, Archibald's manager, yesterday. Subjects was a $1,000 offer ent Harry Jeffra, of Baltimore, by Menendez to fight Banks at the Arena later.

"We resent this," Weill said, in substance." You give us (meaning Archibald and Weill) only $750 to fight in Washington and you offer that guy (meaning Jeffra) $250 more."

The storm at headquarters affected Banks' workout yesterday not at all, for he went through a stiff but uneventful drill. He is particularly being pointed for Monday's scrap by Billy Edwards, his trainer, as it is his first headline role.

Once Floored Archibald

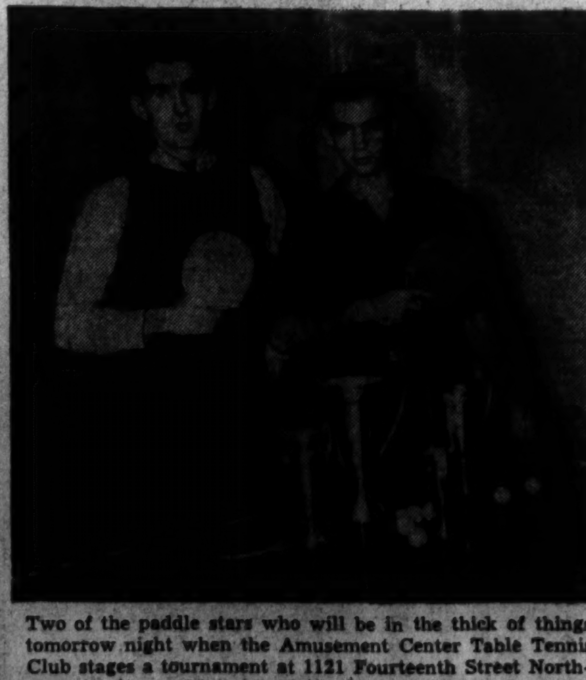
Winner of 32 victories in 34 starts, Banks has been a preliminary boy to date. It was he, however, who sparred with Archibald 14 months ago before the latter's title scrap with Jeffra, flooring him unexpectedly and cutting his eye more or less seriously.

Work on the enlarged arena will be completed by Monday, it was announced yesterday, and about 3,000 fans are expected to jam the place. The only supported bout settled to date is the semiwindup involving Carl Dell, stablemate of Archibald, and Richmond's Joey Spangler, in an eight-rounder.

Washington Gun Club Holds Weekly Event

Scratch and handicap events will again mark Washington Gun Club shooting tomorrow on its range at Benning. The first will be at 16 yards, a 50-target affair, and the second a 25-target shoot with maximum distance 24 yards. Club members as well as visitors will be welcome at shooting, which begins at 2 p. m.

Miniature Tennis Contenders



Two of the paddle stars who will be in the thick of things tomorrow night when the Amusement Center Table Tennis Club stages a tournament at 1121 Fourteenth Street Northwest are Jimmy Limerick (left), fifth-ranking D. C. player, and Edgar St. James, ranking star of Rochester, N. Y. They are shown here with prizes which will go to winners

160-Pound Belt at Stake In Garden

15,000 May View Rematch of Exciting Puncher vs. Boxer Battle; Odds Even

By the Associated Press

New York, Dec. 12.—Ken Overlin and Steve Belloise are going to put on a retake of the year's hottest punch party in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night, with Ken's middleweight championship on the block.

It's the old story of the boxer (Overlin) against the slugger, the veteran and his ring "savvy" against the youngster with a wallop, and the odds-makers are so confused about the whole thing they're refusing to make either a favorite. The Forty-ninth Street betting set was laying "6 to 5 and pick" tonight.

Overlin Picked

Overlin, the former sailor boy from Decatur, Ill. (by way of Norfolk, Va.), should repeat his decision victory over the New York youngster over the 15-round route, thereby hanging onto that portion of the world's 160-pound crown recognized in California, New York, Pennsylvania and a few way stations.

The last time these two fought it out, on November 1 in the garden, the tussle was such a thriller that Promoter Mike Jacobs expects tomorrow's return will have the faithful making his turnstiles sing a mighty sweet tune. In fact, it wouldn't surprise "Uncle Mike" a bit if 15,000 or more fans show up to chip in to a gate of $30,000 to $40,000.

In their previous get-together, Overlin came off the floor to win. Belloise, a brother of former Featherweight Champ Mike, hit him a belt in the sixth round that sat Ken right on the seat of his silk panties. Ken got up, staved off Belloise's charge for the rest of the round, and, in the seventh session, turned the tables with one of the best rallies seen in a New York ring this year. From there on to the finish, he was Prof. Overlin instructing a pupil in the gentle art of bashing beaks.

Plans Tummy Attack

Belloise, however, slowed Overlin down considerably in the late going with a body attack, and, if what you hear from the local gym where he has been thumping his sparmates is true, he plans on drubbing Ken's tummy right from the word go tomorrow. Overlin, however, insists he can take it "downstairs" all evening, if necessary.

Belloise, who probably will weigh 155—thereby spotting Overlin four pounds when they climb into the ring at 10 p. m. (E.S.T.)—has all the clouter's contempt for a boxer, and predicts he'll put the crusher on the champion in six rounds or so. Overlin knows he doesn't have much of a punch, and that if he should happen to knock Mike out it will be strictly an accident. However, he figures he's a cinch to outpoint Belloise.

Contract Bridge

J. R. H. asks about taking partner out of a business double. This is the problem that confronted him the other night:

"We were playing a family rubber bridge game. Both sides were vulnerable; my side had a part score of 60 points. Sitting South and having three plus honor tricks, I held:

♠ A J 7 5 3 2

"I opened with one spade; West went up to two hearts; my partner doubled; East passed. I bid two spades; everybody passed. I made four spades with a result of 620 points. My partner immediately reproached me for having taken her out of a business double, which—it is true—would have cost our opponents 800, or possibly 1,100, points. I replied that, having a singleton in hearts and being quite certain of being able to make my bid, I did not want to run the risk of our opponents making two hearts, doubled. I could not convince my partner, especially as one of my opponents, who is considered a rather good player, agreed with her. Now please tell me: Was I right or wrong?"

The question of taking out partner's business doubles is always a touchy point. Your action must be guided to a large extent by what you know of your partner's strategy in doubling. Some players do not double for penalties unless they have an obviously huge set in their own hands; others double at the slightest provocation and must be taken out by their partners on all questionable hands to avoid a needless loss of points, especially when the double will allow the adversaries to score a game.

A set as attractive as 800 points is certainly to be preferred to winning a rubber, but we would not criticize a partner who took out a double under such tight circumstances.

Listen! with Glynn

"Charlie and Jessie" is the name of the new Columbia network dramatic serial which you'll hear over WJSV Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at 11 a. m., starting today.

Starred in it will be Donald Cook, of the stage—his most recent stage hit was "Skylark," with Gertrude Lawrence—and Florence Lake, of the films—she's been in "To Mary With Love," "Quality Street," "Love in a Bungalow" and "I Met Love Again."

Together they'll portray the adventure of Charlie and Jessie, a newly-married and entirely irresponsible couple who, as the author Wyllis Cooper expresses it, were married in a madhouse and walked down the aisle festooned with haywire. Charlie is a young and earnest advertising man, but a fairly frantic husband. Jessie is an enthusiastic, but somewhat scatterbrained wife.

The new series replaces "Short Short Story" and represents an unusual radio development in that listener enthusiasm for what was originally written as a complete-in-one broadcast resulted in its being elongated into the series. The story of "Charlie and Jessie" was an immediate hit and the demand for more of the daffy dramas resulted, establishing them as a thrice-weekly feature on the network. They'll be presented by the same sponsor.

To give you an idea of how certain that sponsor is that the series will be a success, look at the date he's starting it on—Friday the thirteenth!

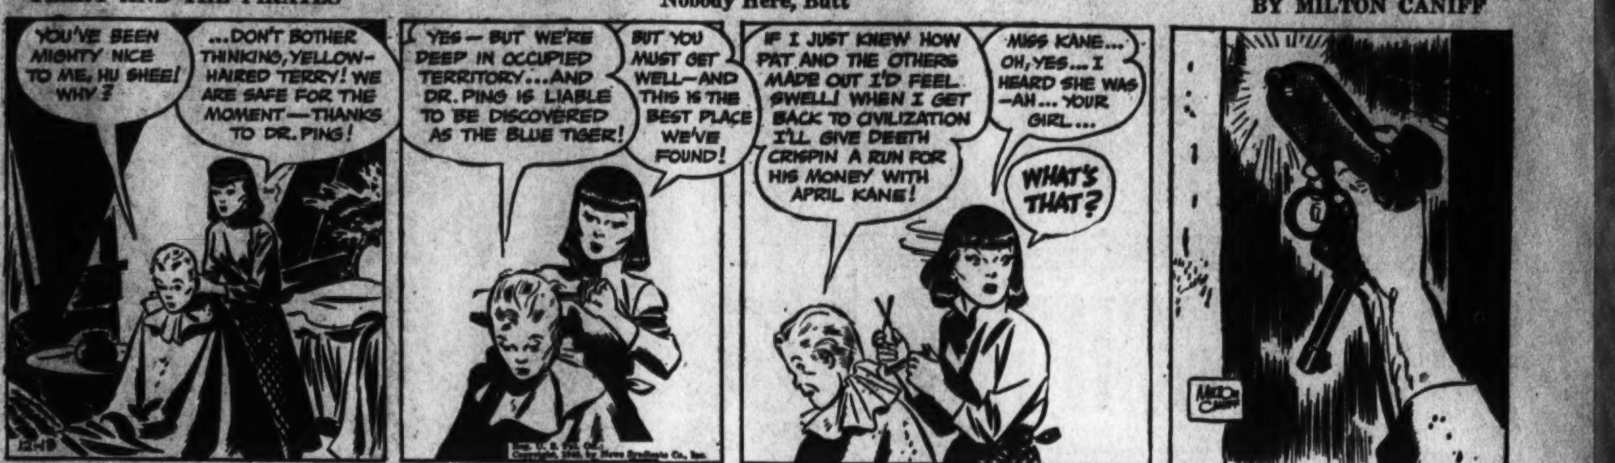
TERRY AND THE PIRATES — Nobody Here, Butt — BY MILTON CANIFF



YOU'VE BEEN MIGHTY NICE TO ME, HU SHEE! WHY?
...DON'T BOTHER THINKING, YELLOW-HAIRED TERRY! WE ARE SAFE FOR THE MOMENT—THANKS TO DR. PING!
YES—BUT WE'RE DEEP IN OCCUPIED TERRITORY...AND DR. PING IS LIABLE TO BE DISCOVERED AS THE BLUE TIGER!
BUT YOU MUST GET WELL—AND THIS IS THE BEST PLACE WE'VE FOUND!
IF I JUST KNEW HOW PAT AND THE OTHERS MADE OUT I'D FEEL SWELL! WHEN I GET BACK TO CIVILIZATION I'LL GIVE DEETH CRISPIN A RUN FOR HIS MONEY WITH APRIL KANE!
MISS KANE... OH, YES... I HEARD SHE WAS —AH... YOUR GIRL...

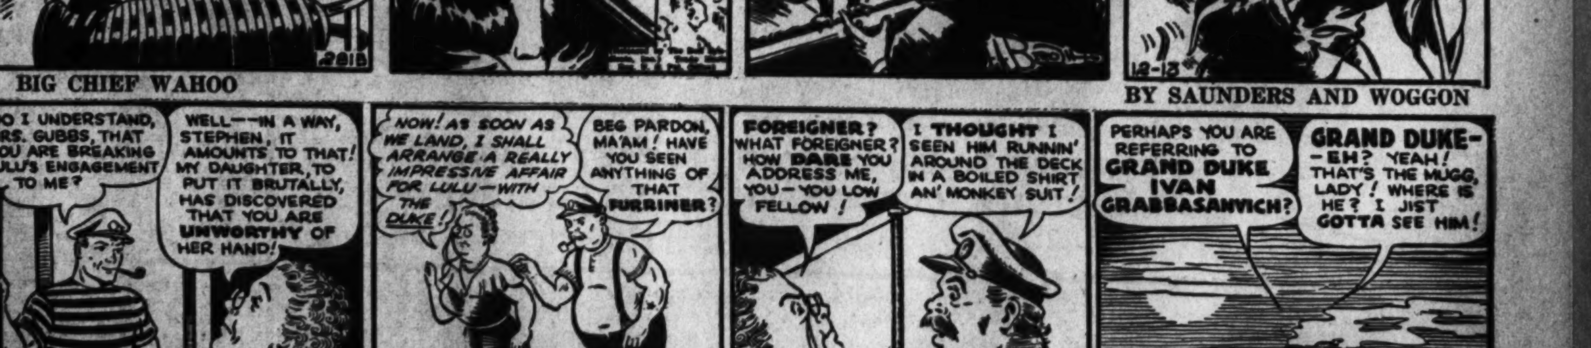
BIG CHIEF WAHOO — BY SAUNDERS AND WOGGON



DO I UNDERSTAND, MRS. GUBBS, THAT YOU ARE BREAKING LULU'S ENGAGEMENT TO ME?
WELL——IN A WAY, STEPHEN, IT AMOUNTS TO THAT! MY DAUGHTER, TO PUT IT BRUTALLY, HAS DISCOVERED THAT YOU ARE UNWORTHY OF HER HAND!
NOW! AS SOON AS WE LAND, I SHALL ARRANGE A REALLY IMPRESSIVE AFFAIR FOR LULU—WITH THE DUKE!
BEG PARDON, MA'AM! HAVE YOU SEEN ANYTHING OF THAT FURRINER?
FOREIGNER? WHAT FOREIGNER? HOW DARE YOU ADDRESS ME, YOU—YOU LOW FELLOW!
I THOUGHT I SEEN HIM RUNNIN' AROUND THE DECK IN A BOILED SHIRT AN' MONKEY SUIT!
PERHAPS YOU ARE REFERRING TO GRAND DUKE IVAN GRABBASANVICH?
GRAND DUKE—EH? YEAH! THAT'S THE MUGG, LADY! WHERE IS HE? I JIST GOTTA SEE HIM!
